County Reorganization Plan Hit

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A proposal to consolidate three county departments came under fire yesterday from county officials who criticized the plan as one developed in a vacuum in the county administrator's office. (Other Marin County Board of Supervisors stories, pages 14, 15.)

The criticism, aired before county supervisors, failed to draw the necessary three votes either to scrap the proposal or to send it back to the drawing boards. As it stands, the proposal will be heard as is on May 1.

The consolidation proposal, developed by County Administrator John F. Barrows and his staff, calls for merging the departments of planning, public works and parks and recreation into a new Department of Planning and Public Facilities.

Parks Director Pierre W. Joske, who would lose his directorship under the reorganization, told the board it is "regrettable" his department wasn't asked its opinion before Barrows drafted the proposal.

Joske, backed by several members of his parks and recreation commission, said the reorganization would mean the end of park development in Marin. He asked it be shelved immediately.

"Our ability to render good service to the people of Marin depends on our remaining a separate agency," Joske said, predicting park development would be lost in the shuffle of a larger department.

He was joined by Sol Silver, chief of advanced planning, who said the planning department is "quite disappointed" in not being involved in developing the consolidation plan.

"We were aware it was being developed . . . and were waiting to be asked to comment," Silver said, adding the first official word to the department came "just a few hours before it hit the press."

Barrows responded that he had not approached the two

Car Makers Granted Pollution Extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) today granted the auto industry a one-year delay in meeting the 1975 antipollution standards.

But the agency set strict interim pollution standards, and ordered the industry to equip all cars sold in California in 1975 with pollution control devices.

The industry had urged the EPA to allow it to use California, a state with a serious pollution problem, as a testing ground for its pollution control devices, known as catalytic converters.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus said he chose to phase-in the pollution control devices gradually to prevent disruption in the auto industry.

The use of catalytic converters in California will boost the price of the cars bought in the state, and will require the use of nonleaded gasoline for efficient performance.

Under the standards for California, hydrocarbon emissions for 1975 must be cut to 0.9 grams per mile and carbon monoxide to 9 grams per mile. The nationwide standard by 1975 will be 1.5 grams hydrocarbons and 15 grams per mile of carbon monoxide. Present emission levels are much higher.

The major U.S. manufacturers —General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors —had claimed in testimony before the EPA last month that they could not meet the standards and, that without the one-year delay, the industry might be forced to foist an expensive and untested pollution control device on the car-buying public.

The delay means that automakers now will be required to cut carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon exhaust on 1976 model cars —instead of 1975 models

Ferry Work Is Set April 25

The Sausalito ferry will be in drydock and out of service on April 25.

Stanley M. Kowleski, ferry transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District, said the vessel will go into drydock for periodic maintenance after its last night run from San Francisco on the 24th. It will be back in service for the first run from Sausalito on the 26th, he said.

Buses will replace the ferry runs on the 25th.

Tiburon Link Advised For Strawberry

County Administrator John F. Barrows will advise the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission tonight that unincorporated Strawberry be included in the "sphere of influence" of Tiburon and that Strawberry be discouraged from becoming a city itself.

Barrows revealed his recommendation by memo Monday to Strawberry citizen groups and to the cities of Mill Valley and Tiburon which have long been vying to control the unincorporated area, including the tax-rich Strawberry Town and Country Village shopping center. So far, both have failed to in commission approval of proposals to annex or have lost an annexation election.

State law requires the commission to declare spheres of influence for cities, or what adjoining unincorporated areas a community ultimately should annex.

Barrows's memo says both cities could probably provide the necessary services to Strawberry if either annexed the area. But he added that annexation by Mill Valley would mean complicated arrangements on fire protection and sewer services since Mill Valley provides these services as a city while Tiburon does not.

Strawberry now gets these two services through special districts which might have to be dissolved.

Barrows's main argument in Tiburon's behalf is that Strawberry is more economically and socially dependent on that city than Mill Valley.

"Mill Valley is separated from the Strawberry area by U.S. Highway 101, which creates a formidable physical barrier between the two areas," Barrows wrote.

He added that "residents of the City of Tiburon are required to travel through the Strawberry area to get to Highway 101, while the residents of Mill Valley are not. This could be construed as providing a higher level of social interaction with Tiburon than with Mill Valley."

Barrows warned that if Strawberry incorporates it would further fragment government within Marin County.

He recommended against splitting the area between the two cities.

Last night the Mill Valley City Council reviewed Barrows's recommendations and said four or five councilmen and the city manager would attend the commission meeting to object to the report.

"It looks to me as if Barrows is saying that Mill Valley can provide all the services, so therefore Strawberry should go to Tiburon," said Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker.

The LAFC meeting at the Civic Center will begin at 8 p.m.

Weight Problem Of New Ferries Solved

A Net Saving Of Only $1,970 On Each Boat

Unexpected weight problems with the Golden Gate Bridge District's new ferries were solved yesterday by hacking eight tons off each of the three new vessels being built in San Diego.

Because of a host of costly additions, the net cost saving per vessel was only $1,970 — barely noticeable in the total contract with Campbell Industries for $12,620,000.

A detailed list of 50 changes proposed in the design by the district's staff was approved unanimously by the building and operating committee. Its recommendation will go to the full board for ratification on Friday.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini made the motion to approve the changes, but observed that the ferries originally must have been "a little bit overdesigned" for so many changes to be necessary.

The staff said the original design assumed a certain tonnage, based on estimates of the weight of every item aboard. Detailed computations by the shipyard, however, found they would be too heavy to make the required 25 knots.

The district's ferry transit manager, Stanley M. Kowleski, said the weight cuts would reduce each ferry to about 185 tons. Tons in his nautical language are long tons, each weighing 2,240 pounds.

The biggest weight cut was removal of the 2,482-pound boarding ramps, which instead will be mounted on the piers. Kowleski said even the model of the hydraulic folding contraption generally failed to work.

Putting it ashore will allow a simpler device and easier maintenance, he said.

The second biggest change was to eliminate about half of the interior lights, which will save 3,895 pounds and $25,571. Kowleski said the original lighting would have been far too bright.

Other changes which will be apparent to passengers include carpeting instead of tile and clear glass instead of tinted glass. The designer of the vessels, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle, said the public had objected to Puget Sound ferries with tinted glass.

The other changes were outside of passenger areas.

Spaulding explained that part of the weight problem resulted from addition of a third engine, additional fuel capacity and hiking the passenger capacity from 636 to 750 persons.

He assured the committee the 50 changes would not sacrifice quality, serviceability or decor.

Council Opposes Transit Use Of Rail Right-Of-Way

By REBECCA LARSEN

Yielding to protests of Scott Valley homeowners, the Mill Valley City Council reverted last night to opposition to any rapid transit use of the abandoned railroad right-of-way through the city.

The council voted 3-2 to reverse a stand adopted in February favoring transit on the Northwestern Pacific right-of-way north of East Blithedale Avenue, running near the Scott Valley development.

At that time, the council was advised by representatives of the Golden Gate Bridge District that Mill Valley approval of rapid transit use is essential to district purchase of the right-of-way through a federal loan. Though the district has no intention of using it for rapid transit, the declaration of such intent is required to qualify for a loan, the representatives said.

Despite district assurances that the maneuver was merely lip service, 200 Scott Valley residents signed a protest presented to the council Monday, resulting in last night's special session attended by about 40 valley residents. They complained they still fear buses or trains may one day run near their homes.

While yielding to the residents' pleas to withdraw the February endorsement of limited use of the right-of-way for transit, the city council announced it will withhold so informing the federal government until after the bridge district board meets and acts Friday on its application for the federal loan.

The council also instructed staff to negotiate with the district to insure some city control of the use of the right-of-way should the district buy it. Councilmen said the city could contribute as much as $10,000 a year toward district interest payments on any federal loan.

The district is seeking a 10-year, low-interest loan for a six-mile stretch of right-of-way from Larkspur through Mill Valley to Sausalito. District transit plans include a feeder line through Larkspur, Corte Madera and Mill Valley to a main line running along Highway 101.

Dean N. Meyer, bridge district director, said last night that Mill Valley's latest turnabout probably would not jeopardize getting the loan, if applied for.

But, he added, directors may dump the whole idea because of the difficulties met so far. "There's a good possibility that Mill Valley might have looked a

The Case Finally Shut On Mystery Of Bormann

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — A 28-year-old mystery came to an official end today when the West German government announced that Martin Bormann, Adolf Hitler's deputy, "definitely committed suicide" on a bridge over a desolate Berlin railroad yard on May 2, 1945.

Assistant prosecutor Joachim Richter of Hesse State, in charge of the Bormann file, confirmed in a news conference that a skull and bones found last December in Berlin's Lehrter railway yard were those of Bormann. He said remnants of a poison capsule were found in the teeth of the skull.

It was an official end to a case that sent investigators many times to South America to track down reports Bormann had escaped there with other Nazis, but there still were some skeptics—including Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal, who heads the Jewish documentation center in Vienna.

"I still have some doubts," Wiesenthal told reporters at the news conference. "But I'm sure the officials here conducted their investigation with great seriousness."

Richter was definite in his statement. "Bormann definitely committed suicide in 1945."

Bormann killed himself when he failed to break through Russian lines surrounding Berlin shortly before dawn on May 2, 1945, said Richter and the chief public prosecutor of Hesse, Horst Gauf, who had been investigating the case for 12 years.

Gauf said Bormann died sometime between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. on a bridge over the Invalidenstrasse in Berlin's Tiergarten.

He was last seen alive when he left Hitler's chancellery bunker after the Fuehrer committed suicide there April 30.

Eyewitnesses said Bormann fled with Dr. Ludwig Stumpfegger, Hitler's personal physician, in an attempt to join Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler in Flensburg.

Rumors abounded as to Bormann's whereabouts during the long years since the end of World War II. Ironically, one of the most fervent attempts to prove the former Nazi strongman was still alive came only last November when the London Express, in cooperation with the New York Daily News, published excerpts from a book by author Ladislaw Farago, alleging Bormann was living in the jungles of northern Argentina.

On Dec. 8, soon after the documented Farago dispatches appeared, workmen discovered the skull and bones in the ruins of the Lehrter railroad freight yard a few hundred feet from the bridge. A dental bridge found in the skull was compared to dental records drawn from memory by Bormann's dentist.

Richter said positive identification was made by using latest police methods for reconstructing a human face from Bormann's skull.

He said the glass splinters found in the teeth were identical with material in the 950 "suicide pills" passed out to leading Nazis in Berlin in 1945. These contained a cubic centimeter of cyanide and one of them was used by Himmler in his suicide.

Richter said West Germany has now withdrawn the $36,000 reward for Bormann's capture and had instructed the Foreign Ministry to tell informants reporting they have seen Bormann that the case is closed. The remains were to be turned over to Bormann's family for burial after public agencies issued the necessary certificates of death, he said.

Haig Warning

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Presidential envoy Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. left for Washington today after reportedly warning President Lon Nol that U.S. aid may be curtailed unless he eases his hardline antinegotiating posture with the Communists.

Haig, dispatched by President Nixon on a tour of Southeast Asian capitals to assess Cambodia's worsening military and political crisis, spent two consective days conferring with Lon Nol and other Cambodian officials.

Foreign diplomats were skeptical of Haig's alleged threat but speculated he may have demanded that Lon Nol ease his tough "no compromise" negotiating stance.

Sniper Killed

BELFAST (UPI) — A sniper in Londonderry shot and killed a British soldier with a single shot, the army said. And in Belfast a part-time militiaman was shot and killed in a barracks accident by a friend cleaning his rifle.

An army spokesman said the dead soldier was with a foot patrol in the Roman Catholic Bogside district when the sniper fired on the troops.

A Belfast spokesman for the Ulster Defense Regiment (UDR), a part-time militia, said one of its soldiers was struck in the head and killed by a bullet fired from a gun that was being cleaned by another UDR man. The death was listed as accidental.

In Dublin, a statement from the militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army IRA denied "with some amusement" reports that up to $375,000 of the IRA's stolen or donated funds had been embezzled and squandered by IRA members in Belfast.

Energy Policy

BURLINGTON, Wis., (UPI) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., called yesterday for a presidentially appointed national energy council to spearhead a $2.5-billion a year federal drive for conservation and development of energy.

In his energy policy address at a candlelight dinner Tuesday night, the founder of Earth Day three years ago said the pollution crisis and the energy crisis were "merely different sides to the same coin and both must be dealt with together."

Nelson's address highlighted "Energy Conservation Day" in this Racine County community of about 8,000. Residents attempted to dramatize the need to conserve energy.

Search Halted

HOCHWALD, Switzerland (UPI) — Fresh snowfalls early today halted the search for nine persons missing in Switzerland's worst air disaster, the crash of a chartered airliner carrying a party of English housewives on a one-day shopping trip.

Officials said late yesterday that the confirmed death toll was 96 dead.

Another 39 persons survived the crash and nine were listed as missing.

Three Arabs Are Killed By Explosion

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Three Arab guerrillas died last night in an explosion on the Israeli-held Golan Heights, a Tel Aviv spokesman said today, but there was no indication the incident was linked with an Israeli commando raid in Beirut.

A military announcement said the three Arabs had penetrated the Heights and were planting a bomb when it exploded near a village. Israeli soldiers said they found several other bombs and bazookas at the site.

It was the second infiltration of the area from Syria in a week, Israelis said.

Phnom Penh Blockade Penetrated

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A 387-vehicle convoy today wound its way up vital Highway 4, Phnom Penh's only link with the supply-laden ships docking at the Kompong Som seaport, breaking a 20-day-old land blockade of the city.

The success raised speculation that an American airlift of petroleum products to Phom Penh's airport will be canceled.

The truck convoy which broke the Communist supply blockade of Phnom Penh carried desperately needed supplies of food, salt, lumber, cement and heavy machinery and arrived without serious incident under heavy U.S. air cover.

The Berlin-style airlift of petroleum products was announced in the midst of the biggest Communist offensive ever launched in Cambodia. The offensive, now in its third month, virtually severed all major supply lines feeding the capital, causing serious shortages of many basic necessities throughout the capital.

Friedheim Due Big Promotion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon intends to promote Jerry W. Friedheim, 38, a Pentagon press spokesman, to the position of assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

Friedheim, a native of Joplin, Mo., will succeed Daniel Z. Henkin, who resigned.

Communists Attack Mekong Delta Camps

SAIGON (UPI) — Communists launched three sharp attacks in the Mekong Delta southwest of Saigon today, and U.S. Defense Department officials said that far to the north the North Vietnamese had virtually annexed the region south of the Demilitarized Zone in South Vietnam with a string of air defense weapons.

Despite mounting cease-fire violations, a U.S. State Department official said Hanoi probably will try to achieve its objectives in Indochina by political rather than military means.

The situation at the surrounded government Border Ranger camp at Tong Le Chan, 50 miles north of Saigon, where Communist shellings have been an almost daily occurrence since the end of February, was reported unchanged today.

The four-nation International Commission on Control and Supervision (ICCS) met again to work out a means of ending the 44-day-old siege. Informed sources said the ICCS still was discussing what type of action to take in investigating the most prolonged incident since the Jan. 28 cease-fire.

About one third of the 500 government defenders at Tong Le Chan have been reported killed or wounded. Tuesday, 313 rounds of Communists artillery, rocket and mortar fire hit the camp.

In the Mekong Delta, Communist forces penetrated a hamlet near Kien Hung, 120 miles southwest of Saigon, this morning but were driven back by local militiamen. Six militia troops and two Communists were killed and one government soldier was wounded, the command said.

Ten miles to the southeast, 15 rounds of 61mm mortar fire hit a militia outpost and wounded two of its defenders.

In nearby Vinh Binh province, Communist troops attacked a militia position 70 miles southwest of Saigon shortly before dawn and killed two militiamen and wounded five others.

Defense Department officials said today the North Vietnamese had planted eight to 10 surface-to-air missile (SAM) sites and antiaircraft artillery around the former U.S. Marine outpost of Khe Sahn, in northernmost South Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew spent several hours Tuesday at the White House, conferring with President Nixon and being guest of honor at a dinner.

Bankrupt Firm Gets A New Boss

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A nationally recognized mutual fund expert from Minneapolis was named Tuesday by a federal judge to assume command of the bankrupt and scandal stricken Equity Funding Corp. of America.

Robert M. Loeffler, 49, named by U.S. District Court Judge Harry Pregerson to "reorganize and rehabilitate" Equity under the federal bankruptcy laws, was expected to arrive in Los Angeles today.

"In effect, Mr. Loeffler is now the chief executive officer of Equity Funding Corp. of America," the judge's order said.

Equity and one of its insurance subsidiaries are currently in the hands of federal and state officials, as investigations continue into a $2 billion insurance swindle, which experts say may be one of the biggest in American financial history.

The judge has been in control of the parent corporation of the giant financial conglomerate, at the request of the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Case Finally Shut On Mystery Of Bormann

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — A 28-year-old mystery came to an official end today when the West German government announced that Martin Bormann, Adolf Hitler's deputy, "definitely committed suicide" on a bridge over a desolate Berlin railroad yard on May 2, 1945.

Assistant prosecutor Joachim Richter of Hesse State, in charge of the Bormann file, confirmed in a news conference that a skull and bones found last December in Berlin's Lehrter railway yard were those of Bormann. He said remnants of a poison capsule were found in the teeth of the skull.

It was an official end to a case that sent investigators many times to South America to track down reports Bormann had escaped there with other Nazis, but there still were some skeptics—including Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal, who heads the Jewish documentation center in Vienna.

"I still have some doubts," Wiesenthal told reporters at the news conference. "But I'm sure the officials here conducted their investigation with great seriousness."

Richter was definite in his statement. "Bormann definitely committed suicide in 1945."

Bormann killed himself when he failed to break through Russian lines surrounding Berlin shortly before dawn on May 2, 1945, said Richter and the chief public prosecutor of Hesse, Horst Gauf, who had been investigating the case for 12 years.

Gauf said Bormann died sometime between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. on a bridge over the Invalidenstrasse in Berlin's Tiergarten.

He was last seen alive when he left Hitler's chancellery bunker after the Fuehrer committed suicide there April 30.

Eyewitnesses said Bormann fled with Dr. Ludwig Stumpfegger, Hitler's personal physician, in an attempt to join Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler in Flensburg.

Rumors abounded as to Bormann's whereabouts during the long years since the end of World War II. Ironically, one of the most fervent attempts to prove the former Nazi strongman was still alive came only last November when the London Express, in cooperation with the New York Daily News, published excerpts from a book by author Ladislaw Farago, alleging Bormann was living in the jungles of northern Argentina.

Commercial Zoning Discussion Delayed

The Novato City Council, seeking tight control of commercial development in the city, last night delayed for one week considering rezoning for planned commercial use 33.7 acres at the future Highway 101-Rowland Boulevard interchange.

Novato Center Inc. is seeking the commercial zoning as the key to development of the Hanna Ranch, east of Highway 101 from Highway 37 to Novato Creek.

The bid has sparked debate over whether commercial development at the interchange would disrupt the city's plan for a community-sized shopping center downtown and concentrated, rather than scattered business areas.

Planning Director Brian W. Mattson said "on the surface" it appears that commercial development at the interchange would have a significant impact on plans for a community shopping center.

Attorney Joseph A. Forest, representing the applicant, said the type of commercial uses planned for the site wouldn't conflict with downtown policy.

The potential tenants, yet undisclosed, aren't the type that would locate in a downtown area, but seek highway sites with access to railroad tracks, Forest said.

Philip A. Coady, president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce said the chamber board favors the zoning "with assurance the city has control over the planned commercial" developments.

Mattson questioned whether the city's shoppers "could support" the interchange commercial, plus 27 acres at the Pinheiro Ranch "in addition to our existing commercial." He recommended that rezoning not occur until the firm provides marketing data and economic analysis to justify the proposed commercial uses at the interchange.

Forest said the firm can't provide supporting data until it has tenants and it can't get commitments from tenants until it has commercial zoning.

Councilman F. Wayne Sartain said the only justification for commercial zoning would be to permit highway-oriented business that wouldn't go in downtown and "the consumer would get what he wouldn't get otherwise."

Councilmen then discussed ways to assure that the city would have full control over type of commercial use at the site.

City Atty. Clark M. Palmer said possibly the city could achieve its aim by creating a special highway commercial zone "or something of this kind."

The council appointed a subcommittee of Mayor Fred F. Ruegg and George C. Quesada to meet with Palmer on defining exactly what uses it would permit and the method for assuring control.

Councilman David Price Jones, a member of the same law firm as Forest, left the chambers during the discussion and the vote.

Woman Hurt In Car Crash

A San Leandro woman was taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco yesterday with injuries suffered in a two-car accident on Tiburon Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Joan M. Kleinmaus, 25, was reported in satisfactory condition with a broken knee, scrapes and bruises and possible internal injuries.

Officers said she was westbound on Tiburon Boulevard at 3:45 p.m. when her car and one driven by Estes-Patricia J. McVickers, 30, of 15 Andrews Drive, Tiburon, collided at the intersection of Cecelia Way.

Officers said the McVickers vehicle, southbound on Cecelia, was making a left turn onto eastbound Tiburon Boulevard when the collision occurred.

Novato Council Favors Permits

The Novato City Council last night recommended that use permits be granted for both the Renaissance Center andorld College West south of San Antonio Creek, west of Highway 101.

The action came after representatives of the center and college outlined their plans at a joint meeting of the council and city planning commission.

Atty. Douglas P. Ferguson, representing the center, said the annual Renaissance Faire, held at Black Point for the past two years, would be held at the new 275-acre site.

He said he doesn't believe the traffic problem, providing access to the site from northbound Highway 101, is insurmountable, a problem that has concerned the state Division of Highways.

Atty. Albert Bianchi, representing World College West, said the college would be on about 200 acres adjacent to the Renaissance Center, would open with about 40 students and have an eventual enrollment of 600 students.

After planning commissioners recommended supporting both projects, the council agreed but recommended several conditions.

Among the conditions were that the Renaissance Faire not operate at the site until the Highway 101 bypass is completed. It is scheduled for completion next year.

The council's recommendations will be forwarded to the Marin County zoning administrator, who is considering granting use permits for both projects.

The council recessed to a closed session to discuss what Mayor Fred F. Ruegg described as a "personnel matter."

The Ralph M. Brown Act which sets forth the few permissible reasons for going into closed session does not list discussion of a "personnel matter" among them. But Ruegg gave no other explanation for taking the council behind closed doors.

State Highway Deaths Decline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Traffic fatalities took 67 fewer lives in California during the first three months of this year than in the same period in 1972, Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski said Tuesday.

A total of 1,023 persons died on California roads from New Years through March, a six per cent decline from the 1,090 deaths during the corresponding period last year, he said.

Pudinski attributed the drop in deaths to the "continuing attention to driving safely" by California motorists.

"Now that good weather is here, we can hope that the fatality rate will drop even more," the commissioner said.

San Rafael Man Arraigned On Weapon Charge

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Stephen Michael Boyle, 22, of San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday in Central Sonoma Municipal Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Judge Frank J. Passalacqua scheduled Boyle to enter a plea today and said he would also consider releasing him on his own recognizance.

Boyle was arrested Sunday after Sonoma sheriff's deputies said he threatened Paul R. Begins, 24, of Santa Rosa, with a gun at the Sonoma County Jail honor farm.

The Smokers Hit In Davis

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — It's against the law today to light up a cigarette, cigar or pipe in public elevators, rooms where public meetings are being held, auditoriums and theaters in Davis.

Violators of the new municipal "infraction" are liable to $5 fines, along with the owners of theaters and auditoriums.

The city council adopted the ban as a compromise after nonsmokers proposed a measure which would also have prohibited smoking in portions of restaurants and set the fine at $25.

The council said it would review the measure in six months to check its effectiveness in this university-oriented town near Sacramento.

Three Students Win Merit Scholarships

One student from Sir Francis Drake High School and two from Terra Linda High have won four-year National Merit Scholarships, the nationwide competitive organization announced today.

Michael A. Grey of 7 Idlewood Street, San Anselmo, a senior at Drake, won the scholarship sponsored by the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, among children of Prudential employees. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Grey.

He plans to major in chemistry in college. He is a life member of the California Scholarship Federation, a lifetime Honor Crew member, a member of the varsity track squad, twice winner of the most valuable player award in B track competition and president of the school's Travel Club.

Grey was a semifinalist in Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and California Scholarship competitions.

Thomas C. Elkjer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Elkjer of 104 Twelveoak Hill Drive, San Rafael, won the McGraw-Hill Merit Scholarship.

He plans to major in humanities in college. At Terra Linda High, he is on the honor roll, a member of the student council, director and performer in school plays, choir singer, feature editor on the school paper, literary magazine contributor and chess club member.

Mark R. Tummerman, also a Terra Linda High senior, won a Bank of America Foundation Merit scholarship, and plans to major in mathematics in college. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Tummerman of 19 Ana Court.

He is a cross-country and track runner, first-place winner in the Mathematics Association of America math contest, and an active debater in the National Forensic League and Congress.

The amounts of the specific four-year scholarships were not announced; they vary from $400 to $6,000 depending on the financial circumstances of the recipients, the scholarship corporation said.

Commercial Zoning Discussion Delayed

The Novato City Council, seeking tight control of commercial development in the city, last night delayed for one week considering rezoning for planned commercial use 33.7 acres at the future Highway 101-Rowland Boulevard interchange.

Novato Center Inc. is seeking the commercial zoning as the key to development of the Hanna Ranch, east of Highway 101 from Highway 37 to Novato Creek.

The bid has sparked debate over whether commercial development at the interchange would disrupt the city's plan for a community-sized shopping center downtown and concentrated, rather than scattered business areas.

Planning Director Brian W. Mattson said "on the surface" it appears that commercial development at the interchange would have a significant impact on plans for a community shopping center.

Attorney Joseph A. Forest, representing the applicant, said the type of commercial uses planned for the site wouldn't conflict with downtown policy.

The potential tenants, yet undisclosed, aren't the type that would locate in a downtown area, but seek highway sites with access to railroad tracks, Forest said.

Philip A. Coady, president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce said the chamber board favors the zoning "with assurance the city has control over the planned commercial" developments.

Mattson questioned whether the city's shoppers "could support" the interchange commercial, plus 27 acres at the Pinheiro Ranch "in addition to our existing commercial." He recommended that rezoning not occur until the firm provides marketing data and economic analysis to justify the proposed commercial uses at the interchange.

Forest said the firm can't provide supporting data until it has tenants and it can't get commitments from tenants until it has commercial zoning.

Councilman F. Wayne Sartain said the only justification for commercial zoning would be to permit highway-oriented business that wouldn't go in downtown and "the consumer would get what he wouldn't get otherwise."

Councilmen then discussed ways to assure that the city would have full control over type of commercial use at the site.

City Atty. Clark M. Palmer said possibly the city could achieve its aim by creating a special highway commercial zone "or something of this kind."

The council appointed a subcommittee of Mayor Fred F. Ruegg and George C. Quesada to meet with Palmer on defining exactly what uses it would permit and the method for assuring control.

Councilman David Price Jones, a member of the same law firm as Forest, left the chambers during the discussion and the vote.

Woman Hurt In Car Crash

A San Leandro woman was taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco yesterday with injuries suffered in a two-car accident on Tiburon Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Joan M. Kleinmaus, 25, was reported in satisfactory condition with a broken knee, scrapes and bruises and possible internal injuries.

Officers said she was westbound on Tiburon Boulevard at 3:45 p.m. when her car and one driven by Estes-Patricia J. McVickers, 30, of 15 Andrews Drive, Tiburon, collided at the intersection of Cecelia Way.

Officers said the McVickers vehicle, southbound on Cecelia, was making a left turn onto eastbound Tiburon Boulevard when the collision occurred.

Nixon Asks Congress To Protect Pensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon urged Congress today to pass new pension legislation to give working people greater assurance of getting full benefits from retirement plans, and even to encourage them to set up their own retirement plans.

The President called for tax breaks for those who want to contribute to their own retirement —even if they also are part of group retirement plans.

Individual employers also would be given much more generous treatment in setting aside money for their own retirement under Nixon's proposals. The amount of such contributions that could be deducted from income tax payments would be tripled — from the present maximum $2,500 to $7,500 a year.

For individual workers, as much as $1,500 a year toward retirement savings would be tax deductible. Pension plan contributions by a worker's employer would have to be deducted from the $1,500, however.

Coupled with this, in what Nixon described as an effort to brighten "the retirement picture for America's working men and women," were proposals aimed at seeing that workers do not lose the money contributed by themselves and employers to retirement plans.

"Vesting" is the key word in this. This means that whether or not a worker leaves a job — or even is fired —before retirement, he is entitled to the pension benefits earned during his employment.

There has been some recent movement toward protecting pension rights of a worker after he leaves a job, Nixon said. But he said many private plans still carry overly restrictive requirement for age or length of service or participation before a person is entitled to receive his pension after he resigns or is discharged from a job.

He said his proposals are a refinement of pension reform legislation submitted to Congress in December, 1971, and are based on completed government studies on the pension question and information derived from congressional hearings on pension reform.

The President, in a message to Congress, said he would submit in a few days two bills —a Retirement Benefits Tax Act and an Employee Benefits Protection Act.

To protect older workers particularly, Nixon proposed that half of all pension benefits earned by a worker be considered vested — which means a person is entitled to the amount contributed to his retirement — when his age plus the number of years he has participated in a pension plan adds to 50.

From that starting point, an additional 10 per cent of all the benefits earned would be vested each year so that the pension would be fully vested five years later.

The President said that under this formula, the proportion of full-time workers in private retirement plans with vested pension benefits would almost double —from 32 per cent to 61 per cent.

Among participants over 40, the percentage of vested benefits would rise from 40 per cent to about 90 per cent, he said.

To avoid excessive pension cost increases, the new law would apply only to benefits earned after the bill becomes effective although the number of years a worker participated in the pension plan prior to enactment would count toward meeting the vesting standard.

Nixon said, "This reform would help to reduce the frequency and magnitude of benefits losses when pension plans terminate." But he said he was not yet ready to recommend — as he said had been suggested —creation of a government-sponsored program to insure workers against suffering pension losses.

COUNTY

departments because he did not think he would get "much valid information from departments heads whose departments were proposed to be eliminated as departments."

His comments sent a ripple of grumbles across the audience. "Maybe I'm very cynical but I'm paid to be cynical," he said in answer to the uneasiness in the room.

"This is not a take it or leave it proposal," Barrows continued, adding it could be modified by the board on recommendations from other department heads during public hearings.

Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr., recommended to head the new department, was involved in the planning but did not speak yesterday.

Parks and Recreation Commissioner Merritt A. Robinson protested the proposal as submitted and suggested it be sent back with instructions to the county administrator to meet with department heads.

He drew support from Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Michael Wornum, who agreed the three departments involved should develop the plan together, since they would have to work under it.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who proposed the consolidation in January, objected, saying such action would dilute the proposal.

"I don't want a consensus of what the three departments think we will accept," he said, adding the purpose was to consolidate like functions for cost savings and efficiency.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere agreed. "I would hate to infer that the county administrator had to negotiate (his proposals) with department heads."

"They had better be able to talk now," Giacomini said. "They are going to have to provide the services. We can't make it happen with a wave of the magic wand."

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste joined Arrigoni and Roumiguiere in support of Barrows, saying the method of proposing the consolidation insures the public will not be excluded.

A plan developed by the departments would be a compromise plan to which everyone agreed beforehand, he said. "I'm looking for a reorganization to improve efficiency and coordination .. so far it hasn't happened between separate departments."

On a motion by Arrigoni, the matter was set for further discussion May 1. Supervisor Giacomini voted against the motion, protesting the board's refusal to direct the administrator to meet with department heads to discuss the proposal.

In a related action, the board set May 8 for discussion of another proposal to consolidate the probation, welfare and health departments into a new Department of Health and Human Services. There was no discussion.

Novato Pay Request Is Studied

While 20 to 25 raise-seeking teachers picketed outside, the Novato Unified School District board went into a closed session with its negotiating representatives last night on the pay requests.

Supt. James G. Bunker said the board's representatives are prepared to meet with the teacher representatives at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Teachers, seeking a 21.6 per cent hike in pay and fringe benefits, have been picketing since last Tuedsay when they charged the board with stalling in negotiations. Students have shown support of the teacher demands, and yesterday several mothers picketed the district office. (See photo, page 6.)

During a short open session, the board voted 4-3 to lease space from standard growth properties to house district administration offices at the San Marin Professional building at a cost of $9,000 a year.

Trustees Carolyn M. Crabtree, Elizabeth Mertel and Jan Murray opposed the expenditure.

Bunker said the current administration building will be used for North Marin High School, a continuation school now in leased quarters at a cost of $8640 a year.

Volunteers For Center Pick Name

The new volunteer organization formed to help support the Marin Suicide Prevention Center last night tentatively decided to call itself "Incorporated Lifesavers," according to Richard Reubin, executive director of the center.

The group's first fundraising activity will be to man a booth selling antique dishes and other collector's items, Friday and Saturday at the "Village Fair" in the Novato Community Center.

At last night's meeting, the group filled out its first slate of officers, electing June Grime vice president, Judy Yost secretary and Peggy Gartman treasurer. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. April 24 in the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

CARS

—to 90 per cent below those of 1970 models.

Ruckelshaus said he had "chosen to phase in the catalyst because of the potential societal disruption involved in attempting to apply this new technology" to all cars in a single year.

He said he chose California as a test area for the toughest pollution standard because it "has an especially serious air quality problem."

Ruckelshaus called his decision a compromise that would provide for "an orderly phase-in of new technology" and would continue the "momentum of progress toward reducing auto emissions."

At the same time he said the decision would avoid "the possibility of economic turmoil" if the industry was forced to comply with the 1975 standard.

Environmentalists said the delay was a major setback for the clean air campaign because the nation's congested cities are depending on reduced auto pollution to meet the requirements of the Clean Air Act. If cars continue to pollute, the urban leaders say, the costs of meeting the act's standards would be prohibitive.

Ralph Nader accused Ruckelshaus of bowing to White House pressure by granting the delay.

Woman Is Hurt In Van Crash

A 26-year-old San Geronimo woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with injuries suffered when she was flung from a careening car in the San Geronimo Valley yesterday.

Susan Glassman, of 6400 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, suffered a broken left arm, broken pelvis and multiple scrapes, hospital officials said.

The California Highway Patrol said she was a passenger in a van driven by Mitchell L. Woods, 21, also of the San Geronimo address.

Mitchell's car was eastbound on Sir Francis Drake just west of Nicasio Valley Road at 11 a.m., officers said, when it skidded into an embankment, turned on its side and slid along the highway.

Officers said Mitchell told them he took his eyes off the road for a moment just before the accident.

Summer School Plans On Agenda

The San Anselmo School District board will review plans for summer school this year when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Red Hill School library.

The board will also consider acquiring burglar alarms to improve school security systems, discuss alternative approaches to education and consider a proposal to close Isabel Cook School within three years due to declining enrollment.

Trustees will also consider salary proposals by the elementary teachers association.

Tam High Grant Approval Expected

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A $51,859 federal grant for Tamalpais High School District's compensatory education program is scheduled for approval tomorrow by the California State Board of Education.

The grant, providing $346 for each of 150 students participating, would fund the program through next Aug. 31, according to the state Department of Education's recommendation for approval.

Terra Linda Group In Support Of Nixon

The board of directors of the Terra Linda Gardens cooperative housing complex has endorsed Jack G. Nixon for election to the San Rafael City Council, according to board president Robert H. Caro.

Caro noted that San Rafael Manor, the corporate name of the 160-unit complex at Los Gamos Road and Manuel Freitas Parkway, houses about 250 residents.

Report Of Open House Erroneous

Sir Francis Drake High School news bureau has reported that the Marin County Superintendent of Schools erred in announcing an open house tonight at that high school.

There will not be an open house, but the social studies department will outline its program for parents of students in that department at 8 p.m. today in the little theater.

Court Now Has General Plan Briefs

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — The State Supreme Court yesterday took under submission arguments in the Selby vs. San Buenaventura case, which may determine how far local government can go in restricting use of private property.

A ruling is expected sometime next month.

William T. Selby, a Ventura attorney and real estate broker, brought an inverse condemnation suit against the City of San Buenaventura and County of Ventura alleging the two agencies, through a general plan, had deprived him of property rights.

His contention was upheld by a state Court of Appeals, which found the two agencies had inversely condemned his land by not allowing him to build apartments.

In its ruling, the appellate court said provisions of the Ventura General Plan — similar to provisions in Marin's proposed general plan — were tantamount to condemnation of private property.

The ruling concerned Marin officials since the Marin plan shows large areas to be left in open space.

According to Marin Deputy County Counsel George J. Silvestri Jr., who attended yesterday's hearing, the high court gave no indication whether it agreed with the lower court's findings.

Water Board Vacancy Filled

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday appointed Lily Cuneo of San Francisco to the San Fracisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

She takes a seat that has been vacant almost 12 months.

Mrs. Cuneo, a Republican, is a partner in a furniture company. Her husband is a retired executive for a lock company.

She is a member of the board of directors of the Opera Guild, Art Institute, Opera Association, Salesian Boys Club, Guide Dogs for the Blind and Children's Hospital.

Her term expires in September of 1976.

Her appointment still leaves the nine-member board one short. A. R. Turturici of San Jose resigned two months ago.

Beautification Members Named

The Larkspur Chamber of Commerce yesterday appointed two delegates to the city's new Larkspur Beautification Committee headed by Councilman Joan Sestak.

The chamber representatives will be Robert Busse and Harriet Barry, according to Sue Schaefer, chamber president.

Chamber members heard Carroll A. Snyker, manager of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, report on current Marin County growth, particularly in the industrial areas along Highway 101 north of San Rafael.

Closed Session Set By Dixie Trustees

The Dixie School District board will meet in closed session at 7:30 p.m. today to decide whether the educational program at Vallecito School is suitable for a child whose parents have requested the district pay tuition for him at private school.

The board will meet in open session at 8 p.m. to consider a wage proposal from the Dixie Teachers Association's Certificated Employee Council and review association views of a planned staff reduction of 15 teachers next year.

'Tires Slashed On Patrol Cars

Seven tires were slashed on two California Highway Patrol cars in the parking lot of the Lyons Restaurant in Greenbrae last night, Larkspur police reported.

Patrol officer Vincent A. Williams's car had three slashed tires and Officer Edwin Scott, four tires, while the two took a coffee break between 8:40 and 9 p.m., investigators said. A knife or icepick was used.

Vandals Shred O'Toole Signs

Five signs promoting Thomas R. O'Toole's candidacy for San Rafael City Council were shredded by vandals on Arias Drive yesterday morning, according to Andrea Boggs, O'Toole's campaign coordinator.

In addition, dozens of O'Toole signs posted in Terra Linda have disappeared, she said.

gift horse in the mouth for too long," he said.

Meyer insisted that the bridge district has no plans for using the Mill Valley right-of-way for transit and wants only to secure the land for public use, possibly to assure a Mill Valley bike path there some day.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard agreed that if the right-of-way is split up and reverts to its original owners, city plans for the property will be blocked. "One man in Scott Valley might buy land near his house for a swimming pool," she said. "Another might add it to his backyard. Then how would you keep it together for a bike path?"

But Councilman Robert E. Capron argued that letting the bridge district get control of the land is a "big risk." "Ten years from now they might not be able to afford buying any other land for a transit corridor, and they might be pushed into using it," he said. "The risk is there, and it terrifies me."

Councilman Robert E. Burton urged in vain that the council stick with its February endorsement of use of the right-of-way for transit north of East Blithedale. He said this move would actually block most transit use since it would be hard to run heavy traffic on an isolated strip of right-of-way.

Scott Valley residents said they had been shocked by the council's February action.

"Our homes border the right-of-way, and our children play there," said Thomas McNally.

"We don't want this land used for any transit — trains or buses," said Harry Andrews.

Several urged the council to turn the right-of-way into a bike path.

Meyer responded that federal funds would probably be available for the city to buy the land for this purpose when the original loan lapses.

"But in eight or nine years, if we came to them with the money for a path they would say, 'Sorry, we'd like to help out, but we have to use this land for transit,' " said Capron.

Mayor Barnard and Burton voted against resisting any transit on the right-of-way.

Passenger Hurt In Cycle Mishap

A motorcycle passenger suffered a broken leg in Corte Madera when he jumped off the vehicle while it was moving, Corte Madera police reported today.

Mark B. Leonhard, 16, of 95 Main Street, San Quentin Village, was reported in good condition at Marin General Hospital, with a broken right leg.

Police said he was injured at 9:40 a.m. yesterday, while riding a motorcycle driven by Edward Lynn Zith, 18, of 351 Willow Street, Corte Madera. As Zith rounded the corner of Willow and Baltimore Avenue, preparing to stop, Leonhard tried to get off and was thrown to the pavement, officers said.

Bon Air Road Development Set

Developer Horst Hans won variance requests from the Larkspur Planning Commission last night for construction of an office development on Bon Air Road to be known as Sohner Plaza.

The variances, for use of a specialized glass and to enable construction of a fence higher than normally allowed, will permit the development to be screened from neighbors. Special landscaping also is planned.

The project is to rise at 5 Bon Air Road in the Hillview Gardens area.

Development Committee Review Due

Concerned that its project area committee may not be fulfilling the conditions of its contract, the Marin County Redevelopment Agency board last night appointed a committee to discuss the problem with area group representatives.

Board chairman George H. Gnoss Jr. said the board took the action because "it feels the committee isn't accomplishing" the tasks which the contract calls for. (The area committee was formed by the agency board to advise it in redevelopment matters and to report on community sentiment about the redevelopment project in Marin City.

For example, Gnoss said, the group is charged with meeting regularly under the contract and there is some question whether this has been done. In addition, he said, there has been a failure of communication between the agency board and the committee.

Gnoss said the board also is concerned that the area committee may be violating its contract by appointing replacements for members who have resigned.

The original agreement provides that the agency board initially appoint area committee representatives from Marin City organizations and that an election be held within a year to choose permanent members for the area committee.

He said the board's attorney has indicated that vacancies which occur on the citizen's panel either should be filled by election or appointment by the agency board.

The board selected members Collie B. Gaines and James O. Quiett to serve on the subcommittee, which is to discuss the situation with area committee representatives then provide the board with recommendations on how the problems can be solved. The committee's suggestions are to be presented at a special board meeting April 24.

In other business, the board agreed to notify all Marin City and Tamalpais Valley organizations that the agency is proceeding with formation of an assessment district to finance a second access road out of Marin City.

Gnoss said comments on the assessment district or plans for the road, which is to link Marin City with Tamalpais Valley, should be forwarded to the redevelopment agency.

Nixon Asks Congress To Protect Pensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon urged Congress today to pass new pension legislation to give working people greater assurance of getting full benefits from retirement plans, and even to encourage them to set up their own retirement plans.

The President called for tax breaks for those who want to contribute to their own retirement —even if they also are part of group retirement plans.

Individual employers also would be given much more generous treatment in setting aside money for their own retirement under Nixon's proposals. The amount of such contributions that could be deducted from income tax payments would be tripled — from the present maximum $2,500 to $7,500 a year.

For individual workers, as much as $1,500 a year toward retirement savings would be tax deductible. Pension plan contributions by a worker's employer would have to be deducted from the $1,500, however.

Coupled with this, in what Nixon described as an effort to brighten "the retirement picture for America's working men and women," were proposals aimed at seeing that workers do not lose the money contributed by themselves and employers to retirement plans.

"Vesting" is the key word in this. This means that whether or not a worker leaves a job — or even is fired —before retirement, he is entitled to the pension benefits earned during his employment.

There has been some recent movement toward protecting pension rights of a worker after he leaves a job, Nixon said. But he said many private plans still carry overly restrictive requirement for age or length of service or participation before a person is entitled to receive his pension after he resigns or is discharged from a job.

He said his proposals are a refinement of pension reform legislation submitted to Congress in December, 1971, and are based on completed government studies on the pension question and information derived from congressional hearings on pension reform.

The President, in a message to Congress, said he would submit in a few days two bills —a Retirement Benefits Tax Act and an Employee Benefits Protection Act.

To protect older workers particularly, Nixon proposed that half of all pension benefits earned by a worker be considered vested — which means a person is entitled to the amount contributed to his retirement — when his age plus the number of years he has participated in a pension plan adds to 50.

From that starting point, an additional 10 per cent of all the benefits earned would be vested each year so that the pension would be fully vested five years later.

The President said that under this formula, the proportion of full-time workers in private retirement plans with vested pension benefits would almost double —from 32 per cent to 61 per cent.

Among participants over 40, the percentage of vested benefits would rise from 40 per cent to about 90 per cent, he said.

To avoid excessive pension cost increases, the new law would apply only to benefits earned after the bill becomes effective although the number of years a worker participated in the pension plan prior to enactment would count toward meeting the vesting standard.

Nixon said, "This reform would help to reduce the frequency and magnitude of benefits losses when pension plans terminate." But he said he was not yet ready to recommend — as he said had been suggested —creation of a government-sponsored program to insure workers against suffering pension losses.

COUNTY

departments because he did not think he would get "much valid information from departments heads whose departments were proposed to be eliminated as departments."

His comments sent a ripple of grumbles across the audience. "Maybe I'm very cynical but I'm paid to be cynical," he said in answer to the uneasiness in the room.

"This is not a take it or leave it proposal," Barrows continued, adding it could be modified by the board on recommendations from other department heads during public hearings.

Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr., recommended to head the new department, was involved in the planning but did not speak yesterday.

Parks and Recreation Commissioner Merritt A. Robinson protested the proposal as submitted and suggested it be sent back with instructions to the county administrator to meet with department heads.

He drew support from Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Michael Wornum, who agreed the three departments involved should develop the plan together, since they would have to work under it.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who proposed the consolidation in January, objected, saying such action would dilute the proposal.

"I don't want a consensus of what the three departments think we will accept," he said, adding the purpose was to consolidate like functions for cost savings and efficiency.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere agreed. "I would hate to infer that the county administrator had to negotiate (his proposals) with department heads."

"They had better be able to talk now," Giacomini said. "They are going to have to provide the services. We can't make it happen with a wave of the magic wand."

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste joined Arrigoni and Roumiguiere in support of Barrows, saying the method of proposing the consolidation insures the public will not be excluded.

A plan developed by the departments would be a compromise plan to which everyone agreed beforehand, he said. "I'm looking for a reorganization to improve efficiency and coordination .. so far it hasn't happened between separate departments."

On a motion by Arrigoni, the matter was set for further discussion May 1. Supervisor Giacomini voted against the motion, protesting the board's refusal to direct the administrator to meet with department heads to discuss the proposal.

In a related action, the board set May 8 for discussion of another proposal to consolidate the probation, welfare and health departments into a new Department of Health and Human Services. There was no discussion.

Novato Pay Request Is Studied

While 20 to 25 raise-seeking teachers picketed outside, the Novato Unified School District board went into a closed session with its negotiating representatives last night on the pay requests.

Supt. James G. Bunker said the board's representatives are prepared to meet with the teacher representatives at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Teachers, seeking a 21.6 per cent hike in pay and fringe benefits, have been picketing since last Tuedsay when they charged the board with stalling in negotiations. Students have shown support of the teacher demands, and yesterday several mothers picketed the district office. (See photo, page 6.)

During a short open session, the board voted 4-3 to lease space from standard growth properties to house district administration offices at the San Marin Professional building at a cost of $9,000 a year.

Trustees Carolyn M. Crabtree, Elizabeth Mertel and Jan Murray opposed the expenditure.

Bunker said the current administration building will be used for North Marin High School, a continuation school now in leased quarters at a cost of $8640 a year.

Volunteers For Center Pick Name

The new volunteer organization formed to help support the Marin Suicide Prevention Center last night tentatively decided to call itself "Incorporated Lifesavers," according to Richard Reubin, executive director of the center.

The group's first fundraising activity will be to man a booth selling antique dishes and other collector's items, Friday and Saturday at the "Village Fair" in the Novato Community Center.

At last night's meeting, the group filled out its first slate of officers, electing June Grime vice president, Judy Yost secretary and Peggy Gartman treasurer. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. April 24 in the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

CARS

—to 90 per cent below those of 1970 models.

Ruckelshaus said he had "chosen to phase in the catalyst because of the potential societal disruption involved in attempting to apply this new technology" to all cars in a single year.

He said he chose California as a test area for the toughest pollution standard because it "has an especially serious air quality problem."

Ruckelshaus called his decision a compromise that would provide for "an orderly phase-in of new technology" and would continue the "momentum of progress toward reducing auto emissions."

At the same time he said the decision would avoid "the possibility of economic turmoil" if the industry was forced to comply with the 1975 standard.

Environmentalists said the delay was a major setback for the clean air campaign because the nation's congested cities are depending on reduced auto pollution to meet the requirements of the Clean Air Act. If cars continue to pollute, the urban leaders say, the costs of meeting the act's standards would be prohibitive.

Ralph Nader accused Ruckelshaus of bowing to White House pressure by granting the delay.

Woman Is Hurt In Van Crash

A 26-year-old San Geronimo woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with injuries suffered when she was flung from a careening car in the San Geronimo Valley yesterday.

Susan Glassman, of 6400 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, suffered a broken left arm, broken pelvis and multiple scrapes, hospital officials said.

The California Highway Patrol said she was a passenger in a van driven by Mitchell L. Woods, 21, also of the San Geronimo address.

Mitchell's car was eastbound on Sir Francis Drake just west of Nicasio Valley Road at 11 a.m., officers said, when it skidded into an embankment, turned on its side and slid along the highway.

Officers said Mitchell told them he took his eyes off the road for a moment just before the accident.

Summer School Plans On Agenda

The San Anselmo School District board will review plans for summer school this year when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Red Hill School library.

The board will also consider acquiring burglar alarms to improve school security systems, discuss alternative approaches to education and consider a proposal to close Isabel Cook School within three years due to declining enrollment.

Trustees will also consider salary proposals by the elementary teachers association.

Tam High Grant Approval Expected

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A $51,859 federal grant for Tamalpais High School District's compensatory education program is scheduled for approval tomorrow by the California State Board of Education.

The grant, providing $346 for each of 150 students participating, would fund the program through next Aug. 31, according to the state Department of Education's recommendation for approval.

Terra Linda Group In Support Of Nixon

The board of directors of the Terra Linda Gardens cooperative housing complex has endorsed Jack G. Nixon for election to the San Rafael City Council, according to board president Robert H. Caro.

Caro noted that San Rafael Manor, the corporate name of the 160-unit complex at Los Gamos Road and Manuel Freitas Parkway, houses about 250 residents.

Report Of Open House Erroneous

Sir Francis Drake High School news bureau has reported that the Marin County Superintendent of Schools erred in announcing an open house tonight at that high school.

There will not be an open house, but the social studies department will outline its program for parents of students in that department at 8 p.m. today in the little theater.

Court Now Has General Plan Briefs

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — The State Supreme Court yesterday took under submission arguments in the Selby vs. San Buenaventura case, which may determine how far local government can go in restricting use of private property.

A ruling is expected sometime next month.

William T. Selby, a Ventura attorney and real estate broker, brought an inverse condemnation suit against the City of San Buenaventura and County of Ventura alleging the two agencies, through a general plan, had deprived him of property rights.

His contention was upheld by a state Court of Appeals, which found the two agencies had inversely condemned his land by not allowing him to build apartments.

In its ruling, the appellate court said provisions of the Ventura General Plan — similar to provisions in Marin's proposed general plan — were tantamount to condemnation of private property.

The ruling concerned Marin officials since the Marin plan shows large areas to be left in open space.

According to Marin Deputy County Counsel George J. Silvestri Jr., who attended yesterday's hearing, the high court gave no indication whether it agreed with the lower court's findings.

Water Board Vacancy Filled

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday appointed Lily Cuneo of San Francisco to the San Fracisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

She takes a seat that has been vacant almost 12 months.

Mrs. Cuneo, a Republican, is a partner in a furniture company. Her husband is a retired executive for a lock company.

She is a member of the board of directors of the Opera Guild, Art Institute, Opera Association, Salesian Boys Club, Guide Dogs for the Blind and Children's Hospital.

Her term expires in September of 1976.

Her appointment still leaves the nine-member board one short. A. R. Turturici of San Jose resigned two months ago.

Beautification Members Named

The Larkspur Chamber of Commerce yesterday appointed two delegates to the city's new Larkspur Beautification Committee headed by Councilman Joan Sestak.

The chamber representatives will be Robert Busse and Harriet Barry, according to Sue Schaefer, chamber president.

Chamber members heard Carroll A. Snyker, manager of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, report on current Marin County growth, particularly in the industrial areas along Highway 101 north of San Rafael.

Closed Session Set By Dixie Trustees

The Dixie School District board will meet in closed session at 7:30 p.m. today to decide whether the educational program at Vallecito School is suitable for a child whose parents have requested the district pay tuition for him at private school.

The board will meet in open session at 8 p.m. to consider a wage proposal from the Dixie Teachers Association's Certificated Employee Council and review association views of a planned staff reduction of 15 teachers next year.

Tires Slashed On Patrol Cars

Seven tires were slashed on two California Highway Patrol cars in the parking lot of the Lyons Restaurant in Greenbrae last night, Larkspur police reported.

Patrol officer Vincent A. Williams's car had three slashed tires and Officer Edwin Scott, four tires, while the two took a coffee break between 8:40 and 9 p.m., investigators said. A knife or icepick was used.

Vandals Shred O'Toole Signs

Five signs promoting Thomas R. O'Toole's candidacy for San Rafael City Council were shredded by vandals on Arias Drive yesterday morning, according to Andrea Boggs, O'Toole's campaign coordinator.

In addition, dozens of O'Toole signs posted in Terra Linda have disappeared, she said.

"But in eight or nine years, if we came to them with the money for a path they would say, 'Sorry, we'd like to help out, but we have to use this land for transit,' " said Capron.

Mayor Barnard and Burton voted against resisting any transit on the right-of-way.

Passenger Hurt In Cycle Mishap

A motorcycle passenger suffered a broken leg in Corte Madera when he jumped off the vehicle while it was moving, Corte Madera police reported today.

Mark B. Leonhard, 16, of 95 Main Street, San Quentin Village, was reported in good condition at Marin General Hospital, with a broken right leg.

Police said he was injured at 9:40 a.m. yesterday, while riding a motorcycle driven by Edward Lynn Zith, 18, of 351 Willow Street, Corte Madera. As Zith rounded the corner of Willow and Baltimore Avenue, preparing to stop, Leonhard tried to get off and was thrown to the pavement, officers said.

The variances, for use of a specialized glass and to enable construction of a fence higher than normally allowed, will permit the development to be screened from neighbors. Special landscaping also is planned.

PARENTS SUPPORT TEACHERS' DEMAND

Mothers of students in the Novato Unified School District yesterday picketed Novato high school showing that they support the teachers in the district in their demand for higher salaries. The teachers a week ago stopped the regular meeting of the board of trustees by stomping, clapping and shouting their demands for higher wages. The teachers have not had a pay increase in three years.

Sterner Hand Urged On Drunken Drivers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Thousands of California motorists with two or more drunken driving convictions are being freed by the courts to sit behind the wheel again.

Some judges are throwing out their own prior convictions of drunken drivers so the motorist will be handled as a first-time offender and be punished less severely.

"It seems to me they are going to great lengths to circumvent the intent of the Legislature," says E. Keith Ball, the state's man in charge of licensing drivers.

California Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski and Motor Vehicles Director Robert Cozens say they are alarmed at the situation and have appealed to municipal and justice court judges for firmer action.

So far, they say, there has been little noticeable change and, if anything, more and more prior drunken driving convictions are being invaldated by the courts.

Records of the state Department of Motor Vehicles disclose that last year approximately one out of every three drunken driving convictions involving a prior conviction was declared invalid.

Pudinski, who targets the drinking driver as the No. 1 highway menace, asserts that in handling repeat offenders as first-timers, the courts have failed to make the drunk-on-wheels "socially unacceptable."

"I can arrest all the drunks in the West but if they are not going to be prosecuted and told that their acts are socially unacceptable, I'm still going to have the problem," said the nononsense CHP chief.

For the first offense, the judge may fine the driver $250 to $500 or sentence him to serve 30-days to six months in jail. He also may recommend suspension of the offender's drivers license, but few do.

The more severe second conviction carries a $250 to $1,000 fine and a jail term of five-days to one year in jail, if the second offense occurs within seven years of the first. The driver's license must be suspended for one year and cannot be returned until he produces proof that he is covered by automobile insurance.

At the core of the issue is a 1969 state Supreme Court decision (Mitchell vs. Orr) and a U.S. Supreme Court ruling which allow courts to invalidate a repeat offender's prior conviction for drunken driving if the first judge failed to inform him of is rights before he pleaded guilty.

In 1969, the California monthly average of prior drunken driving convictions being declared invalid was 161. In four years, the total has soared to 1,048 a month.

If a prior conviction is invalidated, the repeat performer is handled as first-timer who often pays the fine and keeps his drivers license.

"We say that is wrong," Pudinski protested in an interview." "These are repeaters."

He expressed "sympathy" for the problems of judges who cite overcrowded court calendars and a shortage of manpower and funds to handle huge caseloads.

"But I can't ignore my problem," Pudinski said. "The drunk driver is killing people in California.

"The courts have the power to make drunk driving socially unacceptable because they are the ones who weigh the case and the penalties. They are the catalyst. They are part of this whole spectrum of traffic law enforcement which must carry out their part of the job in order to make our part of the job effective."

Cozens charged the courts with making a "wholesale application" of the state court's 1969 ruling in order to avoid meting out the more severe penalties required for a second or subsequent conviction

"Judges have told me they find that the mandated penalties in some instances are too harsh and the only way they can get around it is to find the prior conviction invalid," he said.

Many courts are reluctant to suspend the driving privilege, Cozens said, because this could prevent a breadwinner from driving to and from his job. He added:

"It seems to be from my vantage point that today's public accepts the drinking driver —up to the point of a fatal accident. He isn't ostracized in society and maybe this is because there are so many of them."

One possible partial remedy cited by Cozens might be creation by the legislature of a "limited" drivers license that would allow a convicted drunken driver to drive to work and back but no where else.

He said judges are invalidating their own decisions on repeat offenders after finding they themselves failed to advise a defendant of his rights before he pleaded guilty.

"It seems incongruous to us that a judge can be aware of the fact that an individual had not been properly processed for a prior conviction without making certain that his court is not committing the same error again," he said.

Meantime, a class action law suit has been filed in Los Angeles seeking to recover $500 million in drunken driving fines paid by persons whose convictions later were ruled invalid.

The suit was brought by two Anaheim citizens on behalf of themselves and an estimated 100,000 other similarly affected Californians. The case s pending.

Suit Seeks Damages For Quarry

American Savings and Loan Association filed suit yesterday against Corte Madera, claiming the town council cut the value of an old quarry American owns by $750,000 when the property was rezoned last year.

The suit filed by Oakland attorney Edmund L. Regalia claims the town rezoned the 20.5 acres behind the Corte Madera Regional Library to reduce its value and buy it for open space "at a vastly reduced price."

The Corte Madera Town Council voted Dec. 18 to move the wooded hillside from a multiple residential zoning allowing 440 units to a planned unit development category permitting only 109 units, according to the suit.

The suit labeled the rezoning "arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory" and likened it to spot zoning because neighboring property is used for apartments.

The suit also attacks the decision on the grounds that public hearings were improperly noticed and the single-family planned unit development category was not defined by the town codes and thus, invalid.

In addition to the damages, the savings and loan association is seeking an order barring enforcement of the council ruling.

The owner acquired the property for $442,289 in 1967 through foreclosure and the value has since risen to almost $700,000, according to the company.

Howard Lawson, vice president and property manager for the association, has asserted the rezoning would decrease the value of the land by at least $300,000.

The town council rejected the damage claim Feb. 20, thus clearing the way for the lawsuit.

To Host Candidate

Mr. and Mrs. R. Richard Courier will host a coffee for Petaluma City Council candidate James Harberson at 4 p.m. Sunday at their home, 1716 Pauline Way, Petaluma.

Stan's Headquarter Lot Permit Approved

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved a use permit for a warehouse and office facility proposed by Stan Goldsmith for a three-acre parcel at 1851 Francisco Boulevard.

The development will become the office headquarters for Stan's Sporting Goods of San Rafael, according to Charles J. Linthicum, senior planner.

Linthicum said the development was unanimously approved by the commission even though the city's new general plan does not yet show what land use will be made of surrounding areas, now classified as an industrial zone.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

POSTPONED — Put over to April 24 consideration of a 10-foot setback for development of a lot at 197 Altura Way, and consideration of a five-unit apartment complex proposed for 123 Union Street.

PARKING LOT — Reviewed plans for a parking lot proposed for a parcel across from city hall on Fifth Avenue, and said several aging trees on the parcel will be removed to make way for the lot. The trees also present a safety hazard, Linthicum said. Plans call for landscaping the 42-space lot with new trees, he added.

STREET — Made no recommendation on the name of a new street being built in East San Rafael as an extension of Jacoby Street.

REMODELING — Approved remodeling plans for commercial buildings at 1701 and 2138 Fourth Street.

DELAY — Said a backlog of work in the planning department will result in delays of up to two weeks for setting hearings of new development applications.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. April 24.

Goldwater Says GOP Periled By Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today that the Republican party may be seriously hurt in the next election and could lose the White House in 1976 unless President Nixon deals quickly with the Watergate bugging case.

Expressing sentiments stated earlier by conservative Republicans —but speaking in far stronger terms —Goldwater said in an interview with the Christian Science Monitor: "The Watergate. The Watergate. It's beginning to smell like the Teapot Dome. I mean there's a smell to it. Let's get rid of the smell."

A convicted Watergate conspirator, James W. McCord Jr., who was security chief for the Committee to Re-elect the President at the time of the June 17, 1972, break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters, resumed testimony today before a federal grand jury — his fourth day before the panel.

A source close to the investigation said McCord had given the grand jury records showing he was paid $3,000 a month, apparently to keep quiet about the bugging.

The source described the late Dorothy Hunt, wife of former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt Jr., who pleaded guilty as a Watergate participant, as the person who passed the money to McCord. Mrs. Hunt was killed in an airliner crash in Chicago Dec. 8 with $10,000 in her possession.

Expressing concern about the impact of Watergate on Republicans, Goldwater said in an interview with the Monitor in his Senate office:

"All of us who support Nixon are going to be on the line in the 1974 election. When they say, 'Are you still supporting the President?' I'd say, 'Yes, I'm still supporting the President'. And I'd say that even if ... No, I won't say that. I might not support him if it turns out he knew about all this and kept his mouth shut. But I don't think he knew about it."

Yo-Yo Contest To Be Friday

Mill Valley residents under 16 years of age are eligible to compete in the city yo-yo championships to be held at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the Mill Valley Community Recreation Center.

First place winners in the boys and girls divisions will be eligible to compete in the Northern California championships to be held May 5 in San Jose. A $500 scholarship will be awarded the Northern California winner.

The Mill Valley contest will measure skill in 10 basic tricks: the spinner, walking the dog, the creeper, around the world, skin the cat, rocking the baby, sleeping beauty, three-leaf clover, loop the loop and man on the flying trapeze.

Judging the contest will be John Garber of the city parks and recreation department and Stephen Bawl of the Organic Hair Care Center in Mill Valley.

Link Made To Hair, Good Marks

DALLAS (UPI) — A University of Michigan study reported today that the hair of students with high academic grades contains substantially more zinc and copper than the hair of students with low grades.

Michigan Chemistry Prof. Adon A. Gordus told the 165th national meeting of the American Chemical Society he has been directing a study of hair samples taken from George Washington, John Paul Jones, Eskimos, students and others, analyzing them for 38 trace elements to find effects of the human intake on environmental contaminants.

"By comparing historical hair samples with modern hair samples we hope to establish the extent of human intake of potentially harmful elements as industrialization has advanced," Gordus said.

But he said all the factors affecting the makeup of modern hair must first be identified before a valid comparison can be made with historical hair.

One thing Gordus said his study seems to show is a correlation between academic grades and hair content.

"It appears that those students with the highest grade-point average frequently tend to have higher than normal zinc and copper content in their hair, but lower than normal iodine content," Gordus said. He said the reverse is generally true of students at the lower end of the grade-point spectrum.

PARENTS SUPPORT TEACHERS' DEMAND

Mothers of students in the Novato Unified School District yesterday picketed Novato high school showing that they support the teachers in the district in their demand for higher salaries. The teachers a week ago stopped the regular meeting of the board of trustees by stomping, clapping and shouting their demands for higher wages. The teachers have not had a pay increase in three years.

Goldwater Says GOP Periled By Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today that the Republican party may be seriously hurt in the next election and could lose the White House in 1976 unless President Nixon deals quickly with the Watergate bugging case.

Expressing sentiments stated earlier by conservative Republicans —but speaking in far stronger terms —Goldwater said in an interview with the Christian Science Monitor: "The Watergate. The Watergate. It's beginning to smell like the Teapot Dome. I mean there's a smell to it. Let's get rid of the smell."

A convicted Watergate conspirator, James W. McCord Jr., who was security chief for the Committee to Re-elect the President at the time of the June 17, 1972, break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters, resumed testimony today before a federal grand jury — his fourth day before the panel.

A source close to the investigation said McCord had given the grand jury records showing he was paid $3,000 a month, apparently to keep quiet about the bugging.

The source described the late Dorothy Hunt, wife of former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt Jr., who pleaded guilty as a Watergate participant, as the person who passed the money to McCord. Mrs. Hunt was killed in an airliner crash in Chicago Dec. 8 with $10,000 in her possession.

Expressing concern about the impact of Watergate on Republicans, Goldwater said in an interview with the Monitor in his Senate office:

"All of us who support Nixon are going to be on the line in the 1974 election. When they say, 'Are you still supporting the President?' I'd say, 'Yes, I'm still supporting the President'. And I'd say that even if ... No, I won't say that. I might not support him if it turns out he knew about all this and kept his mouth shut. But I don't think he knew about it."

Yo-Yo Contest To Be Friday

Mill Valley residents under 16 years of age are eligible to compete in the city yo-yo championships to be held at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the Mill Valley Community Recreation Center.

First place winners in the boys and girls divisions will be eligible to compete in the Northern California championships to be held May 5 in San Jose. A $500 scholarship will be awarded the Northern California winner.

The Mill Valley contest will measure skill in 10 basic tricks: the spinner, walking the dog,the creeper, around the world, skin the cat, rocking the baby, sleeping beauty, three-leaf clover, loop the loop and man on the flying trapeze.

Judging the contest will be John Garber of the city parks and recreation department and Stephen Bawl of the Organic Hair Care Center in Mill Valley.

Link Made To Hair, Good Marks

DALLAS (UPI) — A University of Michigan study reported today that the hair of students with high academic grades contains substantially more zinc and copper than the hair of students with low grades.

Michigan Chemistry Prof. Adon A. Gordus told the 165th national meeting of the American Chemical Society he has been directing a study of hair samples taken from George Washington, John Paul Jones, Eskimos, students and others, analyzing them for 38 trace elements to find effects of the human intake on environmental contaminants.

"By comparing historical hair samples with modern hair samples we hope to establish the extent of human intake of potentially harmful elements as industrialization has advanced," Gordus said.

But he said all the factors affecting the makeup of modern hair must first be identified before a valid comparison can be made with historical hair.

One thing Gordus said his study seems to show is a correlation between academic grades and hair content.

"It appears that those students with the highest grade-point average frequently tend to have higher than normal zinc and copper content in their hair, but lower than normal iodine content," Gordus said. He said the reverse is generally true of students at the lower end of the grade-point spectrum.

Sterner Hand Urged On Drunken Drivers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Thousands of California motorists with two or more drunken driving convictions are being freed by the courts to sit behind the wheel again.

Some judges are throwing out their own prior convictions of drunken drivers so the motorist will be handled as a first-time offender and be punished less severely.

"It seems to me they are going to great lengths to circumvent the intent of the Legislature," says E. Keith Ball, the state's man in charge of licensing drivers.

California Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski and Motor Vehicles Director Robert Cozens say they are alarmed at the situation and have appealed to municipal and justice court judges for firmer action.

So far, they say, there has been little noticeable change and, if anything, more and more prior drunken driving convictions are being invaldated by the courts.

Records of the state Department of Motor Vehicles disclose that last year approximately one out of every three drunken driving convictions involving a prior conviction was declared invalid.

Pudinski, who targets the drinking driver as the No. 1 highway menace, asserts that in handling repeat offenders as first-timers, the courts have failed to make the drunk-on-wheels "socially unacceptable."

"I can arrest all the drunks in the West but if they are not going to be prosecuted and told that their acts are socially unacceptable, I'm still going to have the problem," said the nononsense CHP chief.

For the first offense, the judge may fine the driver $250 to $500 or sentence him to serve 30-days to six months in jail. He also may recommend suspension of the offender's drivers license, but few do.

The more severe second conviction carries a $250 to $1,000 fine and a jail term of five-days to one year in jail, if the second offense occurs within seven years of the first. The driver's license must be suspended for one year and cannot be returned until he produces proof that he is covered by automobile insurance.

At the core of the issue is a 1969 state Supreme Court decision (Mitchell vs. Orr) and a U.S. Supreme Court ruling which allow courts to invalidate a repeat offender's prior conviction for drunken driving if the first judge failed to inform him of is rights before he pleaded guilty.

In 1969, the California monthly average of prior drunken driving convictions being declared invalid was 161. In four years, the total has soared to 1,048 a month.

If a prior conviction is invalidated, the repeat performer is handled as first-timer who often pays the fine and keeps his drivers license.

"We say that is wrong," Pudinski protested in an interview." "These are repeaters."

He expressed "sympathy" for the problems of judges who cite overcrowded court calendars and a shortage of manpower and funds to handle huge caseloads.

"But I can't ignore my problem," Pudinski said. "The drunk driver is killing people in California.

"The courts have the power to make drunk driving socially unacceptable because they are the ones who weigh the case and the penalties. They are the catalyst. They are part of this whole spectrum of traffic law enforcement which must carry out their part of the job in order to make our part of the job effective."

Cozens charged the courts with making a "wholesale application" of the state court's 1969 ruling in order to avoid meting out the more severe penalties required for a second or subsequent conviction

"Judges have told me they find that the mandated penalties in some instances are too harsh and the only way they can get around it is to find the prior conviction invalid," he said.

Many courts are reluctant to suspend the driving privilege, Cozens said, because this could prevent a breadwinner from driving to and from his job. He added:

"It seems to be from my vantage point that today's public accepts the drinking driver —up to the point of a fatal accident. He isn't ostracized in society and maybe this is because there are so many of them."

One possible partial remedy cited by Cozens might be creation by the legislature of a "limited" drivers license that would allow a convicted drunken driver to drive to work and back but no where else.

He said judges are invalidating their own decisions on repeat offenders after finding they themselves failed to advise a defendant of his rights before he pleaded guilty.

"It seems incongruous to us that a judge can be aware of the fact that an individual had not been properly processed for a prior conviction without making certain that his court is not committing the same error again," he said.

Meantime, a class action law suit has been filed in Los Angeles seeking to recover $500 million in drunken driving fines paid by persons whose convictions later were ruled invalid.

The suit was brought by two Anaheim citizens on behalf of themselves and an estimated 100,000 other similarly affected Californians. The case s pending.

Suit Seeks Damages For Quarry

American Savings and Loan Association filed suit yesterday against Corte Madera, claiming the town council cut the value of an old quarry American owns by $750,000 when the property was rezoned last year.

The suit filed by Oakland attorney Edmund L. Regalia claims the town rezoned the 20.5 acres behind the Corte Madera Regional Library to reduce its value and buy it for open space "at a vastly reduced price."

The Corte Madera Town Council voted Dec. 18 to move the wooded hillside from a multiple residential zoning allowing 440 units to a planned unit development category permitting only 109 units, according to the suit.

The suit labeled the rezoning "arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory" and likened it to spot zoning because neighboring property is used for apartments.

The suit also attacks the decision on the grounds that public hearings were improperly noticed and the single-family planned unit development category was not defined by the town codes and thus, invalid.

In addition to the damages, the savings and loan association is seeking an order barring enforcement of the council ruling.

The owner acquired the property for $442,289 in 1967 through foreclosure and the value has since risen to almost $700,000, according to the company.

Howard Lawson, vice president and property manager for the association, has asserted the rezoning would decrease the value of the land by at least $300,000.

The town council rejected the damage claim Feb. 20, thus clearing the way for the lawsuit.

Stan's Headquarter Lot Permit Approved

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved a use permit for a warehouse and office facility proposed by Stan Goldsmith for a three-acre parcel at 1851 Francisco Boulevard.

The development will become the office headquarters for Stan's Sporting Goods of San Rafael, according to Charles J. Linthicum, senior planner.

Linthicum said the development was unanimously approved by the commission even though the city's new general plan does not yet show what land use will be made of surrounding areas, now classified as an industrial zone.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

POSTPONED — Put over to April 24 consideration of a 10-foot setback for development of a lot at 197 Altura Way, and consideration of a five-unit apartment complex proposed for 123 Union Street.

PARKING LOT — Reviewed plans for a parking lot proposed for a parcel across from city hall on Fifth Avenue, and said several aging trees on the parcel will be removed to make way for the lot. The trees also present a safety hazard, Linthicum said. Plans call for landscaping the 42-space lot with new trees, he added.

STREET — Made no recommendation on the name of a new street being built in East San Rafael as an extension of Jacoby Street.

REMODELING — Approved remodeling plans for commercial buildings at 1701 and 2138 Fourth Street.

DELAY — Said a backlog of work in the planning department will result in delays of up to two weeks for setting hearings of new development applications.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. April 24.

San Anselmo Councilmen Reach Creekside Parking Lot Pact

San Anselmo City councilmen last night finally reached a compromise "which we know won't please either side" on how to improve the creekside parking lot in downtown San Anselmo. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1.)

The unbeautified lot, into which as many as 100 cars now squeeze, has been eyed for a park by some residents, for a combination park-parking lot by others and for a parking lot with plantings by many merchants.

City officials have considered at least two plans, one with 50 parking spaces and another with about 39. Last night after hashing over again the merits of parking vs. plants, the council approved a 45-space lot with "attractive, natural landscaping" and parking below street level.

At Councilman Martin G. Blinder's request, it was agreed that a "permeable" parking material, something other than asphalt be considered.

The city will have plans drawn up, according to Alfred C. Kaeppel, administrator-controller, to meet the council requirements. Mayor Lewis W. Stewart cast the lone vote against the compromise, saying he didn't think the need for more parking spaces had been demonstrated by merchants.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

PARTY — Granted a use permit for a reunion party of recent Sir Francis Drake High School graduates from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. April 20 at 21 Mariposa Avenue.

DENIAL — Turned down an appeal by John Blackwell of the planning commission's denial for a variance to build a garage-workroom-storage building on his property at 149 Scenic Avenue.

SCHENCK — Adopted by a 3-2 vote a 16-unit maximum as the desirable number of units on the controversial Schenck property.

OPEN SPACE — Referred to the planning commission and the city attorney suggestions by the open space committee on how to obtain open space for decision on whether they are feasible and legal.

RETIREMENT — Adopted an amendment to city policy to allow for safety employees to retire at age 50 instead of 55 if they wish at a reduced annuity.

POLICE — Agreed to purchase two patrol cars for the police department at a total cost of $7,000.

FIREMAN — Hired Robert Ecke as a probationary fireman effective Monday at a monthly salary of $822 a month.

Innocent Plea Entered On Murder Charge

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Walker L. Moore, 25, of Rohnert Park, pleaded innocent yesterday in Sonoma County Superior Court to a murder charge.

Judge John Moskowitz set a jury trial to begin May 15. A request to reduce the $50,000 bail was denied by Moskowitz.

Moore was arrested March 12 on suspicion of shooting Sue E. Candida, 25, after an argument at a Santa Rosa apartment. Miss Candida, who was not involved in the argument, was shot twice by a shotgun fired from outside the apartment building.

Blinder Enters Contest: A Hub Greenery Windfall

Psychiatrist Martin G. Blinder, called "San Anselmo's answer to the 'Wizard of Oz' " by a fellow city councilman, last night proudly announced in a sort of show-and-tell period that he has won a nationwide essay contest.

Mindful that San Anselmo well may have use for some "grapes and berries that would grow wild" on future open space, Blinder said he entered a nationwide contest sponsored by Stark Brothers nursery in Louisiana, Mo.

Apparently unabashed by a 50-word limit, Blinder, who often expresses his views at greater length, whipped off an essay on "Why I Like Arbor Day."

Last night, before the regular agenda of the San Anselmo City Council, the psychiatrist proudly showed a letter announcing he had won first prize with his theme that "mostly man exploits the earth — but tree planting is the opposite."

Furthermore, the doctor will have his choice of $500 worth of nursery stock from the nursery's catalogue, which will be given to the City of San Anselmo.

Attorney Found Dead From Gunshot Wound

A Sausalito attorney, apparently despondent over problems with his job, shot and killed himself yesterday in the bedroom of his home at 145 Prospect Avenue, the Marin County Coroner's office reported today.

Hugh Higbee Redford, 32, was found at 8:20 p.m. by his roomate, David Baudler, the coroner's office reported. He was lying on the bedroom floor with a gunshot wound in his head. A .30 Caliber rifle was under the body and a box of shells was on the bed.

Redford, an employee of the San Francisco law firm of Skornia, Rosenblum and Gyemant, left a 15-page note saying he was despondent over working conditions at the law office, the coroner said. The note, along with his will, was discovered on the dining room table.

Survivors include his mother, Ione Redford, and a brother, Steve, both of Seattle.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

An Easter egg hunt for Fairfax youngsters will be held at 10:30 a.m. April 14 on the White Hill School field, the city parks and recreation department has announced.

Children three and older may bring their own baskets to hunt for more than 3,000 eggs hidden on the field, according to a parks spokesman.

Brookdale Avenue's 101 Plight

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Property owners on the east side of Brookdale Avenue in San Rafael have been waiting 10 years for the state Division of Highways to buy their property for widening Highway 101; now they have been told they must wait three more years.

"How long can the state tie up a man's property without buying it from him?''demands Leon E. Sigard of 46 Brookdale, one of 16 affected property owners.

On Jan. 26, 1963, the City of San Rafael signed an agreement with the Division of Highways for eventual widening of Highway 101 to eight lanes. A map filed by the state showed the properties that would have to be acquired for the widening. They included all 16 lots on the east side of Brookdale.

After a few years, some of the property owners sought building permits for second houses on the rear of the deep lots, which back up to the existing highway right-of-way between Linden Lane and Myrtle Avenue. They were told no permit could be issued because the property was marked for acquisition by the state.

In March of 1968 — more than five years after the state had signified its intention to buy the property — 15 owners signed a petition to the San Rafael City Council asking for action, either to buy their lots or "unfreeze'' them for sale or development.

The city relayed the request to the Division of Highways. On April 16, 1968, Alan S. Hart, then District 4 engineer for the state agency, wrote:

"Our present planning schedule provides for the acquisition of the properties ... This project was deferred in order to finance construction of the six-lane project which is scheduled to begin this year. I do not anticipate that funds will be available for acquisition of these properties until 1971 or 1972.''

In 1971, John De Rosa of 30 Brookdale sought to dispose of his home and lot because he was entering the State Veterans Home in Yountville. He wrote the Division of Highways asking that it be bought immediately as a hardship case. According to Sigard, he was informed that it would be fiscal 1974-75 before the state could buy the property. DeRosa, however, found a buyer through a real estate broker, and his former home is now rental property.

Early this year, following the death of Mrs. Mary K. Zunino of 36 Brookdale, her daughter, Mrs. Romeo J. Martignoli, who lives next door at 40 Brookdale, wrote the state asking that it buy the Zunino property since it was involved in settlement of the estate.

The reply she received from David Gaston, state right-of-way agent, said:

"Normal right-of-way acquisitions are funded two or three years in advance of an anticipated construction date. We do not expect to have funds on this project until our 1975-76 fiscal year.''

"First it was two or three years from 1963,'' complained Sigard today, speaking as spokesman for the Brookdale owners. "Then, in 1968, we were told it would be 1971 or '72. In 1971, DeRosa was told 1974-75. Now it's 1975-76. I suppose next it will be 1980.

"How long can the state tie up a man's property without buying it?''

Despite the cloud on titles resulting from the state's highway-widening plans, several pieces of property on the east side of the one-block street have changed hands in the past decade.

A vacant lot was sold for taxes. Five other properties — including DeRosa's — have been sold to private buyers and are now rental properties, Sigard said.

All the owners would like to sell, he said — especially since the state has bought property for future right-of-way both below Linden Lane and above Myrtle Avenue, but none on Brookdale.

Brookdale Avenue's 101 Plight

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Property owners on the east side of Brookdale Avenue in San Rafael have been waiting 10 years for the state Division of Highways to buy their property for widening Highway 101; now they have been told they must wait three more years.

"How long can the state tie up a man's property without buying it from him?"demands Leon E. Sigard of 46 Brookdale, one of 16 affected property owners.

On Jan. 26, 1963, the City of San Rafael signed an agreement with the Division of Highways for eventual widening of Highway 101 to eight lanes. A map filed by the state showed the properties that would have to be acquired for the widening. They included all 16 lots on the east side of Brookdale.

After a few years, some of the property owners sought building permits for second houses on the rear of the deep lots, which back up to the existing highway right-of-way between Linden Lane and Myrtle Avenue. They were told no permit could be issued because the property was marked for acquisition by the state.

In March of 1968 — more than five years after the state had signified its intention to buy the property — 15 owners signed a petition to the San Rafael City Council asking for action, either to buy their lots or "unfreeze" them for sale or development.

The city relayed the request to the Division of Highways. On April 16, 1968, Alan S. Hart, then District 4 engineer for the state agency, wrote:

"Our present planning schedule provides for the acquisition of the properties ... This project was deferred in order to finance construction of the six-lane project which is scheduled to begin this year. I do not anticipate that funds will be available for acquisition of these properties until 1971 or 1972."

In 1971, John De Rosa of 30 Brookdale sought to dispose of his home and lot because he was entering the State Veterans Home in Yountville. He wrote the Division of Highways asking that it be bought immediately as a hardship case. According to Sigard, he was informed that it would be fiscal 1974-75 before the state could buy the property. DeRosa, however, found a buyer through a real estate broker, and his former home is now rental property.

Early this year, following the death of Mrs. Mary K. Zunino of 36 Brookdale, her daughter, Mrs. Romeo J. Martignoli, who lives next door at 40 Brookdale, wrote the state asking that it buy the Zunino property since it was involved in settlement of the estate.

The reply she received from David Gaston, state right-of-way agent, said:

"Normal right-of-way acquisitions are funded two or three years in advance of an anticipated construction date. We do not expect to have funds on this project until our 1975-76 fiscal year."

"First it was two or three years from 1963," complained Sigard today, speaking as spokesman for the Brookdale owners. "Then, in 1968, we were told it would be 1971 or '72. In 1971, DeRosa was told 1974-75. Now it's 1975-76. I suppose next it will be 1980.

"How long can the state tie up a man's property without buying it?"

Despite the cloud on titles resulting from the state's highway-widening plans, several pieces of property on the east side of the one-block street have changed hands in the past decade.

A vacant lot was sold for taxes. Five other properties — including DeRosa's — have been sold to private buyers and are now rental properties, Sigard said.

All the owners would like to sell, he said — especially since the state has bought property for future right-of-way both below Linden Lane and above Myrtle Avenue, but none on Brookdale.

Vote Is Set Tuesday On School Bond

A $1.5 Million Issue In Cotati And Rohnert Park

Voters in Rohnert Park and Cotati will decide the fate of a $1.5 million school bond issue when they go to the polls Tuesday.

A total of 4,917 persons is registered to vote in the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Polling places will be at Thomas Page School, Cotati City Hall, Cotati Veteran's Memorial Building, John Reed School, Rohnert Park Junior High, Las Casitas De Sonoma Mobile Home Park, Garden Homes Condominium office, 691 Lincoln Avenue, and Waldo Rohnert School.

The district intends to use only $400,000 for a new, 15-classroom school in the Holiday Park Subdivision of both Rohnert Park and Cotati, obtaining the remainder of the funds needed for the facility, estimated to cost up to $800,000, from the state. The rest of the bond issue, $1.1 million, would be saved by the district for future school construction.

The reason the district must seek approval of bonds beyond the cost of the Holiday Park school at this time is that school boards must sell bonds equaling 5 per cent of a district's assessed valuation to qualify for state aid.

If the bonds are approved Tuesday, the school could be open for classes in the fall of 1974.

The Sonoma County Assessor's Office estimates the bonds would add 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the current district tax rate of $2.68 on a home with a market value of $30,000, the bonds would add $17.25 in taxes the first year, according to Supt. James H. Davidson.

Davidson said the district expects a large influx of new students because of an upsurge in subdivision development in Rohnert Park. The district now has one available classroom at John Reed School and two at Thomas Page School.

The district last asked approval of building bonds in 1962 and was successful.

School board members have said if bonds are rejected, the district will have three optional plans for coping with additional students. Choices include the purchase of additional portable classrooms which could require a tax-rate increase; a change to a year-round school schedule with staggered attendance to stretch school capacities or double sessions. Schools have not been on double sessions since 1964.

Callas Directs Opera Opening

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Thirty-seven years after the original was destroyed by fire, a rebuilt Royal Theatre opened Tuesday with a performance of Verdi's opera "Sicilian Vespers" and a new role for diva Maria Callas.

The opera marked a return from retirement for the temporamental opera star who once reigned over Milan's famous La Scala.

But this time, Miss Callas' role was director rather than performer.

An audience of 1,800, including President Giovanni Leone, were booed by demonstrators. A group of radical students outside the theater itself waved placards and shouted "hospitals, schools, houses"—to protest the spending of money on the theater instead of needed public construction.

Plea Date Set In Morals Case

Douglas Dwight Evans, 43, of Petaluma, is to plead Monday in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to a charge of child molesting.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon released Evans on his own recognizance on the provision he does not associate with anyone under the age of 18. Evans was arrested by Petaluma police April 4 on suspicion of molesting his mentally retarded son.

Pay Toilets Hit

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UHI) — The Nevada Assembly unanimously approved Tuesday a bill banning pay toilets in the state. The measure was sent to the Senate on a 37-0 vote after Assemblywoman Eileen Brookman, D-Las Vegas, said it was "a little money bill aimed at giving some relief to the public."

UNUSUAL SPRING VENTURE

John Kinning of Des Moines can be called a brave person. He was one of a few who ventured out yesterday in what would be the height of the rush hour on a freeway in the Iowa city. His plight: digging his car out of a spring snowstorm as a pedestrian braves the Des Moines River bridge — normally bumper-to-bumper in traffic. The wide-spread storm so far has claimed 42 lives.

Yarbrough Wins Again In Game Of Cat And Mouse With Police

Folksinger Glenn Yarbrough last night again eluded law enforcement officers who have been dogging his concerts throughout Northern California for the past week to arrest him on a criminal charge of failing to support his children.

Yarbrough, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams, did not appear for a concert in Redding by the recently revived Limeliters after two narrow escapes.

On Sunday in Chico, a process server in a related civil case leaped onto the stage during the group's performance to serve a summons on Yarbrough, but the singer fled through a back door, Hyams said.

Last Thursday, Hyams said, he wired the Los Altos Police Department to arrest the former Sausalito man after his first show at the Sand Castle nightclub, but police told the manager of the Limeliters and Yarbrough disappeared. He skipped the group's show the next evening too, Hyams said.

The cat-and-mouse hunt is the product of Yarbrough's alleged refusal to support his ex-wife, Margaret Jones of Inverness, and their children, Glenn Sean, 14, and Stephany, 12.

By not paying since last April, he is in arrears $12,000, Hyams said. Bail was set at that amount on the warrant of arrest issued last Thursday by Judge Robert A. Smallman.

In the civil case stemming from the same nonpayment, Yarbrough was found in contempt of court last August by Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick and ordered to pay $6,300 he was then behind in payments.

But the singer, who was not in court when the ruling was made, "has been staying out of the state for the express purpose of avoiding all this," Hyams said. Yarbrough reportedly has homes in British Columbia, Los Angeles and Honolulu.

Despite the risk of being brought to Marin Courts, Yarbrough, the portly lyric tenor who rose to fame with the Limeliters over a decade ago, has been appearing in concerts throughout California since the group reunited recently.

Why Yarbrough stopped paying 11 years after the divorce was granted in Colorado is unknown, but Hyams theorized the singer may have been carrying through on a threat he made in a newspaper interview in 1971.

Yarbrough told the Los Angeles Times he would cut off his wife unless she let the children go on a five-year, around the world cruise with him.

Yarbrough's plan to sail around the world in his own boat has been written about for a decade, but the trip has not materialized.

Hopefuls Will Appear On Show

Five of the six candidates running for San Rafael City Council to fill two vacancies, will appear on the KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" program tomorrow at 9 a.m.

Appearing will be Lawrence E. Mulryan, Jack G. Nixon, Thomas R. O'Toole, Leo Tinkler and Richard C. Fox. Because of a teaching obligation at Sir Francis Drake High school, Carl J. Brown will be unable to appear.

Questions called into KTIM during the program will be answered. The program will be repeated by tape-recording Sunday at 10 a.m.

Art Center Faces Eviction

The Sausalito Art Center will probably have to move from quarters in the Old Bayside School by Aug. 1 so the structure can be torn down to make way for additional playground area for Sausalito School District students.

And the president of the Sausalito Arts Association board, which runs the center, said today he believes the eviction may result in the demise of the art facility.

"I am skeptical as to whether we have the ability, manpower, intelligence and integrity to begin all over again," said Jack J. Beckerman. "And I don't think we have a legal basis for fighting the school district's move."

The art center's latest problems with its occupancy of the vacant old school began last week, according to Francis Coelho, its new director, when school district officials revealed that the move may be necessary.

Sausalito Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg said he will recommend the eviction to the school district board at its Monday night meeting because the federal government, which owns the land, has requested that the district use the property rather than continue to rent it out.

"The Department of Surplus Property wants the school to increase its use of the property," he said. "And we need additional playground space (for students at the adjacent "new" Bayside School)."

The government is owner of the land on which old and new Bayside schools and the district office are located. Title is scheduled to pass to the school district three years from now "so long as the district meets all the requirements" which the government has set for use of the land, according to Lindberg.

Beckerman said the center itself is partly to blame for its present predicament.

"I don't think this would have happened, at least so casually, if the community was enthusiastic about and involved in the center," he said.

Coelho, former chairman of the San Francisco State College Art Department, has not yet given up hope that the center will survive the move and is already making plans for relocation.

If the eviction notice is forthcoming, he said he will try to get the district to donate the Old Bayside buildings to the center, "so we can take them with us." He is currently searching for land on which to locate a new center and hopes that property, too, will be donated to the group.

The present skirmish over the building is not the first between the school district and the art center which first leased the facility in April 1969.

In July 1971 the school district board voided the lease and told the center to find a new home within 30 days. At that time the board said the government had refused to approve the lease because it had given the land to the district for "strictly education use."

But somehow a compromise was worked out with the federal landlord and in November 1971, the district agreed that the center could remain in the old school building, on a month-to-month basis and with a rent hike from $80 to $150 a month.

Swigert Considers Leaving Agency

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 13 astronaut John L. (Jack) Swigert is considering leaving the space agency to take a position with the U.S. House Science and Astronautics Committee, sources said Tuesday.

Swigert, a last-minute replacement aboard the trouble-plagued Apollo 13 flight to the moon, joined the astronaut corps in April 1966.

Strawberry Leaps Into Master Plan

Five committees were formed last night to work on separate phases of a Strawberry master plan now taking shape under the direction of the Strawberry Area Community Council and the Marin County Planning Department.

Target date for completion of the plan and presentation of a draft version to Strawberry residents is June 11.

Sandra A. Dorsaneo, council secretary, said about 45 persons at the meeting volunteered for committee work and 25 were named to the panels immediately.

The committees suggested by Steven E. Chaum, a representative of the Marin Planning Department who is working with residents on the plan, are schools, open space, transportation public facilities and residential and commercial development.

Committee members are to determine what the situation is in each of the five committee jurisdictions and where residents think things should go by 1980.

A steering committee which will keep an eye on the other five panels will meet at 8:30 p.m. April 26 at the Strawberry Community Building to review the status of the work, Mrs. Dorsaneo said.

With the information they turn in, she said, Chaum will work up a rough draft of a master plan by May 31 and present it to Strawberry residents before taking it to the Marin County Planning Department.

Strawberry residents wishing to work on any of the committees may call her (Mrs. Dorsaneo) for information, she said.

Laotian Copter Crash Kills 9

VIENTIANE (UPI) — A Royal Laotian Air Force helicopter believed hit by Communist ground fire crashed in north Laos Tuesday, killing nine persons, military officials said today.

The officials said the incident occurred near the town of Vang Vieng, about 75 miles north of Vientiane. Among those killed was a colonel who commanded the garrison at Vang Vieng, a neutralist military headquarters.

Six persons aboard the helicopter survived. The officials said the incident was an apparent violation of the Laotian cease-fire that went into effect Feb. 22 and that an investigation was under way.

School Budgets Top $10 Million

The San Rafael Board of Education last night took its first look at preliminary budgets for 1973 proposed for the high school and elementary districts, but made no comment on the spending programs.

Supt. John F. Plank said trustees will study the spending programs for the next 30 days and begin public deliberations on them at their May 8 meeting.

Plank has proposed an elementary district budget of $5,025,370, down about $200,000 from this year's $5,232,990 spending program. He has also suggested a high school budget of $5,752,351, up about $150,000 from this year's $5,603,150 spending program.

Both proposals are "bare bones budgets," Plank said, that will allow the board to "put back in" programs and services not included. The proposals will have no significant effect on the current elementary tax rate of $3.41 per $100 assessed valuation or the high school tax rate of $2.33 per $100 assessed valuation, Plank said.

Although both proposed budgets provide for employee "step and increment" salary increases, they do not include cost-of-living increases, he said.

Plank, noting enrollment is expected to dip about 200 in the elementary district and about 100 in the high school district next year, attributed the proposed $149,201 increase in the high school district spending program over this year to increases in costs of fringe benefits, plant maintenance and operations.

Plank said the preliminary high school budget includes cuts of about $95,000 in instruction, and the proposed elementary district spending program includes cuts of about $40,000 in administration over services provided this year.

In addition, the elementary spending program provides for the closing of two neighborhood schools, Plank said, as well as cutting from present staff 12 regular instructional aides and 27 summer school aides. The elementary budget does not provide for 16 teachers cut due to declining enrollment, he added.

"We have already made the cutbacks," he said. "So now the board can put back in services not provided for" that trustees consider crucial.

Plank said the board made no comment on the proposals pending review over the next month.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

STUDY — Called for a study by the citizens advisory committee on the worth of keeping schools open throughout the year.

GLENWOOD — Approved an agreement whereby the school system and the City of San Rafael will each pay up to $6,500 — in addition to $3,000 from the Glenwood Parent-Teachers Association — for improvement of the Glenwood School playground.

MILITARY — Asked that a representative of the military address the board before any action is taken on a policy of providing names of graduating seniors to the Armed Services.

MANAGERS — In accordance with state law, said eight district posts, and the positions of all principals, vice principals and high school administrative assistants are management positions.

PERSONNEL — Made the following appointments: William Suval, custodian-bus driver, $3.40 per hour; Alan Weatherhead, instructional aide, $2.72 per hour; Margaret Roddick, bus driver, $3.40 per hour; Albino Peralta, custodian-equipment manager, $7,056 annually; Guy Meyer, custodian, $3.40 per hour; Robert Denna, maintenance man, $7,056 annually, and Gary Jordan, custodian, $3.40 per hour. Joyce Conklin and Joan Hersko were appointed as adult education instructors at $8.45 per hour each.

CLAIM — Denied a claim by student Michael James Luxford.

GIFTS — Accepted five gifts to the school system, including $750 for Laura Dell School from the Laurel Dell Parent-Teacher Association and $825 worth of video tape equipment donated by Arthur Feagles.

Ellsberg Says He Spent His Life Protecting U.S.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg, the man who made public the Pentagon Papers, told the jury today he had devoted his professional life to "protecting and defending the United States of America."

Ellsberg, who has admitted he leaked the secret Vietnam War history because the knowledge he gained as a Defense Department and Rand Corp. consultant convinced him the government was employing deceptive practices in the war, testified in his own behalf for the second day.

Ellsberg said that from 1959 to 1969 he worked as a consultant to government agencies on national security.

He said he prepared a report for President John F. Kennedy in 1961 outlining "specific strategic objectives the President wanted the military to be capable of" but Kennedy never issued the report.

Ellsberg said he made the first of several trips to Vietnam, visiting the command centers, in 1961.

As the trial entered its climactic phase the jury was to hear Ellsberg explain why he made public a shelf full of classified documents that only a small percentage of Americans have ever read.

The 1970 U.S. Census showed Florida with a population of 6,673,098, an increase of 35 per cent over 1960.

School Budgets Top $10 Million

The San Rafael Board of Education last night took its first look at preliminary budgets for 1973 proposed for the high school and elementary districts, but made no comment on the spending programs.

Supt. John F. Plank said trustees will study the spending programs for the next 30 days and begin public deliberations on them at their May 8 meeting.

Plank has proposed an elementary district budget of $5,025,370, down about $200,000 from this year's $5,232,990 spending program. He has also suggested a high school budget of $5,752,351, up about $150,000 from this year's $5,603,150 spending program.

Both proposals are "bare bones budgets," Plank said, that will allow the board to "put back in" programs and services not included. The proposals will have no significant effect on the current elementary tax rate of $3.41 per $100 assessed valuation or the high school tax rate of $2.33 per $100 assessed valuation, Plank said.

Although both proposed budgets provide for employee "step and increment" salary increases, they do not include cost-of-living increases, he said.

Plank, noting enrollment is expected to dip about 200 in the elementary district and about 100 in the high school district next year, attributed the proposed $149,201 increase in the high school district spending program over this year to increases in costs of fringe benefits, plant maintenance and operations.

Plank said the preliminary high school budget includes cuts of about $95,000 in instruction, and the proposed elementary district spending program includes cuts of about $40,000 in administration over services provided this year.

In addition, the elementary spending program provides for the closing of two neighborhood schools, Plank said, as well as cutting from present staff 12 regular instructional aides and 27 summer school aides. The elementary budget does not provide for 16 teachers cut due to declining enrollment, he added.

"We have already made the cutbacks," he said. "So now the board can put back in services not provided for" that trustees consider crucial.

Plank said the board made no comment on the proposals pending review over the next month.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

STUDY — Called for a study by the citizens advisory committee on the worth of keeping schools open throughout the year.

GLENWOOD — Approved an agreement whereby the school system and the City of San Rafael will each pay up to $6,500 — in addition to $3,000 from the Glenwood Parent-Teachers Association — for improvement of the Glenwood School playground.

MILITARY — Asked that a representative of the military address the board before any action is taken on a policy of providing names of graduating seniors to the Armed Services.

MANAGERS — In accordance with state law, said eight district posts, and the positions of all principals, vice principals and high school administrative assistants are management positions.

PERSONNEL — Made the following appointments: William Suval, custodian-bus driver, $3.40 per hour; Alan Weatherhead, instructional aide, $2.72 per hour; Margaret Roddick, bus driver, $3.40 per hour; Albino Peralta, custodian-equipment manager, $7,056 annually; Guy Meyer, custodian, $3.40 per hour; Robert Denna, maintenance man, $7,056 annually, and Gary Jordan, custodian, $3.40 per hour. Joyce Conklin and Joan Hersko were appointed as adult education instructors at $8.45 per hour each.

CLAIM — Denied a claim by student Michael James Luxford.

GIFTS — Accepted five gifts to the school system, including $750 for Laura Dell School from the Laurel Dell Parent-Teacher Association and $825 worth of video tape equipment donated by Arthur Feagles.

CLOSED SESSION — Took no action in a closed session called to review employee salary negotiations.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. April 18.

Bid By Manning's To Operate County Cafeteria Gets Nowhere

Marin County supervisors yesterday unanimously gave a cold shoulder to the Manning's cafeteria chain, which wants to supplant the local operators of the Marin Civic Center Cafeteria.

"I think this is superb cooking," Supervisor Michael Wornum declared of the food served by Dom A. Giovannoni and Camille Bamatter, the cafeteria operators. "I'm surprised at Manning's going after the poor little guy."

Jon Merrell, vice president of Manning's, told the board that his chain could serve the same quality food at less cost, offer a more varied menu and probably could return $8,000 to $10,000 a year income to the county, if the volume were to reach $250,000 annually.

Merrell claimed that the operators' present contract would give them $46,500 with a total volume of $250,000 a year. He recalled that Manning's was low bidder in December, 1970, when the supervisors heeded county employees' vociferous complaints by ousting the state-subsidized, blind cafeteria operator and choosing Giovannoni and Bamatter over six competitors.

County Analyst Michael A. Chrystal said the cafeteria managers actually received about $16,000 for management last year, under their contract, on a volume of $200,000-plus.

Audience members chimed in against Manning's, arguing that it would take its income out of Marin, and that it "makes the only doughnuts in the world that sink in the coffee."

Leroy J. Syrop, a Marin restaurant supplier, said "there's really nothing to compare" because the Marin cafeteria far outshines all other government cafeterias in the Bay Area. Francis J. O'Connell, county employee association director, said his members are happy with the operation.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said the Marin cafeteria is "really unique" and impresses visitors; Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini added, "I hear nothing but praise," and moved the board take no action on Manning's request to reopen the contract.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

SALARIES — Voted unanimously to have Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste and Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere make recommendations to the entire board on salaries for county department heads and their chief assistants. The two supervisors and six department heads, plus County Admin. John F. Barrows and Maren Rinne, personnel director, have been gathering data on department heads' responsibility and performance since December.

PAY — Voted unanimously to pay members of the Marin Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission up to $15 per meeting attended, for a maximum of two meetings a month. Committee chairman Leroy J. Syrop explained that the members have been reimbursed for expenses, but only through tedious forms. The reimbursement will be dropped in favor of the pay, he said.

SCHOOL — Approved application for a $1,150 grant from the California Council on Criminal Justice to pay part of the fee for Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman to attend a four-week course at the National College of the State Judiciary.

RETIREE — As suggested by Grand Jury foreman William Howell, adopted a resolution of appreciation to Mrs. Edmar Hicks, clerk in the county clerk's office, who is retiring after 30 years' service.

BIKE PATH — Approved a change order for $3,232 extra on the Novato Boulevard bicycle path to correct slippage problems due to the stormy winter.

FLOOD CONTROL — Voted $1,000 to complete landscaping and erosion control along Novato Creek at Gerner Park, and allocated $750 for supplies for a creek naturalist's study in the Novato Flood Control Zone No. 1.

HIRING — Approved filling 10 vacancies in authorized jobs in various departments, including that of a stenographer-clerk in Dist. Bruce B. Bales's office. Barrows had recommended against filling the job. Bales had asked it be upgraded to a legal secretary. Bales complained he was "being picked on." The compromise called for obtaining extra-hire help in the job until budget discussions in June.

HOUSING AUTHORITY — Directed the county administrator's office to look into charges from Ann W. East of San Rafael that the county housing authority owes her four months rent on a home she placed under the "leased housing program."

SERVICE AREA — Authorized an application to the county local agency formation commission for creation of a county service area in the Greenbrae-Kentfield area to purchase open space. Residents are interested in buying 27 acres planned for development behind Marin Catholic High School. Formation of such a district would have to be approved by voters in the Kentfield School District and the Hillview section of Larkspur.

STREET — Heard a complaint from Helen Colvin of 459 Live Oak Drive in Mill Valley that construction trucks were allowed to damage Live Oak Drive, a privately maintained street.

REQUEST — Received a report, but took no action on a request from Marin Parents for Mental Recovery for $10,000 to help establish a residential care facility for schizophrenic youth. The matter was set over to June budget hearings.

FAIR — Authorized $32,000 for large portable tentlike structures to house fair booths during the annual fair.

REGIONAL PARK — Acting as the board of directors for the Marin County Regional Park District, reviewed but took no action on a proposed $800,000 budget for fiscal 1973-74. All but $50,000 is slated for open space land acquisition. The rest is for administration.

County Will Establish A Design Review Board

The Marin County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously yesterday to set up a local design review board in Southern Marin to rule on architectural qualities of new development. (Another Marin County Board of Supervisors story, page 1.)

The review board, suggested by the Tamalpais Valley Task Force and pushed by Supervisor Michael Wornum, will be tested for at least a year before it is established as a permanent county agency.

The seven-member board will be made up of architects, contractors, realtors, landscapers and residents at large from the Almonte, Alto, Tennessee Valley and Tamalpais Valley areas.

Its primary function will be to review the design of apartment, townhouse and commercial developments in that area.

Harvey Bragdon, chief of current planning, said he thinks the local board will save the county money by lifting some of the workload of the planning department. (Design review is now handled by Planning Director Werner von Gundell and his staff.)

Decisions of the local design review board may be appealed to the planning commission and board of supervisors under the enabling ordinance.

Opposition to the proposal was voiced by several audience members, including real estate salesmen Joseph Morrison and Henry Spitzer, who called the idea "quasi-government by a small group."

However, local groups such as the League of Women Voters and the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club voiced support.

The Arcadian Copper Mine at Ripley, Mich., is the only copper mine in the world open to the public.

Soviets Discover Ancient Building

MOSCOW (UPI) — Archeologists have discovered a dwelling built 20,000 years ago by Paleolithic man from mammoth bones, the Tass news agency said today.

The archeologists said the structure, found near Achinsk, Siberia, had many features in common with similar ancient dwellings discovered by other archeologists on the river Don in central Russia.

The Siberian find indicated Siberia was originally populated by men coming not only from the South but also from Europe, the archeologists said.

A Magazine Sales Firm Is Dissolved

A magazine subscription sales firm that spurred complaints from Marin County residents has gone out of business, the Corte Madera police department learned yesterday.

A court-appointed receiver in Terra Haute, Ind., wrote the department that LRS Inc., also known as Local Readers Service, Leisure Readers Service and Literary Readers Service, had been liquidated, and its door-to-door salesmen no longer would be selling subscriptions.

Bid By Manning's To Operate County Cafeteria Gets Nowhere

Marin County supervisors yesterday unanimously gave a cold shoulder to the Manning's cafeteria chain, which wants to supplant the local operators of the Marin Civic Center Cafeteria.

"I think this is superb cooking," Supervisor Michael Wornum declared of the food served by Dom A. Giovannoni and Camille Bamatter, the cafeteria operators. "I'm surprised at Manning's going after the poor little guy."

Jon Merrell, vice president of Manning's, told the board that his chain could serve the same quality food at less cost, offer a more varied menu and probably could return $8,000 to $10,000 a year income to the county, if the volume were to reach $250,000 annually.

Merrell claimed that the operators' present contract would give them $46,500 with a total volume of $250,000 a year. He recalled that Manning's was low bidder in December, 1970, when the supervisors heeded county employees' vociferous complaints by ousting the state-subsidized, blind cafeteria operator and choosing Giovannoni and Bamatter over six competitors.

Whistlestop Soon To Feed Meals To Senior Citizens

Senior citizens in Marin will soon be able to count on one nutritious but inexpensive meal a day thanks to the efforts of a fund-raising group of local residents, the Marin County Board of Supervisors was told yesterday.

According to Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, cochairman of the group, some $11,500 was raised for a kitchen and dining room at the Whistlestop in San Rafael, headquarters for the Marin Senior Coordinating Counsel.

The move was sparked earlier this year when Edward T. Ryken, director of the coordinating council, appealed to supervisors for $7,500 to construct and equip the kitchen.

Before the matter came to a vote, Roumiguiere offered his services to try to raise the funds through private donations.

"I think this is a fine example of how the people of Marin County will support a cause that is good and just," Roumiguiere told fellow supervisors yesterday. "The benefits of going to the community for aid instead of using public funds g far beyond just saving tax dollars. . .A wonderful feeling of helping the other guy was developed in the campaign."

According to Ryken, meals will be offered to senior citizens for about $1.25. "We hope to eventually be able to even deliver a meal to those seniors who are unable to leave their homes," he said.

Ryken said the kitchen will open in late May or June. Volunteers are needed to assist in preparing menus and serving meals. Those interested should contact Ryken at the Whistlestop, which is located in the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad depot.

Space Ship Report

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government reported today that the Salyut 2 space station is functioning normally in orbit but gave no indication if or when a space crew would be sent up to board it.

COUNTY FINDS MONEY DUE FOR WELFARE

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell told county supervisors yesterday a new auditing system in his office has recovered some $300,000 in delinquent state and federal welfare payments to the county.

Mitchell said $100,000 has been received and $200,000 has been billed to the state, which acknowledges the debt.

The recovery, retroactive to 1970, was possible through a "cost allocation system" that allows county government to pinpoint local, state and federal shares for programs.

The new system, in operation for six months, will be expanded to cover other joint programs.

Birth Control Pills Deductible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service has ruled the cost of birth control pills, abortions and vasectomies are tax deductible.

The IRS handed down its first decision in the controversial area Tuesday, saying payments by taxpayers for the purposes were legitimate medical expenses under tax laws. However, the deductions will be allowed only in states where such practices are legal.

Skillet Spanish Rice Quick And Easy Meal For Campers

Camping has changed since the day when a tent was tops in shelter and a smoky fire challenged the cooking skill of even the experienced camper.

Today's camper may still prefer canvas, but more likely than not the tent has been replaced by a pickup camper, travel trailer or motorhome.

Skillet meals are the mainstay of the experienced camper, but they are different from those ground beef creations with which every home cook is familiar.

The camping family that gets off the beaten path, drives late into the evening or fishes "just a few minutes longer" must rely on meats other than fresh ground beef.

Canned meats pack easily and with a little imagination, can be turned into sumptuous main dishes in minutes.

Start with a basic recipe and use whatever seasonings are on hand. To this recipe for skillet Spanish rice, one might add a dash of chili powder, garlic salt or dehydrated onion to emphasize that already in the stewed tomatoes. Or try tossing in cubed cheddar cheese just before serving.

SKILLET SPANISH RICE

4 strips of bacon
1 7-ounce can luncheon meat
1 14½-ounce can stewed tomatoes
½ cup instant rice
Salt and pepper to taste

Fry bacon crisp and drain on paper towel. Cut lunchoen meat in cubes or strips and brown lightly in bacon fat. Drain fat. Add tomatoes and bring to a boil. Add rice, return to a boil and remove from heat. Toss with fork until moisture is absorbed. Crumble bacon and toss into mixture. Makes two generous servings.

QUICK DINNER in the camper comes with knowing what to pack and how to combine the ingredients for good flavor. Here's a quickly made one-burner skillet Spanish rice with bacon and tomatoes.

Cioppino One Of The Most Famous Seafood Concoctions

One of California's most famous seafood concoctions is cioppino, a savory fish stew with tomatoes, onions, garlic and herbs. The name cioppino supposedly is a word coined by Italian fishermen who settled in the state and means "chopped a little." This highly seasoned seafood stew is similar to the bouillabaise of France.

San Francisco sourdough bread is the classic accompaniment to cioppino — especially for sopping up the broth.

An ideal choice to accompany the cioppino is an avocado-tomato salad.

AVOCADO-TOMATO SALAD

1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 ripe avocado, peeled and diced
2 medium-sized tomatoes, peeled, seeded and cut into small pieces
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
¼ cup peanut oil
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
Generous dash pepper
Crisp salad greens

Sprinkle lemon juice over diced avocado. Add tomato, onion and parsley.

Combine oil, vinegar, salt and pepper in a small jar. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed. Pour over avocado mixture; toss gently. Chill thoroughly.

Serve on crisp salad greens. Makes five servings.

CALIFORNIA CIOPPINO

½ cup (½ medium onion) chopped onion
2 tablespoons peanut oil
2 cups clam broth
2 cups peeled and chopped ripe tomatoes
1 cup chopped celery
1 carrot, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 bay leaves
½ pound shrimp, shelled and deveined
½ pound scallops
½ pound shucked oysters
1 can (6½-ounce) crabmeat

In a large saucepan saute onion in peanut oil. Add clam broth, tomatoes, celery, carrot, garlic, salt, mustard, oregano, paprika, and bay leaves. Simmer one hour, stirring occasionally. Add shrimp, scallops and oysters. Simmer 10 minutes longer. Stir in crabmeat. Serve. Makes 12 one-cup servings.

Polka Dot Coffee Cake Fine For Greeting New Neighbor

Polka dot coffee cake extends the warmest and sweetest of greetings to a new neighbor. The flavorful, fragrant corn meal ycast bread boasts pockets of luscious strawberry or raspberry jam — making it delightfully different, unusually good.

POLKA DOT COFFEE CAKE
Makes two 8-inch coffee cakes

2 cakes, compressed or 2 pkg. dry yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
¾ cup milk, scalded
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
⅓ cup butter or margarine
1 egg
4 to 4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup enriched corn meal
1 cup strawberry or raspberry jam or preserves

Glaze:

1 cup sifted confectioners sugar
1½ tablespoons milk

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in egg and 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast and corn meal. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn dough out onto lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover. Divide in half. Round each part into ball. Place in two greased 8-inch baking pans. Brush with melted butter.

Cover and let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes. With finger make deep hole in center of dough; insert some of the jam. Continue making holes over surface in same manner, filling each hole with jam. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F.) 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Cool; frost with glaze made by combining confectioners sugar and milk.

Specials Can Cut Food Costs

To keep the food bill down the Consumer Product Information Center of the General Services Administration advises shoppers to check weekly food specials and include them in the meals planned. Make a grocery list and stick to it.

Try to shop when the store is not crowded and when there is time to make selections carefully. Buy food in large containers if it will not be left over and eventually thrown out.

Flour Sifter

Some cooks keep the flour sifter in a plastic bag and don't wash it between uses.

Lamb Riblets For Snacks Or Main Dish

Food consultant Shirley Wilson McRae of Belvedere offered this recipe for her Riblets Far East when she was a guest on "Kitchen Time in Marin" hosted by Diane MacMillan yesterday on KTIM radio.

Lamb is very popular in the northern provinces of China and Mongolia where it is featured in many fascinating dishes. The riblets may be cut into two-rib sections, as well, but the one-rib pieces are easier to eat and portion. Whether served as a main dish, as a snack or buffet item, Riblets Far East will make any occasion more special, says Shirley.

RIBLETS FAR EAST

3 pounds lamb riblets
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
½ cup water
½ cup minced onion
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup sugar
1 Tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 garlic clove, crushed and minced
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
Salt to taste

Cut lamb into single ribs. Arrange in one layer in pan. Bake in 325 degree oven 30 minutes. Pour off excess fat. Combine tomato paste, water, onion, soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, Worcestershire, garlic and ginger. Salt to taste. Pour or brush sauce on ribs. Bake about 30 minutes longer until tender. Serve as main dish or as a snack or buffet item.

Makes six main dish servings or 12 to 15 snack servings.

Camper Cooking Calls For New Kind Of Meal Planning

The popularity of family camping vacations and motor homes has created a need for a new kind of meal planning. That's why manufacturers of gas ranges for recreational vehicles are distributing a booklet, "Meals on Wheels."

Because camping cooking should be as much fun as the other activities on a vacation, these recipes have been tested on recreational vehicle ranges for flavor, ease and speed of preparation.

To get a free copy of "Meals on Wheels," send name and address to Mr. Charles Naylor, Frigiking, Inc., 10858 Harry Hines Blvd., Dallas, Texas 75220.

A sampling of recipes are these two: Quickie Quiche for a change of pace lunch or light supper, and Supper-On-A-Slice, a hamburger dish that saves dishwashing.

QUICKIE QUICHE

1 (10¾ oz.) can Cheddar cheese soup
1 cup milk
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 8-inch pastry lined pie pan
4 to 6 slices bacon, fried crisp
Canned French fried onions

Combine soup, milk and eggs, crumble bacon into pie shell. Sprinkle French fried onions over to taste. Pour soup mixture over bacon and onion. Bake at 375 degrees for one hour or until knife comes out clean. Serve warm. Serves 6.

SUPPER-ON-A-SLICE

1½ lbs. ground beef
1 small can undiluted evaporated milk (⅔ cup)
½ cup soft stale bread crumbs
1 egg
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 cup grated American cheese
1 loaf Italian or French bread
4 slices American cheese, cut into strips

Combine all ingredients except the bread loaf and sliced cheese. Cut the bread in half lengthwise. Place each half, crust side down, on foil sheet 1½ inches larger all around than bread. Spread meat mixture evenly over bread. Bring foil up and around each bread half, crimping together at ends to form boat-shaped holders. Bake in 350 degree oven 25 to 30 minutes; arrange strips of cheese over tops and bake five minutes longer. To serve, cut bread across diagonally. Serves six to eight.

Spread Stretcher

Use spreads such as margarine and butter when they are oft enough to be easily spreadable. Each pound will go further.

Large Eggs Can Be Best Bargain

By the dozen, larger sizes of eggs usually cost more than smaller sizes of the same grade, but the larger eggs are the better buy if the price difference per dozen is less than 7 cents for smaller sizes in the same grade.

If the eggs are to be used in combination dishes and baked goods use the cheaper grade B eggs since their appearance is not important.

Way To Eat Meat And Save Money

For families who still like meat but not the prices, there are some less expensive things like kidneys, heart, lamb breast and tripe that make tasty meals, suggests Peggy Hopkins, home economist for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael.

She recommends stuffed or broiled heart, liver, lamb or calf kidneys, boiled beef tongue and baked stuffed breast of lamb as examples.

STUFFED HEART

Heart (see below)
2 cups cooked rice
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 small onion, chopped
Tomato soup
Salt-Pepper

Select one pork or lamb heart for each person to be served. Veal hearts will serve two persons and beef heart is large enough for the average family. Remove veins and arteries from heart. Brown onion in fat, add with chopped pepper to cooked rice. Stuff hearts.

Place in covered pan or casserole. Pour tomato soup over all (or canned tomatoes or tomato juice). Simmer until heart is tender, either in 300 degree oven, or on top of range. It will require about one and one-half hours for pork, lamb, or veal hearts and two and one-half to three hours for beef heart.

BROILED CALF'S HEART

Remove veins and arteries from a calf's heart; wash and cut crosswise in thin slices. Sprinkle with a little chopped salt pork or uncooked bacon. Broil for 10 to 15 minutes. (Instead of broiling, the sliced heart may be "panfried" in a skillet. Cook the chopped salt pork or bacon a few minutes, then add the sliced heart.)

BROILED LAMB OR CALF KIDNEYS

Have the meat retailer leave about one-fourth inch of fat on lamb kidneys. Split and place on broiler rack with fat side up. Broil, with the kidneys about three inches from source of heat, until the fat is brown and crisp. Season and turn. Spread with finely chopped garlic, and continue broiling until done, or omit the garlic and serve with broiler bacon. (Kidneys may be dipped in French dressing before broiling.) Pieces of kidney may be threaded onto a skewer with alternate pieces of bacon. Broil and serve with grilled tomatoes.

SAVORY LIVER

1½ pounds beef liver, sliced thin
¼ cup chopped onion
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2½ cups bouillon
2 tablespons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash Pepper
3 tablespoons vinegar

Saute onion and parsley in butter in frying pan until lightly browned; stir in flour, seasonings and vinegar, and add bouillon gradually, stirring and cooking until well mixed. Place liver in gravy and cook, covered, 15 minutes, turning once.

BOILED BEEF TONGUE

(Fresh, corned, or smoked tongues may be purchased. Corned or smoked tongues are improved by soaking in cold water for several hours before cooking.)

1 beef tongue
1 tablespoon salt (for fresh tongue)
½ teaspoon pepper
4 whole cloves
1 tablespoon vinegar

Scrub the tongue under running water; place in a deep kettle. Add the seasonings; cover with boiling water. Boil 10 minutes, then simmer about 3 hours or until a fork will penetrate readily to the center. Allow the tongue to remain in the water until cool enough to handle. Peel off the outer skin and cut out the membranous portions of the roots. Press into shape for serving. Tongue may be served hot with horseradish sauce or may be pressed and served cold.

Directions for Pressing: When cooked beef tongue has cooled sufficiently to remove from the kettle, place in a loaf pan; cover with a pan of the same size; place a heavy weight in the top pan. On standing, the weight will press enough liquid from the meat to fill the corners of the pan. The liquid will jelly when thoroughly chilled. Set the pans in a cold place for at least several hours. Unmold the pressed meat and cut into slices for serving. This makes delicious sandwiches, and may often cost less than cold cuts.

BAKED, STUFFED BREAST OF LAMB

2 or 3 pounds breast of lamb, cut for stuffing
2 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Milk to moisten the dressing
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika

Mix dressing ingredients together, lightly, adding just enough milk to moisten. Stuff the lamb breast with mixture. Fasten with skewers, or sew edges together with large needle and coarse thread. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for about two hours. This makes four to six servings.

Asparagus Dish High In Protein

Here's an elegant main dish for a small luncheon party, Sunday brunch or family supper that doesn't call for any meat, but it's packed with protein and other important nutrients.

Now that fresh asparagus is more reasonable in price, you can well afford this fancy presentation of asparagus spears and eggs on toast topped with a rich, egg-almond cream sauce and elegant sliced natural almonds. (The term "natural" simply refers to shelled almonds that were sliced without being blanched: the little bits of brown skin makes them attractive for garnish.)

EGGS ASPARAGUS ALMONDINE

Melt 6 tablespoons butter or margarine in top of double boiler placed over boiling water; blend in ¼ cup flour and ½ teaspoon salt, then stir in 1⅓ cups milk. Cook sauce, stirring, until it thickens. Remove from heat then stir in 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 4 beaten egg yolks (use a wire whip if you have one).

Stir over boiling water again about 4 minutes or until sauce is thickened and smooth. Fold in ¼ cup toasted slivered almonds and keep sauce warm while you prepare plates. Place about 4 hot canned or cooked fresh asparagus spears on each serving of 2 slices buttered toast or split English muffins; top each with 2 sliced hard-cooked or poached eggs. Spoon sauce over all and garnish with a few more almonds on top. Makes six servings.

Way To Eat Meat And Save Money

For families who still like meat but not the prices, there are some less expensive things like kidneys, heart, lamb breast and tripe that make tasty meals, suggests Peggy Hopkins, home economist for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael.

She recommends stuffed or broiled heart, liver, lamb or calf kidneys, boiled beef tongue and baked stuffed breast of lamb as examples.

STUFFED HEART

Heart (see below)
2 cups cooked rice
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 small onion, chopped
Tomato soup
Salt-Pepper

Select one pork or lamb heart for each person to be served. Veal hearts will serve two persons and beef heart is large enough for the average family. Remove veins and arteries from heart. Brown onion in fat, add with chopped pepper to cooked rice. Stuff hearts.

Place in covered pan or casserole. Pour tomato soup over all (or canned tomatoes or tomato juice). Simmer until heart is tender, either in 300 degree oven, or on top of range. It will require about one and one-half hours for pork, lamb, or veal hearts and two and one-half to three hours for beef heart.

BROILED CALF'S HEART

Remove veins and arteries from a calf's heart; wash and cut crosswise in thin slices. Sprinkle with a little chopped salt pork or uncooked bacon. Broil for 10 to 15 minutes. (Instead of broiling, the sliced heart may be "panfried" in a skillet. Cook the chopped salt pork or bacon a few minutes, then add the sliced heart.)

BROILED LAMB OR CALF KIDNEYS

Have the meat retailer leave about one-fourth inch of fat on lamb kidneys. Split and place on broiler rack with fat side up. Broil, with the kidneys about three inches from source of heat, until the fat is brown and crisp. Season and turn. Spread with finely chopped garlic, and continue broiling until done, or omit the garlic and serve with broiler bacon. (Kidneys may be dipped in French dressing before broiling.) Pieces of kidney may be threaded onto a skewer with alternate pieces of bacon. Broil and serve with grilled tomatoes.

SAVORY LIVER

1½ pounds beef liver, sliced thin
¼ cup chopped onion
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2½ cups bouillon
2 tablespons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash Pepper
3 tablespoons vinegar

Saute onion and parsley in butter in frying pan until lightly browned; stir in flour, seasonings and vinegar, and add bouillon gradually, stirring and cooking until well mixed. Place liver in gravy and cook, covered, 15 minutes, turning once.

BOILED BEEF TONGUE

(Fresh, corned, or smoked tongues may be purchased. Corned or smoked tongues are improved by soaking in cold water for several hours before cooking.)

1 beef tongue
1 tablespoon salt (for fresh tongue)
½ teaspoon pepper
4 whole cloves
1 tablespoon vinegar

Scrub the tongue under running water; place in a deep kettle. Add the seasonings; cover with boiling water. Boil 10 minutes, then simmer about 3 hours or until a fork will penetrate readily to the center. Allow the tongue to remain in the water until cool enough to handle. Peel off the outer skin and cut out the membranous portions of the roots. Press into shape for serving. Tongue may be served hot with horseradish sauce or may be pressed and served cold.

Directions for Pressing: When cooked beef tongue has cooled sufficiently to remove from the kettle, place in a loaf pan; cover with a pan of the same size; place a heavy weight in the top pan. On standing, the weight will press enough liquid from the meat to fill the corners of the pan. The liquid will jelly when thoroughly chilled. Set the pans in a cold place for at least several hours. Unmold the pressed meat and cut into slices for serving. This makes delicious sandwiches, and may often cost less than cold cuts.

BAKED, STUFFED BREAST OF LAMB

2 or 3 pounds breast of lamb, cut for stuffing
2 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Milk to moisten the dressing
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika

Mix dressing ingredients together, lightly, adding just enough milk to moisten. Stuff the lamb breast with mixture. Fasten with skewers, or sew edges together with large needle and coarse thread. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for about two hours. This makes four to six servings.

DR. LINDA Clever enjoys watching daughter Sarah, 3, snack at their Tiburon home on the internist's day off. She is director of St. Mary's Hospital outpatient department nd is a teacher and member of the admissions committee at University of California, San Francisco.

A BUSY INTERNIST

Dr. Linda Clever Guides Large Outpatient Clinic

By PAT BALMES

"My basic interest is getting health care to those who are not getting it and improving the health care of people who are. There are many ways a physician's skills can be expanded through allied health professionals," said Dr. Linda Clever of Tiburon.

The 32-year-old internist is the director of St. Mary's Hospital outpatient department, an assistant clinical professor of medicine and ambulatory and community medicine and a member of the admissions committee at University of California Medical Center at San Francisco, and a member of Stanford University Board of Trustees.

In 1968 Dr. Clever received the first community medicine fellowship given in the United States and worked at Hunter's Point, the Tenderloin, South of Market and Chinatown.

"I went on a 'pad' call in the Haight-Ashbury and saw things very different from the background I had had," she recalled during an interview at her hilltop home.

Presently the physician serves on the Haight-Ashbury Health Committee, finding it exciting to be at the interface between establishment and non-establishment health care people.

AFTER COMPLETING her residency at Stanford and UCSF, Dr. Clever in 1971 became director of the 36,000 patient-visits-a-year outpatient department at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco.

There she began a community medicine research project — starting two years ago with the planning of a nurse-practitioner's training.

After funding by San Francisco Foundation, she divided a large group of specially selected patients with stable chronic diseases like diabetes into two groups, one seen by physicians and the other by the nurse-practitioner backed up by a doctor.

"I firmly believe that there are many things that nurses can do as well if not better than doctors including treat some kinds of patients," she said.

It is estimated that 85 per cent of people who visit an internist of a given day do not need to see a doctor. It is likely that many could have been helped by a highly-trained nurse, according to Dr. Clever.

Believing that most problems that people have cannot be cured by pills alone, Dr. Clever and others have specially trained the nurse-practitioner to be more involved with non-medical problems than a doctor has time to be.

THE NURSE-PRACTITIONER helps with problems like, "How do I deal with my husband now that he requires a diabetic diet?"

She helps get food stamps, or with emotional troubles, understanding why some people resist seeing a social worker or a psychologist.

In diagnosis, the nurse-practitoner follows a branching system of protocol procedures according to the patient's complaint.

"If people feel sure they can see a doctor if they need or want one in this system, they will accept it," predicts Dr. Clever who believes the nurse-practitioner and physician team will ideally get a sick patient to a doctor faster.

Evaluating the two-year controlled study has been difficult because Dr. Clever and her research associate have tried to measure what effect the new system has had on the patients' health.

"OBVIOUSLY THAT is subjective, but the study suggests that the nurse-practitioner and physician team is providing care of at least as high a quality as the physicians alone are," said Dr. Clever.

Asked if she anticipated resistance against widespread use of the nurse-practitioner and physician team in community health programs, Dr. Clever said that his system, and other health care alternatives, will be accepted when patients, physicians and nurses are convinced that the care is as good as care by physicians alone and quality control is rigorous.

Another of Dr. Clever's activities is helping to review the nearly 3,500 applications for UCSF's freshman class. About 130 students will be accepted, she said.

She hates to see so many idealistic people wanting to be doctors but not understanding that medicine has its disadvantages.

She cited bureaucractic rules that preclude prescribing vitamins for a pregnant MediCal patient because they must be paid for over-the-counter.

And at social functions Dr. Clever tries to remain anonymous, "because I don't mind when people there tell me their symptoms, but I do mind when they criticize doctors endlessly," she said.

SHE WOULD advise applicants to consider allied health professions, she said listing careers as medical corpsmen, nurse-practitioners, midwives, occupational, physical and speech and hearing therapists, public health nurses, psychiatric technicians, social workers, clinical pharmacists and health educators.

Life and death decisions are made by intensive care unit nurses on their own in emergencies, she said.

"A high school graduate could learn to be an inhalation therapist. Or a high school graduate could train as an orthopedic technician who puts on casts and helps people get set in traction," Dr. Clever pointed out.

During her Stanford medical education Dr. Clever was voted president of the medical school student association.

Before she entered medical school in 1960, she married medical student James Clever, who is now an internist specializing in the treatment of cancer patients with medication.

"When I became pregnant in my third year of residency I thought I would meet prejudice. But my colleagues were enthusiastic; it was a very warm experience that I did not expect," she said.

Her daughter, Sarah, now 3, was born at University of California Medical Center, where her mother is well known.

"I WANTED to maintain my dignity as long as I could during labor, but I am not particularly brave," said Dr. Clever who studied the Lamaze method to prepare for childbirth. "I went a long way without analgesic," she said.

Because she experienced post-partum depression, she talks about it with pregnant patients and her friends because it is important to understand it's normal, the physician said.

Now she works four days a week, reserving the extra day off for things she wants to do. What gets left out in a professional woman's life is time for herself, she said.

"The reason I am working is that there are things that need to get done, and I have some unique training in community medicine," Dr. Clever said.

National P-TA Sets Convention

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — "Dimensions of Involvement" is the theme for the multimillion-member National Parent-Teacher Association at its 77th annual convention, to be held May 20-23 at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis, Mo.

"Our theme emphasizes that, in today's world, there are persuasive reasons for expanding concerns beyond the limits of one's neighborhood," said P-TA president Mrs. Elizabeth Mallory.

"As more and more decisions which influence our lives today are being made by state and national governments," Mrs. Mallory explained, "any attempt by individuals to retreat to the isolation of local action and concern becomes shortsighted and restrictive.

"Experience proves that isolating ourselves is self-defeating. This is why the National P-TA is concerned with new and broader dimensions of effective involvement," she added.

THE CONVENTION program this year has been designed to stimulate and motivate P-TA delegates to become involved in all issues affecting children and youth. Topics for ideashops range from building more effective P-TA's to education legislation in Washington, D.C. These popular sessions, featuring nationally known educators as well as P-TA leaders, will also focus on such vital subjects as the dilemma of financing education; health education; big city problems; home-school relationships; and shared decision-making in education.

One of P-TA's priority projects which has gained national recognition is PTSA (Parent-Teacher-Student Associations). A special workshop, "PTSA: Developing and Sustaining a Real Partnership" will involve the youth members of the national P-TA board of managers. Other national P-TA projects to be the subject of workshops are "Alcohol: A Family Affair"; "Children's Emotional Health"; "RISE: Reading Improvement Services Everywhere"; and "To Make a Difference - Volunteers in the Juvenile Courts."

DELEGATES WILL elect new officers for two year terms. Nominees for national office include Mrs. Lillie Herndon, Columbia, S.C., for president; Mrs. Walter G. Kimmel, Rock Island, Ill., for first vice-president; and Dudley E. Flood, Raleigh, N.C., for second vice-president. Twenty-six commission members also will be elected during the convention.

'FORGET THE STIGMAS'

An Expert's Views On The Bar Scene

By JOAN LISETOR

No one ever went into a bar just to have a drink, according to bar owner Don Bernard. Bars are a vehicle to meeting people he told a group of newly divorced persons last night.

Members of the audience were persons who have received divorce adjustment counseling from the Family Service Agency of Marin. The session was an informal meeting at the agency office.

"Forget the stigma that guys in bars are either drunks or on the make and girls there are no good," Bernard said. "The bar scene has changed dramatically over the years. You can go to a bar and go comfortably to meet people."

Take a friend and examine the bars in your area, he suggested, and find bars that cater to the type of people with whom you are comfortable.

"Be honest with yourself about the reason you are going there. You are there and the other people are there to meet. Involve yourself in the activities of the bar and get into the middle of a group. Get to know the bartender, and don't be afraid to say, 'Hi, my name is. . .' He will introduce you to individuals or to groups in which you can involve yourself," Bernard said.

MEN ARE meant to be aggressive but are often shy of rejection, he said. Often he watches a man who says, "That's a pretty girl down there," sends the woman a drink and then never gets off the bar stool to go talk to her. In this case he advises a woman to get up, go down and say thank you.

"Women worry too much what men will think of them and their reputations," Bernard said. "If he asks for your phone number and you want to give it to him, do it."

Don't be phony if a man turns you on, he warned women.

"Let him know — subtley, but if you're not interested don't play coy little games and wait until he says 'I'd like to call you' to say 'no.' "

Women going into bars should go in groups of three or more.

"Fours are easy to break but twos are impossible because if you ask one to dance she doesn't want to leave her friend alone," he said.

MEN SHOULDN'T go in bunches because they spend all of their time trying to impress one another.

"I've heard more stories from used car salesmen about making over $100,000 a year, I that's not necessarily dollars," he said.

For men approaching women in a bar, Bernard offered his own ice breaker, "Hey, do you mess around?" It is better than, "Can I buy you a drink?" he said, because that question immediately makes a woman think a man is after her.

Conversations to avoid, he said, are former spouses and children.

"If you emphasize you enjoy spending weekends at Tahoe or tell him about the new satin sheets you just bought for your king sized water bed," Bernard said, "you know what to expect. I'm not suggesting a bar is the only vehicle for meeting people, but you can't ignore the bar as a meeting place today. Don't hang out there or become a bar fly or a drunk or like some of my customers who pull longer shifts than I do," Bernard said.

Placing yourself in a good spot in a bar is important, according to the bar owner.

TO GET RID of an unwanted man Bernard suggested a woman either go to the ladies' room, move to another seat or say, "I'm tired and going home."

Don't feel an obligation to a man because he bought you drinks, he said.

He believes men are as afraid of rejection as women are afraid of being attacked.

Married men in a bar tend to be very smooth, he said, but if those men are divorced or separated they clam right up.

He advised men to ask the prettiest girl in a group to dance because she is asked the least often. A homely woman is asked often because men know she won't reject them, he said.

"Don't hang out or spend all of your time in bars," he said, "but remember nice people do go to bars."

The Question Of Overeating

NEW YORK (UPI) — What makes people overeat? Nutritionists say there is no simple, single reason. But one authority, Dr. Morton Glenn says "some dieters feel a psychological need for self-punishment." In a Food and Fitness booklet put out by Blue Cross he explains his view — "These people are annoyed with themselves and may express their anger by doing something to hurt themselves."

A BUSY INTERNIST

Dr. Linda Clever Guides Large Outpatient Clinic

By PAT BALMES

"My basic interest is getting health care to those who are not getting it and improving the health care of people who are. There are many ways a physician's skills can be expanded through allied health professionals," said Dr. Linda Clever of Tiburon.

The 32-year-old internist is the director of St. Mary's Hospital outpatient department, an assistant clinical professor of medicine and ambulatory and community medicine and a member of the admissions committee at University of California Medical Center at San Francisco, and a member of Stanford University Board of Trustees.

In 1968 Dr. Clever received the first community medicine fellowship given in the United States and worked at Hunter's Point, the Tenderloin, South of Market and Chinatown.

"I went on a 'pad' call in the Haight-Ashbury and saw things very different from the background I had had," she recalled during an interview at her hilltop home.

Presently the physician serves on the Haight-Ashbury Health Committee, finding it exciting to be at the interface between establishment and non-establishment health care people.

AFTER COMPLETING her residency at Stanford and UCSF, Dr. Clever in 1971 became director of the 36,000 patient-visits-a-year outpatient department at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco.

There she began a community medicine research project — starting two years ago with the planning of a nurse-practitioner's training.

After funding by San Francisco Foundation, she divided a large group of specially selected patients with stable chronic diseases like diabetes into two groups, one seen by physicians and the other by the nurse-practitioner backed up by a doctor.

"I firmly believe that there are many things that nurses can do as well if not better than doctors including treat some kinds of patients," she said.

It is estimated that 85 per cent of people who visit an internist of a given day do not need to see a doctor. It is likely that many could have been helped by a highly-trained nurse, according to Dr. Clever.

Believing that most problems that people have cannot be cured by pills alone, Dr. Clever and others have specially trained the nurse-practitioner to be more involved with non-medical problems than a doctor has time to be.

THE NURSE-PRACTITIONER helps with problems like, "How do I deal with my husband now that he requires a diabetic diet?"

She helps get food stamps, or with emotional troubles, understanding why some people resist seeing a social worker or a psychologist.

In diagnosis, the nurse-practitoner follows a branching system of protocol procedures according to the patient's complaint.

"If people feel sure they can see a doctor if they need or want one in this system, they will accept it," predicts Dr. Clever who believes the nurse-practitioner and physician team will ideally get a sick patient to a doctor faster.

Evaluating the two-year controlled study has been difficult because Dr. Clever and her research associate have tried to measure what effect the new system has had on the patients' health.

"OBVIOUSLY THAT is subjective, but the study suggests that the nurse-practitioner and physician team is providing care of at least as high a quality as the physicians alone are," said Dr. Clever.

Asked if she anticipated resistance against widespread use of the nurse-practitioner and physician team in community health programs, Dr. Clever said that his system, and other health care alternatives, will be accepted when patients, physicians and nurses are convinced that the care is as good as care by physicians alone and quality control is rigorous.

Another of Dr. Clever's activities is helping to review the nearly 3,500 applications for UCSF's freshman class. About 130 students will be accepted, she said.

She hates to see so many idealistic people wanting to be doctors but not understanding that medicine has its disadvantages.

She cited bureaucractic rules that preclude prescribing vitamins for a pregnant MediCal patient because they must be paid for over-the-counter.

And at social functions Dr. Clever tries to remain anonymous, "because I don't mind when people there tell me their symptoms, but I do mind when they criticize doctors endlessly," she said.

SHE WOULD advise applicants to consider allied health professions, she said listing careers as medical corpsmen, nurse-practitioners, midwives, occupational, physical and speech and hearing therapists, public health nurses, psychiatric technicians, social workers, clinical pharmacists and health educators.

Life and death decisions are made by intensive care unit nurses on their own in emergencies, she said.

"A high school graduate could learn to be an inhalation therapist. Or a high school graduate could train as an orthopedic technician who puts on casts and helps people get set in traction," Dr. Clever pointed out.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Blacks Never Had It So Good As When They Were Slaves

DEAR HELEN:

What's the most outlandish letter you've received recently? — CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS:

The following struck me as pretty — shall we say — distorted but, remember, "outland-dish" is in the eye of the reader. There will be some who agree with this correspondent: (On the other hand he may be a satirist in disguise.)

DEAR HELEN:

Several of your correspondents have blamed our country and its people for the "plight" of the Negro. This has no basis in fact. The truth is:

Former slaves were selected from strong African tribes, by their chief, as he knew they would have better lives in the New World than he had in the jungle. The fortunate ones selected were given free food, transportation and medical care. They were valuable cargo and the British sea captains kept them in the holds of their sailing ships so they would not jump overboard and drown.

Actually, the first slaves in the U.S. were white Europeans. They wanted to get here so badly they sold themselves into years of "indenture" so they could have their way paid. They cleared the land, built the houses, planted crops, built towns and roads and had things running smoothly when the Negroes arrived.

When the fortunate black slaves arrived they had quarters ready for them. They were classified as livestock and had the best of treatment, being cleaned and fed before going to market.

While white pioneers were fighting Indians, clearing the wilderness and suffering hardships on their westward march, and the Irish and Chinese died building railroads, Negro slaves were enjoying the security of the large southern landowner's happy life.

After the slaves were freed, all who wanted to returned to Africa and were given their own country, Liberia. Those who chose to remain in the U.S. have prospered immensely, growing in population from less than 300 to over 26 million.

Until a few years ago they were happy: laughing together, or singing in groups. They were admired by white people for their carefree air and liberties that whites didn't have.

But after they took on the troubles and responsibilities of their superiors, they became uptight just like us. They have no one to blame but themselves. — MR. N.M.

DEAR MR. M.:

You're kidding us. . .aren't you? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have an X-rated gentleman friend.

He's X-asperating, X-plosive, X-pensive (spends my money on himself), X-travagant, X-hausting, X-ploitative, X-cluding (where I'm concerned), X-pansive (to other females), and also X-tra dull.

But every time I think of dumping him, someone tells me how lucky I am to get such a gorgeous-looking man.

I'm trying for a light way to say he's a dog, but such an attractive one. What do you think? — PHYSICALLY DRAWN, MENTALLY REPELLED

DEAR PDMR:

I think your gentleman friend is about to X-it from your life, now that you've finally seen him as a "beautiful" hunk of nothing. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

If people just paid attention to the little, ordinary considerations, life would be pleasanter. I'm thinking of the young man at the lunch counter today who chose the time while waiting for his lunch to comb his hair. — E.B.

DEAR E.:

Let's hope he found a hair in his OWN soup! — H.

LOS ANGELES PROGRAM

Children Helped In Motor Learning

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Something sad happens to the child who always gets chosen last in games, who falls off his bike and can't seem to catch a ball.

His self-image suffers.

By the time he outgrows his clumsiness, if he ever does, he has already absorbed a great deal of social punishment from his peers.

He may compensate in a variety of ways—by concentrating on his studies and becoming a scholar, or by spending his recesses helping the teacher clean erasers.

He may become what some experts term a dive-bomber—the kid who zooms around the playground crashing into other children and hitting. A study of juvenile arrests shows that youngsters with perceptual motor problems have a disproportionately high percentage of truancy.

And although nobody seems to understand just why, more boys than girls suffer from motor difficulties. Some of these youngsters develop sex gender identification problems—they find refuge playing with the girls instead of trying to compete with other boys.

FOR THE PAST 10 years, kinesiologists at the University of California at Los Angeles have been working with clumsy children in a special remedial program for perceptual motor learning.

Its director, Dr. Bryant Cratty, says 20 per cent of all youngsters—or about 50 children in every elementary school in the United States—suffer from a motor problem, to one degree or another.

Youngsters referred to Cratty undergo an hour-long test with their parents watching through a one-way mirror. They are also given a game-choice quiz and asked questions which reveal that most of them consider themselves unpopular and feel unhappy much of the time.

After their individual problems are analyzed, the children may be enrolled in twice-weekly after school sessions designed to improve their coordination, balance, agility and physical skills.

"We improve movement in kids who don't work well with their bodies," Cratty says. "We are interested in movement for its own sake because clumsy children are unhappy."

"THEY RANGE over the entire IQ system," he says. "They just can't work effectively with their bodies. We have one six-year-old now who moved like a two-year-old when we got him, but he could read from the dictionary."

According to Cratty, there are some 60 or 70 possible causes of motor disabilities—but the most common stem from difficult births—sometimes from birth anoxyia, a breathing problem caused by a prolapsed cord or a cord wrapped around the infant's neck, momentarily hindering the oxygen supply to the brain.

"But usually it is not too fruitful to determine the cause or to worry about whose genes are at fault. It is better to try to solve the problem," Cratty says.

He hires undergraduate students to work with the youngsters, aged four to 13, on about a one-to-three ratio. Smaller groups put too much pressure on the child, he feels.

The children practice bouncing on trampolines, tight-rope walking on wide balance beams, and somersaulting on padded mats in the gymnasium of an elementary school.

"The prognosis for these kids is pretty good, if we catch them young enough," Cratty says.

"ALTHOUGH WE do not know whether we have actually modified their neurological problem or just taught them more effective strategies for accomplishing motor tasks."

By the time he's three, Cratty says a child ought to be able to walk a two-inch wide line for 10 feet, draw a simple cross with a crayon, and jump forward three steps with both feet in the air.

At five, he should be able to draw circles and squares, touch his fingertips consecutively to the tip of his thumb, and balance frozen on one foot for four to six seconds.

A seven-year-old ought to be able to toss a ball 15 feet into a four-foot square target and skip rhythmically.

"A five or six-year-old who can't touch consecutive fingertips is also going to have trouble tying his shoes or fastening buttons," Cratty observed.

Check Given For Tree Aid

The Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley presented a check for $1,000 to Mrs. Elizabeth Terwilliger Thursday to assist with the preservation of the butterfly trees of Muir Beach.

The Marin Conservation League is administering the fund, which is called the Elizabeth Terwilliger Butterfly Tree Fund.

Mrs. Terwilliger, the Marin naturalist and conservation leader, is seeking to preserve a stand of about 20 pine trees, where the Monarch butterflies stop from October to February each year during their migration.

Regulations On Baby Cribs Due

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Bureau of Product Safety is drafting the final form of a proposed regulation covering baby cribs.

The regulation will be the first attempt by Uncle Sam to standardize the baby crib industry. According to bureau officials the proposal will eliminate hazardous features of baby cribs, some linked to injury or death in the past.

The regulation will establish a maximum allowable slat spacing dimension, among other things. This will help prevent baby from getting caught between slats and possibly getting strangled.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Blacks Never Had It So Good As When They Were Slaves

DEAR HELEN:

What's the most outlandish letter you've received recently? — CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS:

The following struck me as pretty — shall we say — distorted but, remember, "outland-dish" is in the eye of the reader. There will be some who agree with this correspondent: (On the other hand he may be a satirist in disguise.)

DEAR HELEN:

Several of your correspondents have blamed our country and its people for the "plight" of the Negro. This has no basis in fact. The truth is:

Former slaves were selected from strong African tribes, by their chief, as he knew they would have better lives in the New World than he had in the jungle. The fortunate ones selected were given free food, transportation and medical care. They were valuable cargo and the British sea captains kept them in the holds of their sailing ships so they would not jump overboard and drown.

Actually, the first slaves in the U.S. were white Europeans. They wanted to get here so badly they sold themselves into years of "indenture" so they could have their way paid. They cleared the land, built the houses, planted crops, built towns and roads and had things running smoothly when the Negroes arrived.

When the fortunate black slaves arrived they had quarters ready for them. They were classified as livestock and had the best of treatment, being cleaned and fed before going to market.

While white pioneers were fighting Indians, clearing the wilderness and suffering hardships on their westward march, and the Irish and Chinese died building railroads, Negro slaves were enjoying the security of the large southern landowner's happy life.

After the slaves were freed, all who wanted to returned to Africa and were given their own country, Liberia. Those who chose to remain in the U.S. have prospered immensely, growing in population from less than 300 to over 26 million.

Until a few years ago they were happy: laughing together, or singing in groups. They were admired by white people for their carefree air and liberties that whites didn't have.

But after they took on the troubles and responsibilities of their superiors, they became uptight just like us. They have no one to blame but themselves. — MR. N.M.

DEAR MR. M.:

You're kidding us. . .aren't you? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have an X-rated gentleman friend.

He's X-asperating, X-plosive, X-pensive (spends my money on himself), X-travagant, X-hausting, X-ploitative, X-cluding (where I'm concerned), X-pansive (to other females), and also X-tra dull.

But every time I think of dumping him, someone tells me how lucky I am to get such a gorgeous-looking man.

I'm trying for a light way to say he's a dog, but such an attractive one. What do you think? — PHYSICALLY DRAWN, MENTALLY REPELLED

DEAR PDMR:

I think your gentleman friend is about to X-it from your life, now that you've finally seen him as a "beautiful" hunk of nothing. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

If people just paid attention to the little, ordinary considerations, life would be pleasanter. I'm thinking of the young man at the lunch counter today who chose the time while waiting for his lunch to comb his hair. — E.B.

DEAR E.:

Let's hope he found a hair in his OWN soup! — H.

Primer Out For Indoor Gardeners

A primer for indoor gardeners was written specifically for children but its direct, detailed, no nonsense approach makes it suitable for beginning indoor gardeners of all ages.

Aileen Paul, author of "Kids Gardening" (Doubleday) and the mother of three children, has taught indoor gardening classes for children as part of the community recreation program in Leonia, N. J., where she lives.

Her book includes directions for soil mixtures, planters, terrariums, rock gardens and plant propagation. A chapter on inexpensive plants tells how to grow them from fruit seeds, pineapple crowns, carrot tops and other items that usually are discarded as garbage.

Consumer Resource Center Sets Round

"Health and Health Problems" is the topic of the panel discussion which the Tamalpais High School's Consumer Resource Center will present at 1:30 p.m. April 25 at the center in Wood Hall, Tamalpais High School.

This is the third in the current series of programs on consumer subjects, sponsored by the center. Mrs. Marcelett Henry, head of the school's Home Economics department, is chairman. The program is open to the public at no fee. Reservations may be made by calling the school.

Caftans Still Big

The caftan influence, says fashion seer Leona Bowman, is still casting its shadow for fall, and sophisticated striped denim shirts with caftan embroidery are worth watching for.

New Regulation For Blood Banks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As of April 3, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires all blood banks to register with its Bureau of Biologics. Registration is required of any facility that collects, makes, prepares or processes human blood and blood products such as plasma.

FDA says a complete registration of blood banks is required. Surveys have shown that the blood banking system has not been able to provide consumers with sufficient high quality, safe human blood and blood products.

Swimsuits For 'Uneven' Woman

The Bali Co. has designed swim-sets for the "uneven" sized woman. She can now buy a different size top and a different size bottom.

The swimsets are sold in the foundation departments of most stores.

Marin Opera Action Has A New President

New chairman of Marin Opera Action is Mrs. Thomas E. Wynn of Belvedere.

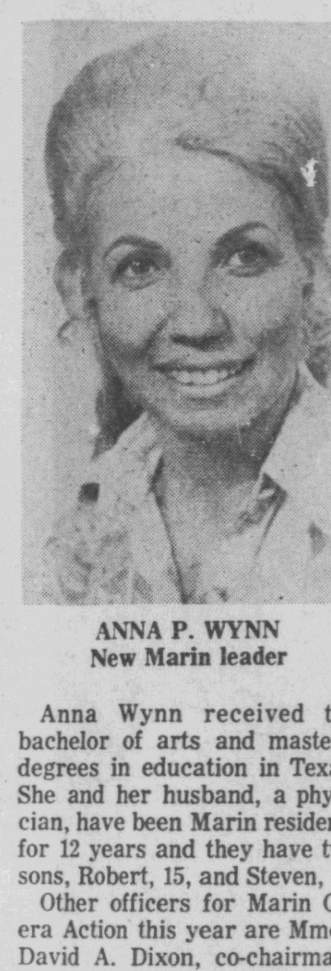
Anna Wynn has been a member for three years, participating in the program to promote interest in opera, particularly the San Francisco Opera and its branches, Western Opera Theater and Spring Opera.

Marin members present previews of the fall season, work at the Opera House, sell tickets and entertain members of the cast and their spouses during the opera season.

Mrs. Wynn said that the group is open to anyone interested in opera.

Born in Salerno, Italy, she herself is a singer and has done concert work in Italy. She also sang with the American Opera Company in Chicago, the Musical Arts Ensemble and the Young Audience Programs and in concerts in the Bay Area.

She also enjoys playing piano, painting and writing stories and novels.



ANNA P. WYNN

The Virus Check

Researchers have discovered that virus infections can be carried from one fabric to another and live for long periods of time. But hot water washing of clothing tends to help eliminate the problem.

Denims Popular

Glazed chintzes, glazed chambray and sateen are among summer '73 sportswear signatures — with denim a favorite, particularly washed-out denim.

Special Tool Out For Bias Tubing

To turn bias tubing after stitching often maddens home-sewers. The tiny tube of fabric, too narrow to respond to unaided fingers, has been exasperatingly poked at with a steel knitting needle-only to creep, bunch and escape. But now there is a special tool, a loop turner.

The manufacturer says it makes tube-turning easy, right side out with no trouble and in a few minutes. It is a slender steel shaft with latched hook at one end and ring handle at the other. It is suited to dressmaker tubing of all kinds.

The sixth annual Village Fair co-sponsored by the Novato Senior Citizens and Novato Parks and Recreation Department will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday and from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday at the Novato Community Center.

Non-profit organizations will have 18 booths at the fair, and the Senior Citizens will award a home-made quilt.

The Virus Check

Researchers have discovered that virus infections can be carried from one fabric to another and live for long periods of time. But hot water washing of clothing tends to help eliminate the problem.

Organizations, chairmen and specialties include the Sunny Hills Bargain Box, Mrs. Mary Ellen Lester, plants and crafts; Donald V. Westlund Auxiliary, 7816, Mrs. Earl L. Stewart, needlework, cards, stationery and gadgets; Our Lady of Loretto School Parent-Teacher Group, Mrs. Frances Crane, stuffed animals, aprons and puppets; Lloyd Andrews, Hamilton Unit 540, American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Vera Young, handcraft items.

Novato Newcomers Paint and Putter Group, Mrs. Judith Eterovich, tole painting, and flower arrangements; Parents Club of Job's Daughters, Bethel 183, Mrs. Hal Henricks, bazaar items and foods; reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, Women's Group, Mrs. Kenneth A. Borchardt, baked goods and candles.

Novato Senior Citizens, Mrs. Frances Ewing, Refreshment booth; and Novato Senior Citizens, Mrs. Mildred Thompson, white elephant; North Bay Artists, Inc., Mrs. Ella McElroy, oil and acrylic miniatures; Loma Verde Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. Gina Carrali, used books and records; Marin Star Theta Rho 121, Mrs. Chris Wright, shadow boxes, potted plants and candles; Novato Playgrounds, Bonnie Kehoe, children's outdoor carnival.

The North Bay Artists will also have an art show during the village fair.

Denims Popular

Glazed chintzes, glazed chambray and sateen are among summer '73 sportswear signatures — with denim a favorite, particularly washed-out denim.

ART REVIEW

Helen Rich's Mosaics Trace To Many Sources

By ADA GARFINKEL

Mosaicist Helen Steinau Rich draws upon many sources for her inspirations. In her exhibit at Old St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon, Mrs. Rich's brilliantly glowing, unusual three-dimensional hanging mosaics affirm the artist's probing interest and research into many areas for her ideas and materials.

Mosaics are, of course, an ancient art form deriving from early Byzantine religious symbolism and important for their richly decorative and emotional significance.

But Helen Rich's sculptural reliefs are unlike the flatly embedded tesserae of either the Byzantine mosaics (for all the evocative power of the latter), or of most of the present day decorative tile works.

It is as if the artist has invented a new art form (she uses a thick compound of magnesite which she kneads into the contours she needs as a base) to titillate the senses with undulating rhythms and textural vitality which express her concerns with archaeology, mythology, the physical sciences and her own environment.

And from Cambodia, Thailand, Egypt, India, Greece, Italy, and Mexico, she has brought azurite, garnet, obsidian, smalti, petrified woods, mother of pearl and unusual pebbles and rocks. And many ideas.

"Homage to Mycenae" is one idea conceived in situ. A diagramatic elevation plan, Mrs. Rich has recreated the site of Agememnon's Tomb, the road to the Palace, the Lion's Gate and the grave plots where rare treasures were discovered by a German archaeologist late in the 19th Century.

And Akhnaten, the Egyptian Pharaoh (and husband of Nefertiti) is shown receiving the key of life from the sun — declared the only god by the Pharaoh.

The fearsome figure of "Kali," the male-female vindictive god of India and Nepal, is shown wearing a crown and necklace of skulls. But even more fierce is the real-life mosaic portrait of the "Goroka Chief" of New Guinea whom Mrs. Rich witnessed in his full war dance regalia in 1970.

In the area of natural science, Mrs. Rich has designed "Falling Stars" and "Moon, Stars, and Setting Sun." In the latter, the gold hand "represents the hand of God placing the moon in the heavens," according to the artist. Mrs. Rich notes that the stars are made of glass from Cambodia — "the same glass that decorates the temples there."

The artist's favorite mosaic, one hears, is "Molecular Fantasy." In cool blues and greens shaped into a design taken from a chemist's drawings of the molecules of tungsten, hammered copper strips contain the cellular structures in jewel-like clusters of exotic chips, glass and semi-precious metals.

While the gleaming emissions from her materials and rhythmic linear swoops and swirls create abundant energy in their own right, Mrs. Rich reaches further than that when she notes that "the blue at the bottom of 'Molecular Fantasy' denotes the turmoil created by the molecules."

Other mosaics show various insects and birds in various pursuits — most of them highly energized, for example, "Bird in Flight" which represents the swift — "a very fast flying bird that can fly from America to Europe." The artist energizes the bird with "feathers" of sharp, bristly glass points. The sculptured form of spreading wings stands out in sharp relief against the inclined diagonal zigzag to make this mosaic achieve her desired aim: "one of flight and fast movement."

And there is much more to see in this abundantly rich display of talent which was last seen in a one-artist exhibit at the Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco, in 1967.

Mrs. Rich's present exhibit, sponsored by the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society, will continue through May 20, and may be viewed on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons from 1 until 4 o'clock.

Survey Being Taken In Inverness Area

Questionnaires asking residents of the Inverness area their opinions on topics ranging from land use and promotion of tourism to water services and transportation are being taken door-to-door by volunteers from the Citizens Master Planning Group of the Inverness area.

Marjorie Stone, group member in charge of distributing the questionnaires, said they also would be mailed to non-resident property owners. All those who reside, own property, or work in the area and who are at least 18 years old, are being asked to complete the survey questionnaires.

Some 2,500 are to be distributed.

"The purpose of the Citizens Master Planning Group", according to a letter accompanying each questionnaire, "is to find out the opinions and attitudes of the people here and to use them in the development of a detailed local master plan for the Inverness area.

"This local plan will then be incorporated in whole or in part into the countywide master plan and will become crucial in the future of Inverness. This opinion survey is the initial step in the development of such a detail plan," according to the letter from the survey committee.

The communities of Seahaven, Inverness, Paradise Estates, Inverness Park and Silver Hills are included in the area. The planning effort is jointly sponsored by the Inverness Improvement Association and the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin.

The two-part survey, a product of several committee discussions and two public meetings in Inverness, contains 74 statements with which respondents are asked to indicate that they agree, disagree or are undecided.

All questionnaires are to be returned by May 21, after which a community meeting will be called.

Knox Gelatin To Halt Claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Knox Gelatine Inc., Johnstown, N.Y., today agreed to stop advertising that Knox Gelatine Drink is an important health and nutrition aid.

Under a consent order tentatively accepted by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), the firm also was forbidden from saying that gelatine protein in general is a high quality protein or a source of nutritional benefit, or that any relative food product leads to good health or is nutritious.

The FPC had contended that gelatine protein is relatively low in quality and of little nutritional good, and that Knox Gelatine Drink, contrary to the firm's ads, does not contribute in a major way to nutrition.

Actors Playhouse Sets 'Butterflies'

Proceeds from the event — sponsored by the school's parents' club — will be used to purchase equipment for school science, reading and mathematics laboratories.

Obedience Class Planned For Dogs

A dog obedience class will get under way at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Rohnert Park Community Center.

The nine-week class will be instructed by William Meisterfeld of Petaluma. Information on the course and costs may be obtained at the Rohnert Park Recreation Department at city hall.

Board Eyes Warning On Schools

The Petaluma Board of Education — angered over rapid growth in Rohnert Park — decided last night to warn parents of crowded conditions to come.

Board members were told the district can expect an additional 690 students at Rohnert Park Junior High School and Rancho Cotate High School by the end of 1974. Upset that neither school can accommodate such rapid growth, board members agreed parents should be informed of future problems so they may have the opportunity to pressure the Rohnert Park City Council into a controlled growth plan.

School board members asked for a growth plan at a joint meeting with the council last month, but were told they must find some means to cope with the new students. Rohnert Park is expected to have 2,025 new homes by December of 1974.

"It's our responsibility to tell all the families of students at the junior high and Rancho Cotate what problems will come by the 1974-75 school year," Dr. William K. Kortum said. "Let's give them the facts about school capacities, the scheduled growth and tell them the alternatives are some form of year-round school, double sessions or an extended school day."

Board members agreed a letter of warning should be sent and asked that a draft be prepared for approval at the April 24 board meeting.

A suggestion by the city council that a special school levy of $250 be charged on each new home to support a construction program was rejected by the board. Members questioned the legality of the extra charge and said, in any event, it would be only a temporary solution.

Members grumbled that it would be impossible to hold successful district bond elections since Petalumans would not support bonds for schools in Rohnert Park, where growth has not been controlled. "We have a different attitude on growth in our two areas," Robert S. Stimson said. "It will be impossible to pass bond issues in the future."

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

CHERRY VALLEY — Rejected a request by parents from Cherry Valley School to delay the conversion to the year-round school plan as scheduled in July. Board members said a poll showed a majority of parents favor the new calendar.

BUDGET — Continued review of the preliminary 1973-74 budget and agreed to consider the request of Rohnert Park residents to add funds to continue special reading and mathematics classes at the junior high school. Federal funds have been reduced by 10 per cent.

MCDOWELL — Heard a group of parents ask the board to delay a decision on changing to a year-round calendar until May so more information sessions can be held at McDowell School.

ADVISOR — Welcomed David Pratt, a senior at Rancho Cotate High School, as student adviser.

CALENDAR — Established the 1973-74 school calendar as Sept. 4 through June 6 with the exception of Cherry Valley School which will be on the year-round plan.

Stiff Sentence On Copper Wire Theft

ACCRA (UPI) — A military tribunal Tuesday ordered two men convicted of stealing 250 pounds of copper wire jailed for 30 years each at hard labor.

Scrap dealers John Owusu, 24, and Emanuel Badasu, 25, were originally sentenced to die for the crime, but the tribunal commuted that sentence.

On Carlin show

Comedian, Guitarist Team Up For Shows

Comedian George Carlin and singer-guitarist Kenny Rankin will appear in two shows April 21 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Performances will be at 7 and 10 p.m.

Carlin, a stand-up comedian, gave an earlier performance in Marin, playing to capacity audiences with singer J. J. Cale.

Such subjects as drugs, sex, the church, police and profanity provide much of his material. Long hair, jeans and a T-shirt are his trademarks.

Rankin will sing ballads of today and yesteryear.

Somona State To Present One-Act Puccini Opera

Performances of a renaissance opera and play will be offered in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College tomorrow through Sunday.

Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi", a one-act opera in English, and Machiavelli's comedy "Mandragola" will be presented by the college opera and drama workshops. Performances will be given each day at 8 p.m. and at 11 p.m. tomorrow and Friday.

The opera will feature Marvin Klebe of the Cinnabar Theater, Petaluma, in the title role. Greed is the basis of the plot as family members try to rewrite a man's will after his death.

Making their debuts with the opera workshop are two college professors, Martin Blaze of the English department and William O. Cord, chairman of the division of humanities.

Local students in the opera cast include Rosemary Brock of Mill Valley, Kenneth Rowland of San Rafael, Anna Secrist of Novato, Tommie Sue Anderson of Larkspur and Donald Tarpley of Rohnert Park.

The Machiavelli comedy deals with amusing looks at shortcomings of people from all walks of life. Charles Cherry of Sausalito and Glen Saukko of Cotati are in the cast.

Both productions are under the direction of Gerd Mairandres, director of the drama workshop. Dr. Peggy Donovan-Jeffry directs the opera workshop.

Reservations should be made through the office of instructional services and continuing education.

Two Puppet Shows Set For Children

The Marin County Library will present two children's puppet shows April 19, at 11 a.m. at the Civic Center Library and at 3 p.m. at the Corte Madera Regional Library.

Performers from the Music Box Puppet Theater will present three plays: "The Frog Prince," an easter play and an original creation by 11-year-old Brian Healey of Tamalpais Valley.

Administrative Post For Teacher

William Hecomovich, former social studies teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School, is administrator of the new Hoberg's Sugar Pine Ranch and School in Lake County, a resident facility for retarded children and young adults.

The new school will open April 23 with emphasis on individual attention in teaching retarded youngsters and adults vocational skills and recreational activities.

Agent Of FBI Is Suspended

DETROIT (UPI) — A high ranking official of the FBI in Detroit has been temporarily suspended on allegations he accepted bribes from area mobsters, federal sources sait Tuesday.

The suspension was revealed in a story in the Detroit Free Press Tuesday in which syndicated Washington columnist Jack Anderson said inspectors sent from Washington "uncovered enough evidence to fire the agent for association with Mafia figures."

Federal sources told UPI that an agent had been suspended, but did not reveal his name or position.

MOSAIC RELIEFS — These richly designed "Humming Birds," with dazzlingly brilliant wings of ruby, topaz and gold semiprecious stones, hover amid inlaid flower forms in a mosaic by Helen Steinau Rich. This relief sculpture and others by the artist are on exhibit at Old St. Hilary's Landmark in Tiburon. (Artist's photo)

ART REVIEW

Helen Rich's Mosaics Trace To Many Sources

By ADA GARFINKEL

Mosaicist Helen Steinau Rich draws upon many sources for her inspirations. In her exhibit at Old St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon, Mrs. Rich's brilliantly glowing, unusual three-dimensional hanging mosaics affirm the artist's probing interest and research into many areas for her ideas and materials.

Mosaics are, of course, an ancient art form deriving from early Byzantine religious symbolism and important for their richly decorative and emotional significance.

But Helen Rich's sculptural reliefs are unlike the flatly embedded tesserae of either the Byzantine mosaics (for all the evocative power of the latter), or of most of the present day decorative tile works.

It is as if the artist has invented a new art form (she uses a thick compound of magnesite which she kneads into the contours she needs as a base) to titillate the senses with undulating rhythms and textural vitality which express her concerns with archaeology, mythology, the physical sciences and her own environment.

And from Cambodia, Thailand, Egypt, India, Greece, Italy, and Mexico, she has brought azurite, garnet, obsidian, smalti, petrified woods, mother of pearl and unusual pebbles and rocks. And many ideas.

"Homage to Mycenae" is one idea conceived in situ. A diagramatic elevation plan, Mrs. Rich has recreated the site of Agememnon's Tomb, the road to the Palace, the Lion's Gate and the grave plots where rare treasures were discovered by a German archaeologist late in the 19th Century.

And Akhnaten, the Egyptian Pharaoh (and husband of Nefertiti) is shown receiving the key of life from the sun — declared the only god by the Pharaoh.

The fearsome figure of "Kali," the male-female vindictive god of India and Nepal, is shown wearing a crown and necklace of skulls. But even more fierce is the real-life mosaic portrait of the "Goroka Chief" of New Guinea whom Mrs. Rich witnessed in his full war dance regalia in 1970.

In the area of natural science, Mrs. Rich has designed "Falling Stars" and "Moon, Stars, and Setting Sun." In the latter, the gold hand "represents the hand of God placing the moon in the heavens," according to the artist. Mrs. Rich notes that the stars are made of glass from Cambodia — "the same glass that decorates the temples there."

The artist's favorite mosaic, one hears, is "Molecular Fantasy." In cool blues and greens shaped into a design taken from a chemist's drawings of the molecules of tungsten, hammered copper strips contain the cellular structures in jewel-like clusters of exotic chips, glass and semi-precious metals.

While the gleaming emissions from her materials and rhythmic linear swoops and swirls create abundant energy in their own right, Mrs. Rich reaches further than that when she notes that "the blue at the bottom of 'Molecular Fantasy' denotes the turmoil created by the molecules."

Other mosaics show various insects and birds in various pursuits — most of them highly energized, for example, "Bird in Flight" which represents the swift — "a very fast flying bird that can fly from America to Europe." The artist energizes the bird with "feathers" of sharp, bristly glass points. The sculptured form of spreading wings stands out in sharp relief against the inclined diagonal zigzag to make this mosaic achieve her desired aim: "one of flight and fast movement."

And there is much more to see in this abundantly rich display of talent which was last seen in a one-artist exhibit at the Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco, in 1967.

Mrs. Rich's present exhibit, sponsored by the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society, will continue through May 20, and may be viewed on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons from 1 until 4 o'clock.

Survey Being Taken In Inverness Area

Questionnaires asking residents of the Inverness area their opinions on topics ranging from land use and promotion of tourism to water services and transportation are being taken door-to-door by volunteers from the Citizens Master Planning Group of the Inverness area.

Marjorie Stone, group member in charge of distributing the questionnaires, said they also would be mailed to non-resident property owners. All those who reside, own property, or work in the area and who are at least 18 years old, are being asked to complete the survey questionnaires.

Some 2,500 are to be distributed.

"The purpose of the Citizens Master Planning Group", according to a letter accompanying each questionnaire, "is to find out the opinions and attitudes of the people here and to use them in the development of a detailed local master plan for the Inverness area.

"This local plan will then be incorporated in whole or in part into the countywide master plan and will become crucial in the future of Inverness. This opinion survey is the initial step in the development of such a detail plan," according to the letter from the survey committee.

The communities of Seahaven, Inverness, Paradise Estates, Inverness Park and Silver Hills are included in the area. The planning effort is jointly sponsored by the Inverness Improvement Association and the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin.

The two-part survey, a product of several committee discussions and two public meetings in Inverness, contains 74 statements with which respondents are asked to indicate that they agree, disagree or are undecided.

All questionnaires are to be returned by May 21, after which a community meeting will be called.

Obedience Class Planned For Dogs

A dog obedience class will get under way at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Rohnert Park Community Center.

The nine-week class will be instructed by William Meisterfeld of Petaluma. Information on the course and costs may be obtained at the Rohnert Park Recreation Department at city hall.

Knox Gelatin To Halt Claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Knox Gelatine Inc., Johnstown, N.Y., today agreed to stop advertising that Knox Gelatine Drink is an important health and nutrition aid.

Under a consent order tentatively accepted by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), the firm also was forbidden from saying that gelatine protein in general is a high quality protein or a source of nutritional benefit, or that any relative food product leads to good health or is nutritious.

The FPC had contended that gelatine protein is relatively low in quality and of little nutritional good, and that Knox Gelatine Drink, contrary to the firm's ads, does not contribute in a major way to nutrition.

Actors Playhouse Sets 'Butterflies'

An Actors Playhouse production of "Butterflies are Free" will be held at Miller Creek School, Marinwood, in a benefit performance at 8:30 p.m. May 12.

Proceeds from the event — sponsored by the school's parents' club — will be used to purchase equipment for school science, reading and mathematics laboratories.

Board Eyes Warning On Schools

The Petaluma Board of Education — angered over rapid growth in Rohnert Park — decided last night to warn parents of crowded conditions to come.

Board members were told the district can expect an additional 690 students at Rohnert Park Junior High School and Rancho Cotate High School by the end of 1974. Upset that neither school can accommodate such rapid growth, board members agreed parents should be informed of future problems so they may have the opportunity to pressure the Rohnert Park City Council into a controlled growth plan.

School board members asked for a growth plan at a joint meeting with the council last month, but were told they must find some means to cope with the new students. Rohnert Park is expected to have 2,025 new homes by December of 1974.

"It's our responsibility to tell all the families of students at the junior high and Rancho Cotate what problems will come by the 1974-75 school year," Dr. William K. Kortum said. "Let's give them the facts about school capacities, the scheduled growth and tell them the alternatives are some form of year-round school, double sessions or an extended school day."

Board members agreed a letter of warning should be sent and asked that a draft be prepared for approval at the April 24 board meeting.

A suggestion by the city council that a special school levy of $250 be charged on each new home to support a construction program was rejected by the board. Members questioned the legality of the extra charge and said, in any event, it would be only a temporary solution.

Members grumbled that it would be impossible to hold successful district bond elections since Petalumans would not support bonds for schools in Rohnert Park, where growth has not been controlled. "We have a different attitude on growth in our two areas," Robert S. Stimson said. "It will be impossible to pass bond issues in the future."

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

CHERRY VALLEY — Rejected a request by parents from Cherry Valley School to delay the conversion to the year-round school plan as scheduled in July. Board members said a poll showed a majority of parents favor the new calendar.

BUDGET — Continued review of the preliminary 1973-74 budget and agreed to consider the request of Rohnert Park residents to add funds to continue special reading and mathematics classes at the junior high school. Federal funds have been reduced by 10 per cent.

MCDOWELL — Heard a group of parents ask the board to delay a decision on changing to a year-round calendar until May so more information sessions can be held at McDowell School.

ADVISOR — Welcomed David Pratt, a senior at Rancho Cotate High School, as student adviser.

CALENDAR — Established the 1973-74 school calendar as Sept. 4 through June 6 with the exception of Cherry Valley School which will be on the year-round plan.

Stiff Sentence On Copper Wire Theft

ACCRA (UPI) — A military tribunal Tuesday ordered two men convicted of stealing 250 pounds of copper wire jailed for 30 years each at hard labor.

Scrap dealers John Owusu, 24, and Emanuel Badasu, 25, were originally sentenced to die for the crime, but the tribunal commuted that sentence.

Comedian, Guitarist Team Up For Shows

Comedian George Carlin and singer-guitarist Kenny Rankin will appear in two shows April 21 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Performances will be at 7 and 10 p.m.

Carlin, a stand-up comedian, gave an earlier performance in Marin, playing to capacity audiences with singer J. J. Cale.

Such subjects as drugs, sex, the church, police and profanity provide much of his material. Long hair, jeans and a T-shirt are his trademarks.

Rankin will sing ballads of today and yesteryear.

Somona State To Present One-Act Puccini Opera

Performances of a renaissance opera and play will be offered in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College tomorrow through Sunday.

Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi", a one-act opera in English, and Machiavelli's comedy "Mandragola" will be presented by the college opera and drama workshops. Performances will be given each day at 8 p.m. and at 11 p.m. tomorrow and Friday.

The opera will feature Marvin Klebe of the Cinnabar Theater, Petaluma, in the title role. Greed is the basis of the plot as family members try to rewrite a man's will after his death.

Making their debuts with the opera workshop are two college professors, Martin Blaze of the English department and William O. Cord, chairman of the division of humanities.

Local students in the opera cast include Rosemary Brock of Mill Valley, Kenneth Rowland of San Rafael, Anna Secrist of Novato, Tommie Sue Anderson of Larkspur and Donald Tarpley of Rohnert Park.

The Machiavelli comedy deals with amusing looks at shortcomings of people from all walks of life. Charles Cherry of Sausalito and Glen Saukko of Cotati are in the cast.

Both productions are under the direction of Gerd Mairandres, director of the drama workshop. Dr. Peggy Donovan-Jeffry directs the opera workshop.

Reservations should be made through the office of instructional services and continuing education.

Two Puppet Shows Set For Children

The Marin County Library will present two children's puppet shows April 19, at 11 a.m. at the Civic Center Library and at 3 p.m. at the Corte Madera Regional Library.

Performers from the Music Box Puppet Theater will present three plays: "The Frog Prince," an easter play and an original creation by 11-year-old Brian Healey of Tamalpais Valley.

Administrative Post For Teacher

William Hecomovich, former social studies teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School, is administrator of the new Hoberg's Sugar Pine Ranch and School in Lake County, a resident facility for retarded children and young adults.

The new school will open April 23 with emphasis on individual attention in teaching retarded youngsters and adults vocational skills and recreational activities.

Agent Of FBI Is Suspended

DETROIT (UPI) — A high ranking official of the FBI in Detroit has been temporarily suspended on allegations he accepted bribes from area mobsters, federal sources sait Tuesday.

The suspension was revealed in a story in the Detroit Free Press Tuesday in which syndicated Washington columnist Jack Anderson said inspectors sent from Washington "uncovered enough evidence to fire the agent for association with Mafia figures."

Federal sources told UPI that an agent had been suspended, but did not reveal his name or position.

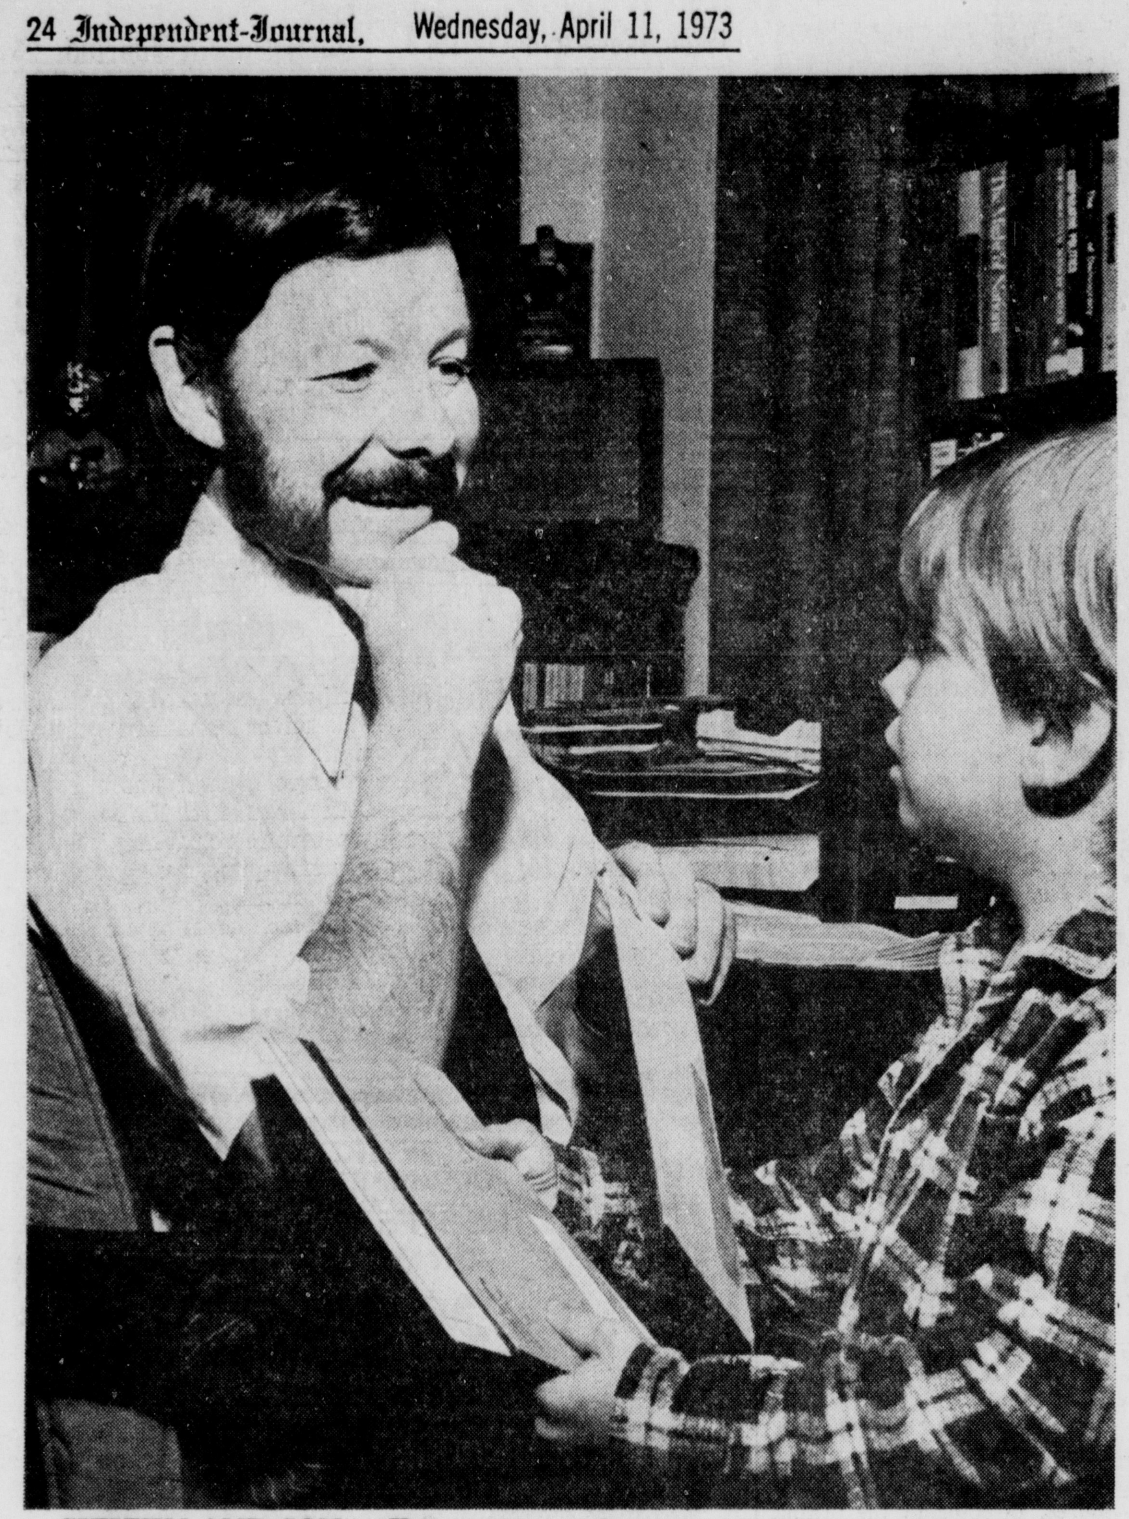
New Citizen Saw World, Chose U.S.



CITIZEN AND SON — Four-year-old Alan E. Oldall helps his father, Alan A., with the mail in their San Rafael home. Oldall, 33, became a naturalized U.S. citizen last month but not without doing considerable looking at this country and many others during an around-the-world tour from 1964 through 1967. (Independent-Journal photo)

Alan A. Oldall took a look at most of the world and decided the United States was best.

He became an American citizen last month in naturalization procedures in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Oldall saved enough from his assistant accountant job in England to finance an around-the-world tour in early 1964 and while in Japan, he met Patricia Sylvain, daughter of an Air Force master sergeant stationed there.

He had planned to come to the U.S. from Japan anyway, but it was nicer when Miss Sylvain's father was transferred to Hamilton Air Force Base.

Oldall, 33, spent most of 1965 and 1966 traveling around the U.S. He visited 36 states "trying to decide whether I wanted to spend the rest of my life here."

He returned to England in early 1967 with Miss Sylvain, then his fiance, completing the circle of his world tour. They were wed in the U.S. in 1968.

He attended the College of Marin and Sonoma State College, receiving his bachelor's degree there in political science. He now is working on his doctorate at the University of California at Berkeley and Davis and plans to be a college professor.

Oldall's decision to become a citizen was partly motivated by his interest in American politics and his intention to teach.

"It seemed strange to tell students to vote when you cannot," he said. "I feel more wanted now than I did originally. Not to be egotistical, but becoming a citizen is a two-way street, you get the country but the country also gets you."

Oldall, from London, is the first of his family to become a U.S. citizen. He and his wife live at 1859 Second Street, San Rafael, with their four-year-old son, Alan.

"I am here entirely by choice," he said. "I like the choice I made and I am happy with it."

Other Marin and Southern Sonoma residents who became American citizens in naturalization procedures in March are:

CORTE MADERA — Indra H. Mirchandani, 110 Baltimore Avenue; Ludmilla Krawchuk, 22 Seminole Avenue; Heinz Wartenberger, 301 Chapman Drive.

Strep Infection Leading Disease

With 145 cases, streptococcus infection was the most prevalent communicable disease reported in Marin County last week, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

There also were 21 cases of gonorrhea.

Valley Colleges Group Forms

A new organization aimed at supporting Indian Valley Colleges, tentatively named "Friends of IVC" is being formed in Novato, according to Irving D. Chapman, group organizer.

"The fundamental reason for forming the group is to establish mutual support between the colleges and the community," Chapman said.

Indian Valley Colleges, second campus of the Marin Community College District, is holding classes in temporary quarters at Hamilton Air Force Base, San Jose Junior High School and Novato High School, with opening of its 330-acre campus at Novato scheduled for January 1975.

Novato Residents To Vote Tuesday On Flood Bonds

Novato Flood Control Zone residents will vote on a $4.5-million flood control bond measure Tuesday, another chapter in a long effort to control the ravages of winter creek overflow in the community.

The election was set after Novato and Warner Creeks and Arroyo Avicchi spilled their banks and flooded scores of homes in January.

Polling places for the 16,770 voters in the flood control zone will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. A two-thirds favorable vote is required for passage.

The zone is a 44-square-mile area from Big Rock Ridge to Gnoss Field and from the Petaluma River to within a mile of the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road.

In 1958 the voters rejected a $900,000 bond measure for flood control by a vote of 1,400 to 333.

Since 1900, it has been estimated that about 25 flood-producing storms have occurred in the Novato Creek Basin, including a storm in January 1940, which inundated about 5,570 acres, according to consultants Royston, Hanamoto, Beck and Abey of San Francisco. Major flooding also occurred in 1955.

Proponents say Novato has a very serious flooding problem that will get worse with increased population and "the bond issue raises the money now to protect and enhance our creeks at the least cost to today's taxpayer."

Passage of the bond measure would raise the district's tax rate from 14.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 27 cents, according to the Novato Flood Control Bond Committee.

To accomplish the same work on a pay-as-you-go basis would require a tax rate perhaps to the limit of $1 per assessed valuation.

Bond retirement would add about $9 a year to the property tax bill on a $35,000 home, according to the committee.

No written argument has been filed against the bond measure, but objections have been raised that it doesn't specify what type of project would be constructed.

Councilman George C. Quesada, protesting this procedure, has said the people should have the right to vote on which type of project they prefer.

The choices are: a project constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers, which would require channelization of Warner Creek and a section of Novato Creek near Highway 101, a modified corps project or improvement of creeks in their natural state.

While costs haven't been set on the projects, the $4.5 million is expected to cover the local costs, which in the case of an Army Corps of Engineers project would be combined with federal funding.

According to the ballot measure, the funds would be used for earthen and lined flood channels, pumping stations, dams and reservoirs, levees, culverts and bridges and aesthetic, recreation and environmental work.

Leroy M. Gerner, cochairman of the bond committee, said the public will have a chance to choose which project it wants after passage of the bond measure.

Gerner said a "local-federal project" would provide for amenities such as lighting and bicycle and pedestrian paths, possibly ponding near Diablo Avenue and creek coverage at the rear of Lu Sutton School.

The outlook of the corps has changed since the controversial Corte Madera Creek flood control project and creek enhancement is considered in its plans, he said.

The corps is tentatively scheduled to present its plan in Novato May 23 and residents will have a chance to make their own choice on a project, Gerner said.

According to the committee, the bond money would enlarge Novato Creek's earthen channel from Highway 101 to San Pablo Bay, provide erosion control, cleaning and beautification of Novato Creek from Diablo Avenue to Stafford Lake and cleaning and enlarging of Warner Creek and the lower portion of Arroyo Avicchi Creek.

CITIZEN AND SON — Four-year-old Alan E. Oldall helps his father, Alan A., with the mail in their San Rafael home. Oldall, 33, became a naturalized U.S. citizen last month but not without doing considerable looking at this country and many others during an around-the-world tour from 1964 through 1967. (Independent-Journal photo)

New Citizen Saw World, Chose U.S.

Alan A. Oldall took a look at most of the world and decided the United States was best.

He became an American citizen last month in naturalization procedures in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Oldall saved enough from his assistant accountant job in England to finance an around-the-world tour in early 1964 and while in Japan, he met Patricia Sylvain, daughter of an Air Force master sergeant stationed there.

He had planned to come to the U.S. from Japan anyway, but it was nicer when Miss Sylvain's father was transferred to Hamilton Air Force Base.

Oldall, 33, spent most of 1965 and 1966 traveling around the U.S. He visited 36 states "trying to decide whether I wanted to spend the rest of my life here."

He returned to England in early 1967 with Miss Sylvain, then his fiance, completing the circle of his world tour. They were wed in the U.S. in 1968.

He attended the College of Marin and Sonoma State College, receiving his bachelor's degree there in political science. He now is working on his doctorate at the University of California at Berkeley and Davis and plans to be a college professor.

Oldall's decision to become a citizen was partly motivated by his interest in American politics and his intention to teach.

"It seemed strange to tell students to vote when you cannot," he said. "I feel more wanted now than I did originally. Not to be egotistical, but becoming a citizen is a two-way street, you get the country but the country also gets you."

Oldall, from London, is the first of his family to become a U.S. citizen. He and his wife live at 1859 Second Street, San Rafael, with their four-year-old son, Alan.

"I am here entirely by choice," he said. "I like the choice I made and I am happy with it."

Strep Infection Leading Disease

With 145 cases, streptococcus infection was the most prevalent communicable disease reported in Marin County last week, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

There also were 21 cases of gonorrhea.

Valley Colleges Group Forms

A new organization aimed at supporting Indian Valley Colleges, tentatively named "Friends of IVC" is being formed in Novato, according to Irving D. Chapman, group organizer.

"The fundamental reason for forming the group is to establish mutual support between the colleges and the community," Chapman said.

Indian Valley Colleges, second campus of the Marin Community College District, is holding classes in temporary quarters at Hamilton Air Force Base, San Jose Junior High School and Novato High School, with opening of its 330-acre campus at Novato scheduled for January 1975.

Batik Display

Batiks by Jane Santucci of San Anselmo will be on display at Redwood Bank in San Rafael during the month of April. Mrs. Santucci's works have been shown throughout Marin County since she began doing batiks in 1966.

Novato Residents To Vote Tuesday On Flood Bonds

Novato Flood Control Zone residents will vote on a $4.5-million flood control bond measure Tuesday, another chapter in a long effort to control the ravages of winter creek overflow in the community.

The election was set after Novato and Warner Creeks and Arroyo Avicchi spilled their banks and flooded scores of homes in January.

Polling places for the 16,770 voters in the flood control zone will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. A two-thirds favorable vote is required for passage.

The zone is a 44-square-mile area from Big Rock Ridge to Gnoss Field and from the Petaluma River to within a mile of the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road.

In 1958 the voters rejected a $900,000 bond measure for flood control by a vote of 1,400 to 333.

Since 1900, it has been estimated that about 25 flood-producing storms have occurred in the Novato Creek Basin, including a storm in January 1940, which inundated about 5,570 acres, according to consultants Royston, Hanamoto, Beck and Abey of San Francisco. Major flooding also occurred in 1955.

Proponents say Novato has a very serious flooding problem that will get worse with increased population and "the bond issue raises the money now to protect and enhance our creeks at the least cost to today's taxpayer."

Passage of the bond measure would raise the district's tax rate from 14.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 27 cents, according to the Novato Flood Control Bond Committee.

To accomplish the same work on a pay-as-you-go basis would require a tax rate perhaps to the limit of $1 per assessed valuation.

Bond retirement would add about $9 a year to the property tax bill on a $35,000 home, according to the committee.

No written argument has been filed against the bond measure, but objections have been raised that it doesn't specify what type of project would be constructed.

Houseboats May Get A Sausalito Reprieve

The Sausalito City Council indicated last night it may not impose restrictions on houseboats proposed in amendments to the central waterfront plan.

On a motion by Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, the Council agreed to consider making houseboats a conditional use on the waterfront, provided they be floating structures and that a height limitation be established.

Presently proposed changes in the plan would limit houseboats to only 2 per cent of the vessels in any marina.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said he thought the city should stick with the 2 per cent limitation or eliminate houseboats altogether in the zone.

The view of the bay on the central waterfront "should not be encumbered by any obstruction, including houseboats," the city manager said.

But the council — and particularly Fraser — seemed unwilling to go along with the staff recommendation. Several members of the audience also rose to speak against it.

"You can put too many restrictions on people," said Councilman Sally Stanford. "I will not vote for this."

In the end, the council took no action on the matter, but referred Fraser's suggestion that houseboats be a conditional use back to the staff which is to present recommendations in the matter at the council's May 1 meeting.

The staff was also asked to decide on a reasonable height limitation for the floating homes.

Also referred to staff was a proposal from Councilman Earl F. Dunphy that the city permit more parking for various uses — such as professional offices — in the central waterfront.

The proposed changes in the plan severly limit parking in the area, in order to discourage use of cars on the waterfront.

Results Of Survey Expected Tonight

Results of opinion surveys distributed by the Point Reyes Planning Group will be announced at a community meeting at 8 p.m. today in West Marin School in Point Reyes Station.

Wilson Turner, chairman of the coordinating committee, responsible for the surveys, said yesterday there had been about a 66 per cent return on some 800 questionnaires given out to residents and approximately a 40 per cent reply from the 217 mailed to nonresident property owners.

While answers to questions on community opinion have been tabulated, responses to the section on demographic information have not yet been counted and will be announced at a future meeting, Turner said.

Reservations Are Being Taken At Spaying Center

The Marin County Humane Society Medical Center is taking reservations for its low-cost spaying and neutering program that will begin operation May 14, according to John Gill, executive director of the society.

"Marin County residents are being given precedence" over nonresidents on the waiting list for population control surgery on their dogs and cats, Gill said yesterday. The service will be available to all Northern California residents, according to earlier announcements.

The humane society's medical center will charge $20 to spay a female dog, including a distemper shot; $15 for a female cat including a feline enteritis shot; $12 for neutering a male dog and $10 for a male cat, Gill said.

The surgery will be performed in a newly constructed medical facility at the humane center on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, Novato.

African Fable Delights Young Audience Seeing Story Theater

By PAUL LIBERATORE

The children at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building yesterday jiggled in their seats with glee when the hunter, perched atop a tree with knife in hand, fell victim to that curious animal "that steals our sight and our minds and some people call him Sleep."

The story was "The One You Don't See Coming," a classic fable from Africa, performed by Story Theater, a 10-member troupe of student actors from California State University of San Francisco.

"What sleep steals he only steals for a few hours," rationalized the defeated hunter, concluding the first of four high-energy, improvisation-style skits presented in two performances for Marin County schoolchildren.

The show was the 17th in an 18-program series sponsored by Youth in Arts, a group made up of members of the Marin Symphony Association, Civic Ballet, Museum Association and Junior Theater of Marin.

"The idea is to bring music, theater, dance and art to Marin children," said program coordinator Helen Crotty.

The show was the kind that children adore, high-speed, frenzied, full of slapstick action and color.

"We try to incorporate athletic acting with few props or scenery," said director Geraldine Silk. "After all, that's the way theater is going."

About 48,000 children from kindergarten through eighth grade, including those at yesterday's performances, have attended the Youth in Arts series this year, said Mrs. Crotty.

In its second season, the group has sponsored daytime performances by the Marin Civic Ballet Association, Marin Shakespeare Festival, Music for Minors, San Rafael High School Jazz Ensemble, Marin Youth Orchestra and others.

About 1,500 youngsters packed the morning show and several hundred more attended in the afternoon. They squealed and cheered as the actors bounded around the stage in brightly colored jump suits acting out four folk tales.

The actors for Story Theater were picked in open auditions at the university, said Miss Silk, and are available to put on shows and acting workshops at Bay Area schools.

Sparse Crowd Hears Candidate Views On Tamalpais School Board Election

Despite a large field of nine candidates and recent turmoil in the district, an audience of only 26 persons appeared last night for the last major turnout of hopefuls in the Tamalpais High School District trustee race.

None of the candidates — seven of the nine appeared — mentioned the sparse crowd until questioned from the audience following opening remarks at Sir Francis Drake High School's Little Theater, which seats about 300.

At that point, the board hopefuls, including the holders of two of the three seats up for election, blamed various circumstances for the small crowd.

"People are largely apathetic . . . until you say, for instance, that you're going to suspend buses," said Robert W. Corlett, current board chairman. He noted also that the candidates' night, sponsored by the League of Women Voters and the Drake Parent-Teacher Association, conflicted with Public Schools Week open houses scheduled last night.

Challenger Maurine Ballard, a retired teacher, said improving community participation in school affairs "means doing something besides talking."

"One of the things we tend to do is communicate in un-understandable language," said Jerrold M. Ladar, the other incumbent seeking to return to his seat at the polls Tuesday. (The third seat being contested is that of David D. Ring, who recently resigned in the wake of the ouster of Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins and controversy over district spending practices.)

Ladar also observed that the crowd exceeded the usual attendance at board sessions.

"The turnout is of concern to the challengers," said candidate Brice Pace, a mathematics teacher. He believed it could mean that the "incumbents are virtually assured of a shoo-in."

Challenger Elaine S. Brockbank, a housewife, said she was "not terribly despairing of" the audience size because she assumed those in the audience would "spread the word" of the evening's developments.

"I think people have given up on the board . . . and I think the same thing applies to candidates' nights," said board hopefuls Lotte Schiller, long involved in Tam District and P-TA affairs.

Said candidate Fred C. Hannahs, a stockbroker: "The indecisiveness of the board has turned off a certain segment of the community."

Failing to appear last night were candidates David A. Brinkhaus, treasurer of the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women, and Sonoma State College history professor Robert A. Karlsrud.

Beyond the crowd size, most of the candidates' remarks focused on possible change in the district and the controversy over classroom emphasis on basic versus innovative subjects, with attention as well to teacher evaluation.

And, for the most part, Pace, Hannahs and Mrs. Schiller seized the opportunity to attack the present board.

Ladar believed a major change already had been made: the replacement of Hawkins with Robert D. Torrey, deputy superintendent.

"Is this the big change?" asked Pace. "I don't think so. I think its purely a continuation of the same thing." He noted Torrey had served as deputy not only to Hawkins but to his ousted predecessor, Chester Carlisle.

Mrs. Brockbank saw no reason why courses in fundamental grammar and the like couldn't be offered, but at the same time favored "more individualized instruction." She said, "Students today need the challenge."

Mrs. Schiller sensed a "climate of uneasiness" and a "certain amount of distrust" in community outlook toward the board. "Too many decision seem to be made behind the scenes," she said.

Miss Ballard thought change could come in the form of increased use of volunteers in the schools, perhaps directed by a special coordinator, and possibly through an evening program for youths and adults.

Hannahs saw a "rather weak and ineffective" board that had made "some horrendous mistakes" in control of the district, and criticized board delegation of certain functions to committees.

"I don't think we're placing the proper emphasis on the rudiments of grammar or the rudiments of mathematics," said Pace. "I think we're engaging in a vast game of gobbledegook."

And he charged that Hawkins and Carlisle had been the "scapegoats of their (the board's) ineffectiveness."

Corlett devoted much of his time to praising district achievements in the areas of communication with the community, staff betterment, cost-cutting and parent awareness of curriculum.

On the subject of teacher evaluation, the board chairman thought emphasis should be placed on review of the performances of student teachers and other new instructors to avoid difficulties later on.

Ladar was critical of the Stull Bill, state legislation requiring local evaluation of teachers. He "held out very few hopes" that it would provide "effective and meaningful evaluation."

To Miss Ballard, district efforts to meet the law's provisions show promise, while Hannahs said evaluation guidelines adopted by the board are tantamount to the "king of France marching up and down the hills . . . a maneuver which produces no results."

Hannahs saw a "rather weak and ineffective" board that had made "some horrendous mistakes" in control of the district, and criticized board delegation of certain functions to committees.

"I don't think we're placing the proper emphasis on the rudiments of grammar or the rudiments of mathematics," said Pace. "I think we're engaging in a vast game of gobbledegook."

And he charged that Hawkins and Carlisle had been the "scapegoats of their (the board's) ineffectiveness."

Corlett devoted much of his time to praising district achievements in the areas of communication with the community, staff betterment, cost-cutting and parent awareness of curriculum.

On the subject of teacher evaluation, the board chairman thought emphasis should be placed on review of the performances of student teachers and other new instructors to avoid difficulties later on.

Ladar was critical of the Stull Bill, state legislation requiring local evaluation of teachers. He "held out very few hopes" that it would provide "effective and meaningful evaluation."

To Miss Ballard, district efforts to meet the law's provisions show promise, while Hannahs said evaluation guidelines adopted by the board are tantamount to the "king of France marching up and down the hills . . . a maneuver which produces no results."

Houseboats May Get A Sausalito Reprieve

The Sausalito City Council indicated last night it may not impose restrictions on houseboats proposed in amendments to the central waterfront plan.

On a motion by Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, the Council agreed to consider making houseboats a conditional use on the waterfront, provided they be floating structures and that a height limitation be established.

Presently proposed changes in the plan would limit houseboats to only 2 per cent of the vessels in any marina.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said he thought the city should stick with the 2 per cent limitation or eliminate houseboats altogether in the zone.

The view of the bay on the central waterfront "should not be encumbered by any obstruction, including houseboats," the city manager said.

But the council — and particularly Fraser — seemed unwilling to go along with the staff recommendation. Several members of the audience also rose to speak against it.

"You can put too many restrictions on people," said Councilman Sally Stanford. "I will not vote for this."

In the end, the council took no action on the matter, but referred Fraser's suggestion that houseboats be a conditional use back to the staff which is to present recommendations in the matter at the council's May 1 meeting.

The staff was also asked to decide on a reasonable height limitation for the floating homes.

Also referred to staff was a proposal from Councilman Earl F. Dunphy that the city permit more parking for various uses — such as professional offices — in the central waterfront.

The proposed changes in the plan severly limit parking in the area, in order to discourage use of cars on the waterfront.

Nixon Announces Contribution List

Jack G. Nixon, candidate for election to the San Rafael City Council, has announced campaign contributions totaling $3,850 to date.

The candidate said that contributors of $100 to his campaign are Richard Less, H. Klieber John McPhail, Frank Battat, William Hoey, Julian Lifschiz, V. Caldwell, J. Kennedy, Peter Palmer, Philip Merriman, Bok Reitzel, Boris Lakusta, George Obana, Francis Whisler, R. Antonelli and George Leonard.

He added that contributors of $50 to his campaign are R. Conrad, P. L. Ginter, Edward Maxwell, Dorothy Briener, Walter Strauss, F. Enemark, George Mitchell, Alan Shattuck, M. Griffin, Charles Dittero, John Nickel, James Placek, H. Kusani, John Manwaring, Alan Roman, Herb Dougan, J. Morgan and William Lynch.

Results Of Survey Expected Tonight

Results of opinion surveys distributed by the Point Reyes Planning Group will be announced at a community meeting at 8 p.m. today in West Marin School in Point Reyes Station.

Wilson Turner, chairman of the coordinating committee, responsible for the surveys, said yesterday there had been about a 66 per cent return on some 800 questionnaires given out to residents and approximately a 40 per cent reply from the 217 mailed to nonresident property owners.

While answers to questions on community opinion have been tabulated, responses to the section on demographic information have not yet been counted and will be announced at a future meeting, Turner said.

Reservations Are Being Taken At Spaying Center

The Marin County Humane Society Medical Center is taking reservations for its low-cost spaying and neutering program that will begin operation May 14, according to John Gill, executive director of the society.

"Marin County residents are being given precedence" over nonresidents on the waiting list for population control surgery on their dogs and cats, Gill said yesterday. The service will be available to all Northern California residents, according to earlier announcements.

The humane society's medical center will charge $20 to spay a female dog, including a distemper shot; $15 for a female cat including a feline enteritis shot; $12 for neutering a male dog and $10 for a male cat, Gill said.

The surgery will be performed in a newly constructed medical facility at the humane center on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, Novato.

Murder Jury Tours San Quentin

By LARRY MOWELL

The jury in the murder case against two San Quentin inmates said to have killed a guard left the fishbowl atmosphere of Marin's high security courtroom yesterday to become the first criminal panel in at least six years to tour the prison.

The two-hour visit guided by Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson went without a hitch.

The jurors — apparently used to being watched after 56 days of trial inside the bulletproof screen at the Hall of Justice — ignored the solemn stares of inmates along their paths and busily looked through peepholes, tested window latches and otherwise showed off their knowledge of the areas they had heard about in trial.

The century-old yellow prison had its best face on. Immaculate flower beds brimmed with blooms and the bay water glistened outside the walls.

From the moment the judge failed the test of a prison metal detector on the way in, the tour was more like a lighthearted Sunday outing than a somber visit to a high security prison.

Two women jurors and a man checking the layout of a bathroom found an inmate using the facilities and retreated in embarrassment, and all the jurors peeked briefly through the window of a hospital room to the consternation of the occupant, who didn't know what was happening.

But, despite the lighter aspects of the visit, the jury was at the prison for the serious business of helping them decide whether Earl Billy Gibson and Lawrence Justice knifed inmate Herman Johnson on July 19, 1971, then killed guard Leo G. Davis two days later as he stood guard outside Johnson's locked cell in the prison hospital.

Gibson and Justice, in civilian clothes, joined the judge, jurors and attorneys as they passed the maximum security Adjustment Center. The group was escorted by five guards and two more officers shadowed the two convicts.

Key points on the itinerary were a concrete stairway where Johnson was attacked and the prison hospital in which Davis was slain.

Most of the visit was devoted to the stuffy, four-story hospital overlooking the bay. The jurors saw the cell from which Johnson allegedly saw Justice, Gibson and another man attack Davis and the spot to which the mortally wounded officer crawled before he died.

But the jury also saw changes from what had been in 1971. The door of Johnson's hospital cell had been replaced, rooms had been remodeled and the fourth-floor ward where post-murder events took place had been abandoned.

Nevertheless, Judge Wilson — who had said before the trip, "I don't like jury views even in condemnation suits," — concluded the visit was worthwhile. He scheduled the trip at the jury's request.

Prison officials didn't mind the tour either. Although cells in the hospital normally left open were locked for the occasion, information officer Lee DeBord said there were "no problems as far as we are concerned."

Wilson said no Marin jury has visited the prison since 1966 or 1967 and DeBord agreed it has been at least that long.

Closing arguments in the murder case were to begin today amid the tight security that has reigned throughout. A $30,000 glass wall separates spectators from the trial, which has failed to draw much public attention.

Spectators, who must be searched electronically and physically before entering the courtroom, usually have been outnumbered by guards.

Judge Wilson said he thinks the last time a jury visited the prison was in the case of a stabbing in 1966 or 1967 in a classroom of the prison's adjustment center.

40-Minute Talk Pays Off On Golden Gate

For 40 minutes today a California Highway Patrol officer talked to a despondent man who was standing on a girder below the sidewalk of the Golden Gate Bridge, threatening to jump.

The efforts of Officer Kenneth H. Babbitt paid off when he and two friends of the would-be leaper finally talked Gary Lee Green, 21, of San Francisco, into coming back to the bridge deck.

Babbit, told by a passerby that Green had climbed over the railing, arrived at a point on the span's west side just south of the Marin tower at 12:30 a.m. to find Green walking along the suspension rail underneath the sidewalk.

For 40 minutes, the patrol said, Babbitt and Green talked while two friends of Green's, Robert P. Simmons and David Scott, both of 2015 Bridgeway, Apt. 1, Sausalito, were summoned.

When Scott and Simmons arrived they were able to talk Green into returning to the sidewalk, officers said. He was taken to Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco for psychiatric observation, the patrol said.

Babbitt said Green, who said he is a musician, told him he was despondent over personal problems.

Bus Lane To Be Closed Next Week

Operation of the exclusive northbound bus lane over the Waldo Grade will be suspended next week while southbound lanes on Richardson Bay Bridge are repaved.

The bus lane will be reopened after the work is completed. The paving is supposed to take two days.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON . GREB

Says who? The question about today's birthday celebrities concerns what they said or did not say. Answer "Yes" or "No."

1. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES (1862-1948) was a law professor, governor, prosecutor, presidential candidate, secretary of state, and Chief Justice of the United States. He defeated William Randolph Hearst for the New York governship but lost his bid for the presidency by 23 electoral votes to Woodrow Wilson. Did he once say, "There will always be a multitude who are congenitally unable to think straight." Yes or No?

2. EDWARD EVERETT (1794-1865) was the orator whose two-hour speech at Gettysburg was overshadowed by the short, moving speech of Abraham Lincoln. As president of Harvard, did he stop protests against admitting a Negro student by saying, "If this boy passes the examination he will be admitted; and if the white students choose to withdraw, all the income of the college will be devoted to his education." Yes or No?

3. DEAN ACHESON (1893-1971) rose from a law clerk to Justice Brandeis to United States Secretary of State under President Truman. He helped guide the Marshall plan development for Europe but was accused of being soft on communis. Did he say, "We have learned. . . that the control of Europe by a single aggressive, unfriendly power would constitute an intolerable threat to the national security of the United States." Yes or No?

4. PAUL DOUGLAS (1907-1959), Hollywood actor, was born in Philadelphia and educated at Yale University. His screen credits include "Letters to Three Wives," "The Big Lift," and "Executive Suite." Did he say, "Why does everyone confuse me with the senator from Illinois? I don't look, talk or vote like him. I'm just plain me." Yes or No?

ANSWERS: 1 - Yes; 2 - Yes; 3 - Yes; 4 - No.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes A Very Simple Play Will Confuse Opponents

You can sometimes hornswoggle your opponents with very simple plays. The play that worked in today's hand, for example, is so easy that even an absolute beginner can use it without having to think twice.

South dealer
Neither side vulnerable

NORTH
♠ 9 4 3 2
♡ 7 5 3
◇ J 8
♣ K Q J 8

WEST	EAST
♠ A 5	♠ 7 6
♡ Q 8 6 4 2	♡ 10
◇ 7 6 4 3	◇ A 10 9 5 2
♣ 7 4	♣ A 6 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ K Q J 10 8
♡ A K J 9
◇ K Q
♣ 10 9

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — ♡ 4

LOW HEART

West opened the four of hearts, and South won with the jack. Clearly, South must lose three aces. Equally clearly, South must draw trumps quickly, before an opponent manages to ruff a heart.

The average player might well lead the king of spades from the South hand. Now, it's a fine idea to lead the kind from a suit headed by king-queen — when you are one of the defenders. It's not necessary when you are declarer, for there is no need to inform your partner. The dummy will find out in good time what you have in the trump suit; in the meantime, there is no need to keep the opponents informed.

DEFEAT AT HAND

If you lead the king of spades, West will pounce on the trick with his ace. He will then lead another heart and East will ruff. This ruff will defeat the contract.

The deceptive play is to lead the queen of spades instead of the king. Simple enough, but often effective.

MAY BE AFRAID

West may be afraid to play the ace for fear that his partner has the singleton king. If West can be induced to refuse the first trump trick, there is no further danger. By the time that West wakes up and takes the second trump, East is out of trumps. The contract is then safe.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- A 5
♥- Q 8 6 4 2
♦- 7 6 4 3
♣- 7 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Despite the excellent heart support the hand is too weak for a jump to four hearts.

Schools Can Also Become Apartments

VIENNA (AP) — To cope with the problem of changing school enrollments, Vienna is building three schools that can be converted into apartments.

The three schools, planned for a housing development, will have 80 classrooms. Should demand for classrooms decline, the rooms can be converted easily into household units.

Replica Built Of Viking Boat

LONDON (UPI) — The National Maritime Museum is building a replica of a 9th century Viking boat, a museum spokesman said.

Work has been going on in a Thames River boat shop since June, 1972, to construct a replica of a faeringen, a four-oared boat, excavated from a burial mound on the Oslo Fjord in Norway in 1880.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON . GREB

Says who? The question about today's birthday celebrities concerns what they said or did not say. Answer "Yes" or "No."

1. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES (1862-1948) was a law professor, governor, prosecutor, presidential candidate, secretary of state, and Chief Justice of the United States. He defeated William Randolph Hearst for the New York governship but lost his bid for the presidency by 23 electoral votes to Woodrow Wilson. Did he once say, "There will always be a multitude who are congenitally unable to think straight." Yes or No?

2. EDWARD EVERETT (1794-1865) was the orator whose two-hour speech at Gettysburg was overshadowed by the short, moving speech of Abraham Lincoln. As president of Harvard, did he stop protests against admitting a Negro student by saying, "If this boy passes the examination he will be admitted; and if the white students choose to withdraw, all the income of the college will be devoted to his education." Yes or No?

3. DEAN ACHESON (1893-1971) rose from a law clerk to Justice Brandeis to United States Secretary of State under President Truman. He helped guide the Marshall plan development for Europe but was accused of being soft on communis. Did he say, "We have learned. . . that the control of Europe by a single aggressive, unfriendly power would constitute an intolerable threat to the national security of the United States." Yes or No?

4. PAUL DOUGLAS (1907-1959), Hollywood actor, was born in Philadelphia and educated at Yale University. His screen credits include "Letters to Three Wives," "The Big Lift," and "Executive Suite." Did he say, "Why does everyone confuse me with the senator from Illinois? I don't look, talk or vote like him. I'm just plain me." Yes or No?

ANSWERS: 1 - Yes; 2 - Yes; 3 - Yes; 4 - No.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes A Very Simple Play Will Confuse Opponents

You can sometimes hornswoggle your opponents with very simple plays. The play that worked in today's hand, for example, is so easy that even an absolute beginner can use it without having to think twice.

South dealer
Neither side vulnerable

NORTH
♠ 9 4 3 2
♡ 7 5 3
◇ J 8
♣ K Q J 8

WEST
♠ A 5
♡ Q 8 6 4 2
◇ 7 6 4 3
♣ 7 4

EAST

◇ A 10 9 5 2
♣ A 6 5 3 2

SOUTH

♡ A K J 9
◇ K Q
♣ 10 9

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — ♡ 4

LOW HEART

West opened the four of hearts, and South won with the jack. Clearly, South must lose three aces. Equally clearly, South must draw trumps quickly, before an opponent manages to ruff a heart.

The average player might well lead the king of spades from the South hand. Now, it's a fine idea to lead the kind from a suit headed by king-queen — when you are one of the defenders. It's not necessary when you are declarer, for there is no need to inform your partner. The dummy will find out in good time what you have in the trump suit; in the meantime, there is no need to keep the opponents informed.

DEFEAT AT HAND

If you lead the king of spades, West will pounce on the trick with his ace. He will then lead another heart and East will ruff. This ruff will defeat the contract.

The deceptive play is to lead the queen of spades instead of the king. Simple enough, but often effective.

MAY BE AFRAID

West may be afraid to play the ace for fear that his partner has the singleton king. If West can be induced to refuse the first trump trick, there is no further danger. By the time that West wakes up and takes the second trump, East is out of trumps. The contract is then safe.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- A 5
♥- Q 8 6 4 2
♦- 7 6 4 3
♣- 7 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Despite the excellent heart support the hand is too weak for a jump to four hearts.

Schools Can Also Become Apartments

VIENNA (AP) — To cope with the problem of changing school enrollments, Vienna is building three schools that can be converted into apartments.

The three schools, planned for a housing development, will have 80 classrooms. Should demand for classrooms decline, the rooms can be converted easily into household units.

Replica Built Of Viking Boat

LONDON (UPI) — The National Maritime Museum is building a replica of a 9th century Viking boat, a museum spokesman said.

Work has been going on in a Thames River boat shop since June, 1972, to construct a replica of a faeringen, a four-oared boat, excavated from a burial mound on the Oslo Fjord in Norway in 1880.

A YOUTH SETS AN EXAMPLE

Students of Allen Roy Weatherhead at San Rafael High School could use him as an example of honesty.

Weatherhead of San Quentin, an 18-year-old teacher's aide, found $50 in cash — two $20 bills and a $10 bill — lying on the ground at about 4 p.m. at the corner of Mission Avenue and Union Street in San Rafael yesterday, police said.

He took the money to the police station. It will be returned to him if no one claims it within a year.

Supervisor Pay Plan Protested

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Protests by taxpayer organizations have forced Sonoma County supervisors to delay plans to grant themselves a salary increase.

Representatives of the Sonoma County Taxpayers Association and Irate Taxpayers Committee criticized the board Monday for considering large increases for itself, as well as eight department heads, at the same time that the county unemployment rate exceeds 10 per cent.

Board members postponed the issue until April 30 and asked interested groups to suggest an alternative proposal.

The board, which says it works full time, last week suggested salaries be geared to that paid to superior court judges. Plans call for the board to receive 50 per cent of the judges' pay this year with gradual increases to bring the ratio to 60 per cent in the next five years. The current annual supervisors' salary of $17,900 would be raised by $280 the first year.

"It is inconceivable to us how any elected official or appointed county employee could be so crass as to ask for a salary raise at this time, with the unemployment rate being what it is in this county," William W. Pisenti, president of the Irate Taxpayers Committee, said. He countered that supervisors should receive only a cost-of-living increase.

Supervisor Charles Hinkle of Santa Rosa balked at the salary plan, saying it should go into effect with the next term of office. "I personally believe no elected officials should get a raise other than the cost-of-living while in office," he said.

Warren's Son's Marriage Comes To End

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The marriage of Sacramento Municipal Court Judge Earl Warren Jr., son of former U.S. Chief Justice and former California Gov. Earl Warren, was ended Tuesday after more than two years of litigation.

Superior Court Judge William M. Gallagher signed a final judgment of dissolution ending Warren's 17-year marriage to the former Cleo Patricia Kent.

The proceedings began Feb. 18, 1971 when Warren filed a dissolution petition with the court. There was a lengthy fight over custody of the couple's four children and division of property.

Last April, Gallagher awarded custody of the four children to Warren with visitation rights granted to Mrs. Warren. But last fall Mrs. Warren was awarded custody of one of the children. Warren is required to make $400--month support payments to his wife until she dies or remarries.

Speakers Set Pollution Talks

William Fairbanks, an agricultural engineer from the University of California, and Jay Gould of the Milk Producers League of California will talk about pollution at a meeting of Marin dairymen at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Point Reyes Station Community Center.

The meeting is sponsored by the dairy waste committee of Marin County Farm Bureau and the farm adviser's office.

Farm bureau directors yesterday changed their meeting date from the second Tuesday to the second Wednesday of each month because Tuesdays conflict with meetings of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, according to Ulla McLean, secretary. The farm bureau board meets at 10 a.m. at the farm bureau office, Shoreline Highway and Mesa Road, Point Reyes Station.

Probation In A Fatal Crash

NEW CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — A New York City fireman was sentenced to five years probation Tuesday in the death of five high school students in a bus-train accident one year ago.

Joseph Larkin, a part-time school bus driver, was convicted of negligent homicide in the case, in which he allegedly failed to stop the bus at a railroad crossing despite warning cries from students on the bus.

Rockland County Court Judge John Galluci said he was in full agreement with the conviction, but said no one would benefit by sending Larkin to jail. Larkin said he had suffered terribly since the crash and that it would remain on his conscience for the rest of his life.

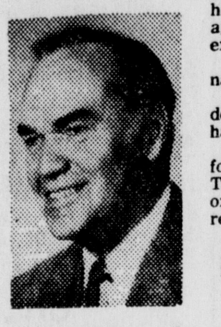
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Food Is Source of Security As Well As Hunger Satisfier



Food not only satisfies hunger, but brings security. People have been known to steal, beg, or kill for it. Explorers sent out to find new sources of food have made history when new worlds were discovered. Fortunes have been made and lost on different edibles. A full larder is power. Starving nations have surrendered unconditionally to their enemies. Food is a bargaining tool used to reward good behavior and withheld as a punishment for bad behavior.

PRIMITIVE MAN gorged himself when game was plentiful and starved when it was scarce. He knew nothing about proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals, and vitamins and cared less. Nevertheless, many races developed taboos and customs as to what could and could not be eaten. Many of these customs persist to this day and are filled with different meanings and symbols. Diets are varied because of the many cultures that exist in the United States.

Deeply rooted feelings about certain foods do not yield easily to reasoning. Nor do believers knuckle down to scientific facts about nutrition. What one group may consider choice foods, others find nauseating and vice versa. The thought of eating dogs, grasshoppers, or horsemeat, blubber, insects, and certain other animals is revolting to us. In general, people have learned to eat what was available in their geographical area.

The discovery of America introduced many new foods including corn, potatoes, squash, tomatoes, and a variety of beans, berries, and nuts. A century or more passed before some of these items were accepted by Europeans.

Advances in nutritional sciences also helped to sell us on a greater variety of foods. The popularization of the basic seven foods, and more recently, the four food groups, made us more conscious of the need for variety. New methods of processing and preservation also are better accepted. In the past 50 years, the number of items in a food store has increased from a few hundred to more than 8,000.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request, to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o The Independent-Journal.

KEEP P UP

T. writes: Is it harmful for a woman of 57 to touch her toes by bending 50 times a day?

REPLY

No — and more power to her.

SUGAR TEST

K. R. writes: According to a magazine article I read, anyone can diagnose diabetes by dropping a pill into a urine sample. The change of color determines whether diabetes is present. Is it this simple?

REPLY

The test is simple in that it determines whether sugar is present in the urine. A more simple test is to dip a small strip of specially prepared paper into urine; changes in the color of the paper indicate the presence of sugar. But not everyone with sugar in the urine has diabetes, as it is found in many normal persons, especially after they eat a meal rich in carbohydrates.

GAGS AT DENTIST

J. C. writes: I'm scheduled for extensive dental work. Since I gag easily, I'd like to know if anything can be done to prevent this uncomfortable sensation.

REPLY

The dentist can anesthetize the throat, if need be. In some instances, a tranquilizer solves the problem.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, April 11, the 101st day of 1973 with 264 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

American statesman and orator Edward Everett was born April 11, 1794.

On this day in history:

In 1947, Jackie Robinson became the first Negro in major league baseball when he played for the Brooklyn Dodgers against the New York Yankees in an exhibition game.

In 1966, Guam-based B52's bombed Vietnam for the first time.

In 1968, President Lyndon Johnson ordered 24,500 military reservists called up, half of them for duty in Vietnam.

In 1970, the Apollo 13 spacecraft headed for the third U.S. landing on the moon. The attempt was aborted when a faulty oxygen tank exploded. The astronauts returned to earth safely.

A thought for the day: General of the Army Douglas MacArthur said, "There is no substitute for victory."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, light air pollution.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Probation In A Fatal Crash

NEW CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — A New York City fireman was sentenced to five years probation Tuesday in the death of five high school students in a bus-train accident one year ago.

Joseph Larkin, a part-time school bus driver, was convicted of negligent homicide in the case, in which he allegedly failed to stop the bus at a railroad crossing despite warning cries from students on the bus.

Rockland County Court Judge John Galluci said he was in full agreement with the conviction, but said no one would benefit by sending Larkin to jail. Larkin said he had suffered terribly since the crash and that it would remain on his conscience for the rest of his life.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Food Is Source of Security As Well As Hunger Satisfier

Food not only satisfies hunger, but brings security. People have been known to steal, beg, or kill for it. Explorers sent out to find new sources of food have made history when new worlds were discovered. Fortunes have been made and lost on different edibles. A full larder is power. Starving nations have surrendered unconditionally to their enemies. Food is a bargaining tool used to reward good behavior and withheld as a punishment for bad behavior.

PRIMITIVE MAN gorged himself when game was plentiful and starved when it was scarce. He knew nothing about proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals, and vitamins and cared less. Nevertheless, many races developed taboos and customs as to what could and could not be eaten. Many of these customs persist to this day and are filled with different meanings and symbols. Diets are varied because of the many cultures that exist in the United States.

Deeply rooted feelings about certain foods do not yield easily to reasoning. Nor do believers knuckle down to scientific facts about nutrition. What one group may consider choice foods, others find nauseating and vice versa. The thought of eating dogs, grasshoppers, or horsemeat, blubber, insects, and certain other animals is revolting to us. In general, people have learned to eat what was available in their geographical area.

The discovery of America introduced many new foods including corn, potatoes, squash, tomatoes, and a variety of beans, berries, and nuts. A century or more passed before some of these items were accepted by Europeans.

Advances in nutritional sciences also helped to sell us on a greater variety of foods. The popularization of the basic seven foods, and more recently, the four food groups, made us more conscious of the need for variety. New methods of processing and preservation also are better accepted. In the past 50 years, the number of items in a food store has increased from a few hundred to more than 8,000.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request, to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o The Independent-Journal.

KEEP P UP

T. writes: Is it harmful for a woman of 57 to touch her toes by bending 50 times a day?

REPLY

No — and more power to her.

SUGAR TEST

K. R. writes: According to a magazine article I read, anyone can diagnose diabetes by dropping a pill into a urine sample. The change of color determines whether diabetes is present. Is it this simple?

REPLY

The test is simple in that it determines whether sugar is present in the urine. A more simple test is to dip a small strip of specially prepared paper into urine; changes in the color of the paper indicate the presence of sugar. But not everyone with sugar in the urine has diabetes, as it is found in many normal persons, especially after they eat a meal rich in carbohydrates.

GAGS AT DENTIST

J. C. writes: I'm scheduled for extensive dental work. Since I gag easily, I'd like to know if anything can be done to prevent this uncomfortable sensation.

REPLY

The dentist can anesthetize the throat, if need be. In some instances, a tranquilizer solves the problem.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, April 11, the 101st day of 1973 with 264 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

American statesman and orator Edward Everett was born April 11, 1794.

On this day in history:

In 1947, Jackie Robinson became the first Negro in major league basebal when he played for the Brooklyn Dodgers against the New York Yankees in an exhibition game.

In 1966, Guam-based B52's bombed Vietnam for the first time.

In 1968, President Lyndon Johnson ordered 24,500 military reservists called up, half of them for duty in Vietnam.

In 1970, the Apollo 13 spacecraft headed for the third U.S. landing on the moon. The attempt was aborted when a faulty oxygen tank exploded. The astronauts returned to earth safely.

A thought for the day: General of the Army Douglas MacArthur said, "There is no substitute for victory."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, light air pollution.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Fair Queen Eligible For State Title

The Sonoma-Marin Fair queen, to be crowned June 20, will be eligible for the title of Miss California, according to pageant director Carolyn Beach.

In the past the winner has competed in the Maid of California contest at the California State Fair in Sacramento.

Mrs. Beach said this year's contest will feature only one winner with the title of Miss Sonoma-Marin Fair. In the past two girls have been crowned with a separate title for each county.

Applications forms for the contest are available at the fairgrounds in Petaluma or may be received by writing Post Office Box 182, Petaluma.

Contestants must be between the ages of 17 and 25 and never have been married. They are judged on beauty, poise and personality. Girls will be judged in evening gowns and modest bathing suits.

The winner will reign over the five-day fair. She will also serve as "Miss Fair Share" in the United Crusade campaign and will make many appearances in both counties during the year.

The winner will receive prizes from local merchants, including a wardrobe for the week-long Miss California pageant at Los Angeles in August.

Graduates are S/Sgt. Royal J. Latham, Sgt. Eugene E. Sabins and Sgt. Roger L. Taylor, all of the 4661st Material Squadron, the Air Force reported.

Reagan Claims Jet Use Critics Are Nit-Picking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today denounced as "nit-picking harrassment" efforts of a Republican legislator to clamp restrictions on the use of the governor's new jet plane.

He vowed not to "give in."

At a news conference, the GOP chief executive also defended use of the airplane in his statewide travels to recruit support for his controversial state spending and tax limitation ballot initiative.

"I don't see anything wrong with that," Reagan said. "I think that a part of my job and my responsibility has been the taxes of the people of California and the efforts of the last six years to try to reduce them and make them easier to bear."

The governor saved his harshest criticism for Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, who last week moved to write into the state budget bill controls on the use of the governor's newly leased private jet plane.

Way said the jet shouldn't used for out-of-state travel and expressed irritation that Reagan's office declined to disclose publicly where the governor went and who were included as passengers.

"I consider very frankly the proposal nit-picking harrassment and very frankly my own feeling is I'm not going to just give into it simply because of this kind of thing," Reagan said of Way's proposed restrictions.

"If the senator wants to call me and ask me, I'll tell him, including what time I expect to get home and change my clothes," an irritated Reagan declared.

Fair Queen Eligible For State Title

The Sonoma-Marin Fair queen, to be crowned June 20, will be eligible for the title of Miss California, according to pageant director Carolyn Beach.

In the past the winner has competed in the Maid of California contest at the California State Fair in Sacramento.

Mrs. Beach said this year's contest will feature only one winner with the title of Miss Sonoma-Marin Fair. In the past two girls have been crowned with a separate title for each county.

Applications forms for the contest are available at the fairgrounds in Petaluma or may be received by writing Post Office Box 182, Petaluma.

Contestants must be between the ages of 17 and 25 and never have been married. They are judged on beauty, poise and personality. Girls will be judged in evening gowns and modest bathing suits.

The winner will reign over the five-day fair. She will also serve as "Miss Fair Share" in the United Crusade campaign and will make many appearances in both counties during the year.

The winner will receive prizes from local merchants, including a wardrobe for the week-long Miss California pageant at Los Angeles in August.

Graduates are S/Sgt. Royal J. Latham, Sgt. Eugene E. Sabins and Sgt. Roger L. Taylor, all of the 4661st Material Squadron, the Air Force reported.

Reagan Claims Jet Use Critics Are Nit-Picking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today denounced as "nit-picking harrassment" efforts of a Republican legislator to clamp restrictions on the use of the governor's new jet plane.

He vowed not to "give in."

At a news conference, the GOP chief executive also defended use of the airplane in his statewide travels to recruit support for his controversial state spending and tax limitation ballot initiative.

"I don't see anything wrong with that," Reagan said. "I think that a part of my job and my responsibility has been the taxes of the people of California and the efforts of the last six years to try to reduce them and make them easier to bear."

The governor saved his harshest criticism for Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, who last week moved to write into the state budget bill controls on the use of the governor's newly leased private jet plane.

Way said the jet shouldn't used for out-of-state travel and expressed irritation that Reagan's office declined to disclose publicly where the governor went and who were included as passengers.

"I consider very frankly the proposal nit-picking harrassment and very frankly my own feeling is I'm not going to just give into it simply because of this kind of thing," Reagan said of Way's proposed restrictions.

"If the senator wants to call me and ask me, I'll tell him, including what time I expect to get home and change my clothes," an irritated Reagan declared.

Legislator In Tax Trouble

BALTIMORE (UPI) — State Sen. Clarence M. Mitchell III was charged Tuesday with four counts of income tax evastion.

Mitchell, 33, a veteran of six years in the State Senate who has said he will run for mayor of Baltimore in 1975, was accused of failing to file federal income tax forms from 1967 through 1970.

It was later reported that Mitchell failed to file state income tax returns during the same four year period, but the state has not indicated if it will prosecute him on the charges.

There are homeless Children in Marin County.

They're called foster children; but don't think they're any different from those on your own block.

For instance, one parent might have become suddenly ill. Or one parent might be an alcoholic. There might be a family emotional crisis. Or it might be a case of sheer parental neglect. Whatever the circumstances are, the result is the same: the family is too disrupted to properly care for the children.

So they become foster children, depending on the county for food and shelter. But, unfortunately Marin County can't give a child the full-time love and warmth he needs.

This is where citizens of Marin County, like you, come in.

You can sympathize with these children. You might take a child for a day or weekend. Or, better still, you can offer your home to a homeless child.

Whether you're married or single, wealthy or not-so-wealthy, whether you're white or black or yellow, your home can give a homeless child the comfort and human understanding he wants and needs to make it through his painful separation from his real family.

Lee and Sharon DeBord, foster parents, are shown in a family sewing session with three of their children, Billy, Dominique and John.

Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Massie, foster parents of Mill Valley, are shown in a family card game with two of their children, Charles and John.

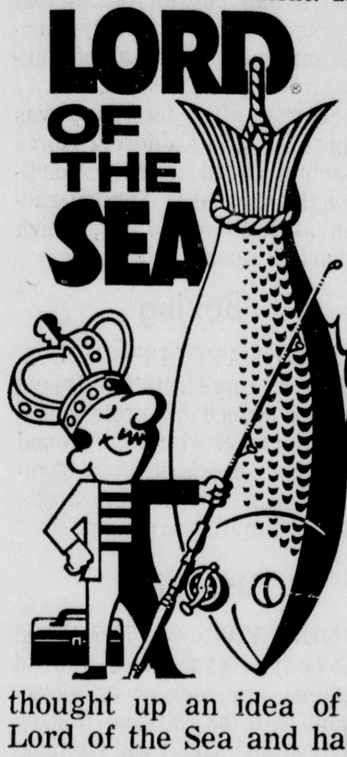
A Gag Turns Into Serious Business

The Lord of the Sea started out as a gag with Keith Fraser but now it's a serious thing, registered with a trade mark and the whole works.

Fraser, a San Rafael man who is head baseball coach at Terra Linda High and co-owner of Loch Lomond Live Bait and Tackle shop, is no longer the Lord. It is now a fictitious fisherman with the ability to catch his limit in bath tubs and rain puddles.



The name originated along the docks of Loch Lomond when Fraser repeatedly limited out on striped bass when other anglers were coming back empty-handed. The fishermen dubbed Fraser, Lord of the Sea, and everybody got a laugh. It was quite a nickname.

But then Fraser thought up an idea of giving birth to a "real" Lord of the Sea and had San Francisco commercial artist Ben Sumrall draw up an emblem depicting the Lord and his catch, and then went through the legality of having it registered.

What about Lord of the Sea T-shirts? thought Fraser. He had a bunch of T-shirts emblazoned with blue Lord of the Sea emblems on the front and started selling them At last count he had sold more than 400 and he hasn't even started advertising yet.

Fraser, a tall, slender fellow who does a lot of softball playing, is now thinking of using the emblem on sweat shirts, dress shirts and tackle and marine supplies. Some of the products Fraser and his partner, Art Donati, sell, such as drifting rigs, leaders and lures, will bear the name of the Lord of the Sea. And they are putting on a Lord of the Sea spring bass derby next month.

Fraser is currently selling his shirts at the Loch Lomond dock and at Taveggia-Brusati sports shop in San Rafael, and he said he might try to sell them throughout Marin and in San Francisco. "I think I'll try selling them at Fisherman's Wharf during Easter vacation week," he said. Oh, Lord!

THIS AND THAT: A note sent to the I-J from the Big Green D of Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., had kind words for freshman Paul Cane of Greenbrae, former Redwood star swimmer and star prep reporter for the I-J. Cane was Dartmouth's top breaststroker and set a school varsity record in the 200-yard breaststroke, 2:13.70. He was an individual winner in six different races during the school's dual meet season. Said Dartmouth swim coach Ron Keenhold:

"Paul was a consistent point getter for us all winter. I am certainly looking forward to having him swimming for the next three years."

FOR THE RADIO baseball fans in the audience, if you are having trouble getting the A's games on KEEN in San Jose, you can try one of the other 15 stations on the Golden Pacific Sports network, such as Santa Rosa's KSRO (1350 on the dial), much closer to home for Marinites. The Giants games continue to be aired over KSFO. And I won't say, "That's right, Lon."

JOE ORENGO of the Giants' speakers' bureau was guest talker at the Kentfield Little League's grand opening last Saturday and had quite a time. "It was one of the best Little League openings I have ever seen," said Joe, a man I remember way back in the days of the Sacramento Solons when he was managing in the late 40s.

Golfer Leach Wins On 2nd Extra Hole

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (UPI) — Ray Leach of Novato, birdied the second extra hole of a sudden-death playoff with Sandy Galbraith of Huntington Beach, Calif., Tuesday to win the 13th weekly $25,000 Western Golf Association event.

Leach, who carded a seven-under-par 65 on his final round, hit a five-foot putt for his bird on the par five, 520-yard second hole at the Via Verde Country Club.

Leach and Galbraith, with a second-round 69, deadlocked at 137, seven under par, for 36 holes. Leach's second-day round included nine birdies and was one shot off the course record.

Leach won $5,000 and Gailbraith earned $3,000.

There was a two-day tie at 139 between Jim Lynch, Pittsburgh, and Gary McCord, Riverside. Each had 69s Tuesday.

Knotted for fifth at 141 were seven players; Rafe Botts, Beverly Hills, Calif.; Greg Trompas, San Diego; Dave Newquist, Kansas City; Denny Meyer, San Bernardino, Calif.; Kent Brown, Corona Del Mar, Calif.; Greg Pitzer, Los Angeles, and Ray Arinno, Sacramento, Calif.

Marin Tar Baseballers Defeated By Skyline, 6-4

Skyline College of San Bruno scored four runs in the top half of the ninth inning — three of them with two men out — to defeat College of Marin yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game in Kentfield, 6-4.

The Tars entered the frame with a 3-2 lead, but yielded the tying run on a walk, error and (following a pop-up) a run-scoring single. After an infield out, however, an intentional walk was followed by a bases-loaded double for two runs and a single for the final tally.

Tom Olson went three for four, Steve Sherry two for three and Don Bianchini two for four for the Tars. Marin scored in the first inning on Dom Pomi-

Jubilant Warriors Return To Oakland

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — It didn't show up in the box score but the leader in assists for the Golden State Warriors Tuesday night was a player by the name of old man winter.

Actually winter did his thing Monday and the Warriors took the ball Tuesday night and ran with it well enough to post a 100-97 win over the Milwaukee Bucks. The Warriors now lead the best of seven series three games to two and can move into the Western Conference finals with a win over Milwaukee Friday night in Oakland.

The Bucks' troubles started the day before the game and continued unabated until the final buzzer. An angry winter snowstorm dumped a foot of snow on southern Wisconsin Monday and the Bucks were stranded in Milwaukee while they wanted to be in Madison warming up for the game.

They finally got out Tuesday morning and made it to Madison in a harrowing 90- minute bus ride over snowpacked roads.

The cold and the inconvenience might have caused a slip in the Bucks and they had a hard time getting the ball in the basket early in the game. The Warriors roared to an 18 points, 51-33 lead midway through the second period and held on for the win.

"That weather didn't have any effect on the game," Bucks Coach Larry Costello said. "It's not an excuse for the way we played. The snow didn't make us commit all those fouls that killed us."

Fouls definitely played a big part in the Bucks' downfall. Golden State, the best shooting free throw team in the league, enhanced its reputation by canning 30 of 35 foul shots for an 86 per cent mark. The Bucks, who had six more baskets than the Warriors, made only 15-of-24 free throws.

When the game ended, with the Warriors barely on top, guard Jim Barnett spiked the basketball — volleyball style — into the press table in jubilation. His move accurately depicted the euphoria i the Warriors' locker room.

"I'm not predicting anything," Warrior Coach Al Attles said. "But we've got a lot of confidence now. We know we can play with these guys. If you prove you can play with someone the wins and losses take care of themselves."

The winning sure took care of itself Tuesday night and the Bucks were a disheartened lot on the bus ride home. Oscar Robertson rode much of the way with his head in his hands, not talking. Coach Larry Costello huddled with his assistant,

In the seventh, John Sims walked, took second on a sacrifice and third on a passed ball, was caught in a rundown following Kevin Loughlin's grounder, but scored as one of the relay throws hit him in the back.

RON SNIDOW ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Defensive end Ron Snidow, a 10-year National Football League veteran and former star at San Rafael High School, yesterday announced he was retiring.

The former Oregon star, who was selected by the Washington Redskins in the third round of the 1963 player draft, said he will pursue a career in business.

Snidow made the decision to retire once before, just after the 1971 season, but the Browns convinced him to come back.

Rough Night For Giant Pitchers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ordinarily, when a team wins by an 11-2 score there is room only for laughs, stories and a lot of kidding.

Not so today for the San Francisco Giants, even though they routed the San Diego Padres by that big score Tuesday night.

That's because they lost one pitcher for sure and another came very close to ending his career just like that, and the tough Houston Astros are in town today to be followed on the weekend by the Cincinnati Reds.

Left-hander reliever John Morris, who had battled injuries and a flock of youngsters to win a spot on the Giants staff, is finished for at least eight weeks, the victim of a freak accident in a "harmless" pepper drill.

Juan Marichal, who pitched so well in the season opener a week ago, is the pitcher who came this close to packing it all in after taking a smash on the knee by Padres leadoff batter Enzo Hernandez.

Morris broke the thumb on his left hand, the one he pitches with, and was placed on the 21-day disabled list, although the preliminary announcement said he will be on the shelf for two months.

Marichal's knee is sore but fortunately the damage is not that serious and the Giants are hopeful he'll take his regular turn Saturday. If he needs additional rest then Ron Bryant will take his turn Saturday and Juan will pitch one of Sunday's two games against the Reds.

Despite taking the blow, Marichal hung around for five innings and the Giants got him enough runs by then—seven—so that he could gain credit for his second victory. Jim Barr held the Padres to one hit over the last four innings and picked up his first save.

A bases-loaded triple by Ed Goodson and Marichal's tworun double featured a six-run first inning against starter Mike Corkins and reliever Gary Ross. And as things turned out, that was the ball game.

Bobby Bonds' two-run double helped the Giants to four unearned runs off Bob Miller in the seventh.

"The knee is sore," Marichal said. "It hurts now but I don't think anything is seriously wrong. I hope there isn't. Maybe I'll feel better in a couple of days. I don't want to sit down while the club is going so good."

Tuesday night's victory was the fourth of the young season in five starts for the Giants, who are tied for first in the National League West with the Astros.

Jim Willoughby (1-0) pitches tonight's game while Ken Forsch (1-0) will start for the Astros. On Thursday, it will be

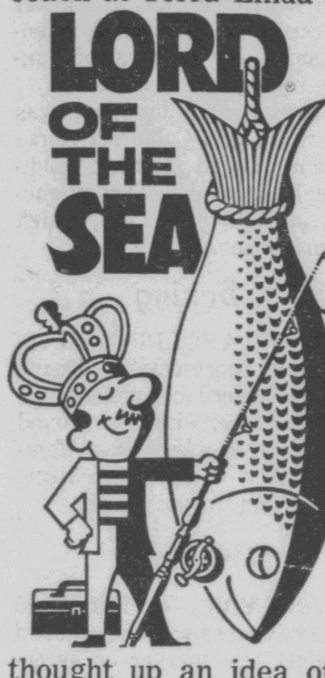
A Gag Turns Into Serious Business

The Lord of the Sea started out as a gag with Keith Fraser but now it's a serious thing, registered with a trade mark and the whole works.

Fraser, a San Rafael man who is head baseball coach at Terra Linda High and co-owner of Loch Lomond Live Bait and Tackle shop, is no longer the Lord. It is now a fictitious fisherman with the ability to catch his limit in bath tubs and rain puddles.



The name originated along the docks of Loch Lomond when Fraser repeatedly limited out on striped bass when other anglers were coming back empty-handed. The fishermen dubbed Fraser, Lord of the Sea, and everybody got a laugh. It was quite a nickname.

But then Fraser thought up an idea of giving birth to a "real" Lord of the Sea and had San Francisco commercial artist Ben Sumrall draw up an emblem depicting the Lord and his catch, and then went through the legality of having it registered.

What about Lord of the Sea T-shirts? thought Fraser. He had a bunch of T-shirts emblazoned with blue Lord of the Sea emblems on the front and started selling them At last count he had sold more than 400 and he hasn't even started advertising yet.

Fraser, a tall, slender fellow who does a lot of softball playing, is now thinking of using the emblem on sweat shirts, dress shirts and tackle and marine supplies. Some of the products Fraser and his partner, Art Donati, sell, such as drifting rigs, leaders and lures, will bear the name of the Lord of the Sea. And they are putting on a Lord of the Sea spring bass derby next month.

Fraser is currently selling his shirts at the Loch Lomond dock and at Taveggia-Brusati sports shop in San Rafael, and he said he might try to sell them throughout Marin and in San Francisco. "I think I'll try selling them at Fisherman's Wharf during Easter vacation week," he said. Oh, Lord!

THIS AND THAT: A note sent to the I-J from the Big Green D of Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., had kind words for freshman Paul Cane of Greenbrae, former Redwood star swimmer and star prep reporter for the I-J. Cane was Dartmouth's top breaststroker and set a school varsity record in the 200-yard breaststroke, 2:13.70. He was an individual winner in six different races during the school's dual meet season. Said Dartmouth swim coach Ron Keenhold:

"Paul was a consistent point getter for us all winter. I am certainly looking forward to having him swimming for the next three years."

FOR THE RADIO baseball fans in the audience, if you are having trouble getting the A's games on KEEN in San Jose, you can try one of the other 15 stations on the Golden Pacific Sports network, such as Santa Rosa's KSRO (1350 on the dial), much closer to home for Marinites. The Giants games continue to be aired over KSFO. And I won't say, "That's right, Lon."

JOE ORENGO of the Giants' speakers' bureau was guest talker at the Kentfield Little League's grand opening last Saturday and had quite a time. "It was one of the best Little League openings I have ever seen," said Joe, a man I remember way back in the days of the Sacramento Solons when he was managing in the late 40s.

Golfer Leach Wins On 2nd Extra Hole

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (UPI) — Ray Leach of Novato, birdied the second extra hole of a sudden-death playoff with Sandy Galbraith of Huntington Beach, Calif., Tuesday to win the 13th weekly $25,000 Western Golf Association event.

Leach, who carded a seven-under-par 65 on his final round, hit a five-foot putt for his bird on the par five, 520-yard second hole at the Via Verde Country Club.

Leach and Galbraith, with a second-round 69, deadlocked at 137, seven under par, for 36 holes. Leach's second-day round included nine birdies and was one shot off the course record.

Leach won $5,000 and Gailbraith earned $3,000.

There was a two-day tie at 139 between Jim Lynch, Pittsburgh, and Gary McCord, Riverside. Each had 69s Tuesday.

Knotted for fifth at 141 were seven players; Rafe Botts, Beverly Hills, Calif.; Greg Trompas, San Diego; Dave Newquist, Kansas City; Denny Meyer, San Bernardino, Calif.; Kent Brown, Corona Del Mar, Calif.; Greg Pitzer, Los Angeles, and Ray Arinno, Sacramento, Calif.

Marin Tar Baseballers Defeated By Skyline, 6-4

Skyline College of San Bruno scored four runs in the top half of the ninth inning — three of them with two men out — to defeat College of Marin yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game in Kentfield, 6-4.

The Tars entered the frame with a 3-2 lead, but yielded the tying run on a walk, error and (following a pop-up) a run-scoring single. After an infield out, however, an intentional walk was followed by a bases-loaded double for two runs and a single for the final tally.

Tom Olson went three for four, Steve Sherry two for three and Don Bianchini two for four for the Tars. Marin scored in the first inning on Dom Pomi-

Jubilant Warriors Return To Oakland

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — It didn't show up in the box score but the leader in assists for the Golden State Warriors Tuesday night was a player by the name of old man winter.

Actually winter did his thing Monday and the Warriors took the ball Tuesday night and ran with it well enough to post a 100-97 win over the Milwaukee Bucks. The Warriors now lead the best of seven series three games to two and can move into the Western Conference finals with a win over Milwaukee Friday night in Oakland.

The Bucks' troubles started the day before the game and continued unabated until the final buzzer. An angry winter snowstorm dumped a foot of snow on southern Wisconsin Monday and the Bucks were stranded in Milwaukee while they wanted to be in Madison warming up for the game.

They finally got out Tuesday morning and made it to Madison in a harrowing 90- minute bus ride over snowpacked roads.

The cold and the inconvenience might have caused a slip in the Bucks and they had a hard time getting the ball in the basket early in the game. The Warriors roared to an 18 points, 51-33 lead midway through the second period and held on for the win.

"That weather didn't have any effect on the game," Bucks Coach Larry Costello said. "It's not an excuse for the way we played. The snow didn't make us commit all those fouls that killed us."

Fouls definitely played a big part in the Bucks' downfall. Golden State, the best shooting free throw team in the league, enhanced its reputation by canning 30 of 35 foul shots for an 86 per cent mark. The Bucks, who had six more baskets than the Warriors, made only 15-of-24 free throws.

When the game ended, with the Warriors barely on top, guard Jim Barnett spiked the basketball — volleyball style — into the press table in jubilation. His move accurately depicted the euphoria i the Warriors' locker room.

"I'm not predicting anything," Warrior Coach Al Attles said. "But we've got a lot of confidence now. We know we can play with these guys. If you prove you can play with someone the wins and losses take care of themselves."

The winning sure took care of itself Tuesday night and the Bucks were a disheartened lot on the bus ride home. Oscar Robertson rode much of the way with his head in his hands, not talking. Coach Larry Costello huddled with his assistant,

Secor led off the second inning with his solo homer about 310 feet to straightaway left field. Redwood also scored a run in the first on Mark LaTorre's RBI single, two runs in the fifth on back-to-back doubles by Bob Vogel and Mike Connor and an error, and one in the sixth as Steve Spellman drew a bases-loaded walk. Pitcher Mike Farris claimed his fourth consecutive victory yesterday as surprising San Rafael High School scored an unearned run in the top of the seventh inning to defeat host Novato, 3-2.

In the seventh, John Sims walked, took second on a sacrifice and third on a passed ball, was caught in a rundown following Kevin Loughlin's grounder, but scored as one of the relay throws hit him in the back.

Redwood High School clinched a tie for the Marin County Athletic League swimming championship yesterday by defeating visiting Drake, 80-4, as John Redig and Troy Dunham won two events and a relay and Tom Schindler took two individual events for the Giants.

Redwood (10-0) needs only to win one of its two remaining meets to capture outright the title for which it tied last year. In other meets yesterday, San Rafael defeated San Marin, 78-11, and Tamalpais topped Novato, 55-40, while second-place Terra Linda (8-2) drew a bye.

Ron Wellman, Dick Atwood and Pat Norton each participated in three victories for Tamalpais, while Scott Hislop and Joe Dunn each won two and a relay for San Rafael.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Slugging Pitchers In National League

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was a cold night that warmed the hearts of the traditionalists.

A spring storm wiped out six games on Tuesday's major league schedule but in the three National League games in Philadelphia, San Francisco and the Houston Astrodome, veterans Steve Carlton and Juan Marichal and rookie Jim Crawford proved they can do without designated hitters.

Carlton singled in a run and scored another to lift the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-5 victory over the Montreal Expos, Marichal doubled in two runs in San Francisco's 11-2 victroy over San Diego and Crawford doubled in a 12th inning run to give the Houston Astros a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

If they had been in the American League, the three pitchers wouldn't have batted but the National League is still playing nine men to a side.

Carlton, who is shooting for 30 wins, helped his own cause in the third inning when he faked a bunt and then punched a single up the middle to drive in a run. He later scored on an error as the Phils jumped to a 4-0 margin and he needed that cushion as he was touched for five runs although he gave up only seven hits.

Crawford came up with two out in the 12th inning and slow-footed John Edwards on first base. He was supposed to be a routine out before the 13th inning started. But Crawford, who pitched two innings of scoreless relief, won his own game with a booming double off the left centerfield wall. George Culver was the victim.

Marichal only pitched five innings because he was hit on the knee by a line drive in the first inning but he helped his cause with his two-run double in the six-run first inning against San Diego. Ed Goodson's bases-loaded triple was the other key blow of the inning.

Regardless of how the game was played, it wasn't baseball weather east of California. The Phils played in 30-degree weather with gusting winds and things were about the same in Kansas City as 39,464 fans shivered as the Royals opened their new stadium in the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex by blasting the Texas Rangers 12-1. The California Angels beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2 in the other game played in California besides the Giant-Padre clash.

Three American League games—Oakland at Chicago, Baltimore at Detroit, Boston at Milwaukee—and three National League games—New York at St. Louis, Cubs at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Atlanta—were postponed because of the bad weather. Milwaukee even postponed all action until Friday.

Rangers Eliminate Bruins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Coach Bep Guidolin of the Boston Bruins thinks the New York Rangers can go all the way in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Rangers, who haven't won a Stanley Cup since 1940, took a giant stride in that direction Tuesday night when they beat the Bruins 6-3 and won their first-round series four games to one. Their next opponents are the Chicago Black Hawks, who advanced to the semifinals of the series Tuesday night with a 6-1 triumph over the St. Louis Blues.

Out ahead may lie the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens, who lead the surprising Buffalo Sabres 3-2 following a Tuesday night 3 2 loss in sudden death overtime.

West Stars As Lakers Edge Bulls

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Jerry West had it when it counted, but Kareem AbdulJabbar didn't.

That was the story of Tuesday night's National Basketball Association quarterfinal playoff round as the Los Angeles Lakers downed the Chicago Bulls 123-102 and the Golden State Warriors upset the Milwaukee Bucks 100-97.

The victories gave both clubs a 3-2 edge in their respective series.

West was the sparkplug for Los Angeles, scoring 36 points and adding 11 assists as the Lakers beat the Bulls for the ninth straight time at the Forum in Los Angeles. West got lots of help from Wilt Chamberlain, who had 29 rebounds and 21 points, and from Jim McMillian, who tallied 20 points.

The Lakers, who squandered an 18-point lead, led by six at the end of three quarters then broke the game open early in the fourth quarter with eight straight points to take a commanding 99-86 lead.

Bob Love led Chicago with 27 points and Chet Walker added 25.

The series continues Friday night in Chicago.

Golden State upset of Milwaukee came about when Abdul-Jabbar missed a hook shot with seven seconds left and the Warriors leading by only one point. The Warriors rebounded the missed shot and, in a last-ditch effort to steal the ball, Oscar Robertson fouled Rick Barry at the final horn. Barry made two free throws to account for the final margin of victory.

Suburban Auto Blue After Softball Losses

Suburban Auto of San Rafael was singing the Blues last night after a double defeat in San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league play at Albert Field.

The Suburban Auto Blues lost the opener to their not-so-friendly counterparts, the Suburban Auto Pistons, when Dennis Staub's two-run triple highlighted a six-run rally in the third inning of the 6-2 game. The Blues lost the nightcap to Kruger's, 6-5.

Combined AP & UPI

ONTARIO, Calif. — Former race driver Parnelli Jones and Tony Hulman, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, don't know whether it will be successful but they now have a one-year operating contract for Ontario Motor Speedway.

The elaborate race plant, once the home of the Miller 500, has been shut down since December when the former operators were unable to pay the interest on the $25.5 million bond issue that financed the track.

Tuesday, a group headed by Jones and Hulman was granted a one-year contract to operate the speedway with options for a long term lease.

More Cold In Store For A's In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Forecasters are predicting near-freezing temperatures in the Windy City today but Vida Blue hopes to keep things warm.

The one-time ace left-hander of the world champions is making his season debut against 24-game winner Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox. Last year at this time Blue was in the midst of his lengthy holdout which lasted into May.

Due in part to his late 1972 start and disenchantment with A's owner Charles O. Finley, Blue finished the season with a 6-10 record. In 1971, Blue won 24 games and was the American League's Cy Young Award winner and Most Valuable Player.

Now Blue is hopeful of getting the A's their first victory of the season after Oakland lost three straight to the Minnesota Twins.

However, the elements may defeat the A's and White Sox before they take the field.

Their series opener was set for Tuesday but a major snowstorm forced the White Sox to postpone the opening one day to today, which was originally scheduled to be an open date.

Short Question

NEW YORK (UPI) — Quick! What's the National Football League award that a player can win only once in his career? It's Rookie of the Year.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Slugging Pitchers In National League

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was a cold night that warmed the hearts of the traditionalists.

A spring storm wiped out six games on Tuesday's major league schedule but in the three National League games in Philadelphia, San Francisco and the Houston Astrodome, veterans Steve Carlton and Juan Marichal and rookie Jim Crawford proved they can do without designated hitters.

Carlton singled in a run and scored another to lift the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-5 victory over the Montreal Expos, Marichal doubled in two runs in San Francisco's 11-2 victroy over San Diego and Crawford doubled in a 12th inning run to give the Houston Astros a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

If they had been in the American League, the three pitchers wouldn't have batted but the National League is still playing nine men to a side.

Carlton, who is shooting for 30 wins, helped his own cause in the third inning when he faked a bunt and then punched a single up the middle to drive in a run. He later scored on an error as the Phils jumped to a 4-0 margin and he needed that cushion as he was touched for five runs although he gave up only seven hits.

Crawford came up with two out in the 12th inning and slow-footed John Edwards on first base. He was supposed to be a routine out before the 13th inning started. But Crawford, who pitched two innings of scoreless relief, won his own game with a booming double off the left centerfield wall. George Culver was the victim.

Marichal only pitched five innings because he was hit on the knee by a line drive in the first inning but he helped his cause with his two-run double in the six-run first inning against San Diego. Ed Goodson's bases-loaded triple was the other key blow of the inning.

Regardless of how the game was played, it wasn't baseball weather east of California. The Phils played in 30-degree weather with gusting winds and things were about the same in Kansas City as 39,464 fans shivered as the Royals opened their new stadium in the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex by blasting the Texas Rangers 12-1. The California Angels beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2 in the other game played in California besides the Giant-Padre clash.

Three American League games—Oakland at Chicago, Baltimore at Detroit, Boston at Milwaukee—and three National League games—New York at St. Louis, Cubs at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Atlanta—were postponed because of the bad weather. Milwaukee even postponed all action until Friday.

Rangers Eliminate Bruins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Coach Bep Guidolin of the Boston Bruins thinks the New York Rangers can go all the way in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Rangers, who haven't won a Stanley Cup since 1940, took a giant stride in that direction Tuesday night when they beat the Bruins 6-3 and won their first-round series four games to one. Their next opponents are the Chicago Black Hawks, who advanced to the semifinals of the series Tuesday night with a 6-1 triumph over the St. Louis Blues.

Out ahead may lie the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens, who lead the surprising Buffalo Sabres 3-2 following a Tuesday night 3 2 loss in sudden death overtime.

West Stars As Lakers Edge Bulls

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Jerry West had it when it counted, but Kareem AbdulJabbar didn't.

That was the story of Tuesday night's National Basketball Association quarterfinal playoff round as the Los Angeles Lakers downed the Chicago Bulls 123-102 and the Golden State Warriors upset the Milwaukee Bucks 100-97.

The victories gave both clubs a 3-2 edge in their respective series.

West was the sparkplug for Los Angeles, scoring 36 points and adding 11 assists as the Lakers beat the Bulls for the ninth straight time at the Forum in Los Angeles. West got lots of help from Wilt Chamberlain, who had 29 rebounds and 21 points, and from Jim McMillian, who tallied 20 points.

The Lakers, who squandered an 18-point lead, led by six at the end of three quarters then broke the game open early in the fourth quarter with eight straight points to take a commanding 99-86 lead.

Bob Love led Chicago with 27 points and Chet Walker added 25.

The series continues Friday night in Chicago.

Golden State upset of Milwaukee came about when Abdul-Jabbar missed a hook shot with seven seconds left and the Warriors leading by only one point. The Warriors rebounded the missed shot and, in a last-ditch effort to steal the ball, Oscar Robertson fouled Rick Barry at the final horn. Barry made two free throws to account for the final margin of victory.

Doug Henderson shot a 36 and Terry Leach a 39 to help the Hornets to their historic victory. Ed Matthews had a 38 for the Pirates.

In the other league encounter yesterday, San Marin edged Tamalpais, 209-205. Three medalists led undefeated Terra Linda (11-0-1) to a 189-201 non-league win over Alameda. Medalists at 36 even par at the Alameda Country Club were Doug Tally, Larry Cartmill and Rich Purdle.

Suburban Auto Blue After Softball Losses

Suburban Auto of San Rafael was singing the Blues last night after a double defeat in San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league play at Albert Field.

The Suburban Auto Blues lost the opener to their not-so-friendly counterparts, the Suburban Auto Pistons, when Dennis Staub's two-run triple highlighted a six-run rally in the third inning of the 6-2 game. The Blues lost the nightcap to Kruger's, 6-5.

Redwood's League Net Streak: 68

Redwood High School's tennis team rolled its 68th consecutive Marin County Athletic League victory yesterday, by shutting out previously unbeaten San Rafael, 7-0, in Larkspur.

Two Top Racing Figures To Run Ontario Speedway

Combined AP & UPI

ONTARIO, Calif. — Former race driver Parnelli Jones and Tony Hulman, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, don't know whether it will be successful but they now have a one-year operating contract for Ontario Motor Speedway.

The elaborate race plant, once the home of the Miller 500, has been shut down since December when the former operators were unable to pay the interest on the $25.5 million bond issue that financed the track.

Tuesday, a group headed by Jones and Hulman was granted a one-year contract to operate the speedway with options for a long term lease.

More Cold In Store For A's In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Forecasters are predicting near-freezing temperatures in the Windy City today but Vida Blue hopes to keep things warm.

The one-time ace left-hander of the world champions is making his season debut against 24-game winner Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox. Last year at this time Blue was in the midst of his lengthy holdout which lasted into May.

Due in part to his late 1972 start and disenchantment with A's owner Charles O. Finley, Blue finished the season with a 6-10 record. In 1971, Blue won 24 games and was the American League's Cy Young Award winner and Most Valuable Player.

Now Blue is hopeful of getting the A's their first victory of the season after Oakland lost three straight to the Minnesota Twins.

However, the elements may defeat the A's and White Sox before they take the field.

Their series opener was set for Tuesday but a major snowstorm forced the White Sox to postpone the opening one day to today, which was originally scheduled to be an open date.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Check Out Your Motor

One would reasonably expect that the outboard motor enthusiast, with his semi-portable equipment, would have the jump on the inboard boatman when it comes to spring work.

I find it's the other way around. The owner of a big inboard craft — and a big investment — normally takes much greater care of his hull and power plant.

It's a sad fact of life that a lot of outboard owners take the motor off their boat, stand it up in the corner of a garage, storeroom or basement, and forget it entirely until the moment they need to use it again.

Even during short lay-up periods in the South, I find outboards are abused by neglect. In the frigid North, it's often sheer disaster.

It shows in some of the questions we get asked about preparing outboards and their boats for the summer fun ahead:

Q. The remote controls on my boat are very stiff. Any advice?

A. Yes, next fall do a better job of winterizing before you put your boat under wraps. For the present, you'll have to lubricate. Take the cover off the control box or "station," and pack it with grease.

Q. There's a puddle of oil under my outboard motor that leaked from around the prop. Is it serious?

A. Serious enough that you should take it to a good outboard mechanic and have the grease seal replaced. Watch how he does it. You can do it next time, but I wouldn't recommend doing it the first time.

Q. There's a half turn of 'play' in my outboard's propeller. Is this normal?

A. There's some lost motion in the gears of all outboards. You can turn the prop back an inch or two by hand. Don't worry about it as long as you have good lubricant in the lower unit.

Q. My 65 horsepower outboard has been on our boat, well supported, since last October. However, I must confess it's been outdoors the entire time. When I tried to turn the motor over, it was seized up. What can I do?

A. An item as expensive as a 65 hp outboard should have been stored with a marine dealer during the winter. But, to answer your question, remove the sparkplugs and squirt a couple of ounces of light or penetrating oil into each cylinder. If that doesn't free it, take it to the dealer you should have patronized last fall.

Q. I bought a boat with an inboard engine last fall. Until now I didn't realize the drain plug in the crankcase is inaccessible. How do I change the oil?

A. A marine dealer will have a pump designed to drain the old oil. This is not an uncommon situation.

Q. There's a nick in one of the blades of my prop. How should I file it out?

A. Very carefully. First, file off as little metal as possible. Then remove the same amount from the other blade. An imbalanced prop will, in time, do great damage to the lower unit of the motor.

Q. I've got 10 gallons of gas-and-oil outboard fuel mix left from early December. How can I determine if the proportion of oil is still adequate?

A. Don't bother. Ask your favorite gas station to get rid of it for you. By now, the old mix could have formed gums or varnish that could plug your carburetor. It sounds like throwing money away, but it's safer.

WARRIORS

Hubie Brown, to try and figure out what was wrong.

The Bucks lost only once to the Warriors during the regular season and they won two playoff games by 20 points. But they have lost three close playoff games to the Warriors and Costello was at a loss to explain why.

One man, however, who seemed pretty certain about what was wrong with the Bucks was General Manager Wayne Embry.

"Some of our guys just don't want to win" he said. "It's obvious. there doesn't seem to be any heart on this club."

Giants skipper Charlie Fox said he doesn't plan to bring up a pitcher from the minors to replace Morris. Instead, he'll send Sam McDowell, his only other lefthander besides Bryant, to the bullpen for both short and long relief.

"I started out as a reliever," said McDowell," so I shouldn't have any problems if that's where they need me. Look, all I want to do is help."

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Check Out Your Motor

One would reasonably expect that the outboard motor enthusiast, with his semi-portable equipment, would have the jump on the inboard boatman when it comes to spring work.

I find it's the other way around. The owner of a big inboard craft — and a big investment — normally takes much greater care of his hull and power plant.

It's a sad fact of life that a lot of outboard owners take the motor off their boat, stand it up in the corner of a garage, storeroom or basement, and forget it entirely until the moment they need to use it again.

Even during short lay-up periods in the South, I find outboards are abused by neglect. In the frigid North, it's often sheer disaster.

It shows in some of the questions we get asked about preparing outboards and their boats for the summer fun ahead:

Q. The remote controls on my boat are very stiff. Any advice?

A. Yes, next fall do a better job of winterizing before you put your boat under wraps. For the present, you'll have to lubricate. Take the cover off the control box or "station," and pack it with grease.

Q. There's a puddle of oil under my outboard motor that leaked from around the prop. Is it serious?

A. Serious enough that you should take it to a good outboard mechanic and have the grease seal replaced. Watch how he does it. You can do it next time, but I wouldn't recommend doing it the first time.

Q. There's a half turn of 'play' in my outboard's propeller. Is this normal?

A. There's some lost motion in the gears of all outboards. You can turn the prop back an inch or two by hand. Don't worry about it as long as you have good lubricant in the lower unit.

Q. My 65 horsepower outboard has been on our boat, well supported, since last October. However, I must confess it's been outdoors the entire time. When I tried to turn the motor over, it was seized up. What can I do?

A. An item as expensive as a 65 hp outboard should have been stored with a marine dealer during the winter. But, to answer your question, remove the sparkplugs and squirt a couple of ounces of light or penetrating oil into each cylinder. If that doesn't free it, take it to the dealer you should have patronized last fall.

Q. I bought a boat with an inboard engine last fall. Until now I didn't realize the drain plug in the crankcase is inaccessible. How do I change the oil?

A. A marine dealer will have a pump designed to drain the old oil. This is not an uncommon situation.

Q. There's a nick in one of the blades of my prop. How should I file it out?

A. Very carefully. First, file off as little metal as possible. Then remove the same amount from the other blade. An imbalanced prop will, in time, do great damage to the lower unit of the motor.

Q. I've got 10 gallons of gas-and-oil outboard fuel mix left from early December. How can I determine if the proportion of oil is still adequate?

A. Don't bother. Ask your favorite gas station to get rid of it for you. By now, the old mix could have formed gums or varnish that could plug your carburetor. It sounds like throwing money away, but it's safer.

Hubie Brown, to try and figure out what was wrong.

The Bucks lost only once to the Warriors during the regular season and they won two playoff games by 20 points. But they have lost three close playoff games to the Warriors and Costello was at a loss to explain why.

One man, however, who seemed pretty certain about what was wrong with the Bucks was General Manager Wayne Embry.

"Some of our guys just don't want to win" he said. "It's obvious. there doesn't seem to be any heart on this club."

lia's RBI single, in the second when Bill Sherbert hit a run-scoring double over the 430-foot sign in center field on one bounce, and in the third when Jim Thompson came home from first base on a wild pick-off throw.

The Tars also tallied in the ninth when Sherry tripled and pinch-hitter Bob Lawrence singled with two out, but the rally died when the next man popped up.

The loss left Marin with a 7-3 conference record, good for second place behind West Valley (10-3) of Campbell, which lost yesterday to Contra Costa of San Pablo, 7-3.

Tim Wallmark opened up the second inning for Petaluma with a single, and three hits and three walks later, he laced another hit to drive in the final two runs of the inning.

Gary Hansen, John Alejos and Dan Solis also singled safely for the Trojans to drive in runs in the second.

St. Vincent (3-0) scored five runs in the eighth inning to remain undefeated and tied for the league lead with Kelseyville,

Pete Leoni hit a triple in the eighth to drive in Ray Serna with the winning run. The Mustangs scored insurance runs on an error by the Wildcat third baseman, a single by Bob Vyenielo and a double by Mike Hromalik.

Healdsburg scored three runs in the top of the seventh inning to put Rancho Cotate into a third place tie with Analy of Sebastopol and El Molino of Forestville at 2-2. Bob Haas was pinned with the loss.

Giants skipper Charlie Fox said he doesn't plan to bring up a pitcher from the minors to replace Morris. Instead, he'll send Sam McDowell, his only other lefthander besides Bryant, to the bullpen for both short and long relief.

"I started out as a reliever," said McDowell," so I shouldn't have any problems if that's where they need me. Look, all I want to do is help."

Profit Taking Wave Cuts Market Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices advanced narrowly today on the New York Stock Exchange as a wave of profit-taking began to undercut gains of the past three sessions.

Two-hour volume came to about 7,000,000 shares, compared with 8,410,000 shares Tuesday.

Analysts said some buying was inspired by higher first quarter earnings reports, but much of the market's strength was being sapped by selling into the recent market advance.

Kennecott Copper Co. led the actives with a gain of ⅜ to 29 ⅛ on 126,200 shares.

Prices were mixed in quiet trading on the American Stock Exchange. Prentice Hall led the actives with a loss of ½ to 21 ½ on 193,200 shares.

Oil stocks were mixed. Ohio Standard lost 2 and Halliburton 1 ¼. Getty added 1 ⅛.

Glamor stocks also declined. Walt Disney was off 2 ⅛ and Schlumberger 1 ⅝.

Steels, motors, chemicals, rails, aircrafts and electronics and computers were mixed in fractions.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Be Sure Your Tax Return Has Sufficient Amount Of Postage

The new Form 1040, together with the many schedules and attachments that must be included to make up your federal income tax return, will probably weigh more than one ounce and will not go through the mails with only one stamp attached.

If your return is mailed close to April 15, it is possible that it could be returned to you for insufficient postage.

We have weighed a standard envelope with the Form 1040 and with more than three schedules, one postage stamp would not be enough.

In order to avoid any possible penalties, you should be sure that the tax return carries sufficient postage.

Californians will mail their 1972 federal income tax returns to the new Internal Revenue Service Center at Fresno: Internal Revenue Service Center; 5045 East Butler Avenue; Fresno, Ca. 93730.

This situation exists with the State of California return also and here again you should be sure that the envelope carries sufficient postage.

State of California individual tax returns with a refund due should be mailed to: Personal Income Tax - Refund Due; Post Office Box 13-540; Sacramento. Ca. 95813

All other State of California individual returns should be mailed to: Personal Income Tax; Franchise Tax Board; Sacramento, Ca. 95867.

PG&E SETS REFUND TO CUSTOMERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. will make $6.3 million in refunds to gas customers during the May billing period, the state Public Utilities Commission said yesterday.

This action stems from refunds made by El Paso Natural Gas Company to PG&E in connection with earlier gas settlements.

The average refund for residential customers will be $1.20 and includes 7 per cent interest. It will be credited to the customer's account.

THE GROWTH STOCKS

Big Gap Price Causes Concern

By MARTIN SKALA

NEW YORK — The wide price gap between leading growth stocks and the average industrial equity listed on the New York Stock Exchange is making institutional investors increasingly uncomfortable.

With the market decline since early January, many money managers are wondering how much longer growth stock favorites such as International Business Machines, McDonald's, and Johnson & Johnson will continue to buck the downtrend.

Selling at price-earnings multiples more than three times that of the Dow Jones industrial average, some two dozen big-name "superstocks" currently represent more than 10 per cent of the value of all shares traded on the Big Board.

Their ownership is highly concentrated in portfolios of banks, insurance companies, and pension funds. Although the growth favorites have been lively performers during the see-saw market of the past three years, some money managers now think they are highly vulnerable to a sizable setback.

Three weeks ago many of the leading growth stocks were clipped for big losses as the market sustained its worst setback in three years.

In a jittery market, it is "awfully difficult" to justify purchases of growth stocks selling at multiples of 40 times estimated 1973 earnings, says Paul F. Miller Jr., partner of Miller Anderson & Sherrerd, a Philadelphia investment management firm.

Speaking at an institutional investors conference here, Mr. Miller chided money managers for ignoring hundreds of solid investment values in their single-minded pursuit of "assured, predictable earnings growth."

The annual conference, sponsored by Institutional Investor magazine, affords money managers of commerical banks, mutual funds, and insurance companies an opportunity to exchange views on the investment outlook and discuss portfolio strategies. A major conference theme centered around the provocative question "Is growth real?"

Judging by the views expressed during the three-day session, a majority of money managers would dispute the charge that IBM, Avon, Walt Disney, and similar growth vehicles are "highly overpriced."

Although many of the 1,500 money managers and analysts were bearish about the intermediate-term market outlook, there was wide agreement that any price decline in quality growth stocks will be relatively moderate.

Growth stocks may slip a bit in a poor market, said a trust official of a Philadelphia bank, "but the banks and pension funds will step in and snap up big blocks of Disney and Xerox long before they look cheap."

Money managers are screening their growth favorites much more carefully than in the late 1960's, when "fad" groups such as franchising, modular housing, and computer peripheral companies caught the fancy of many mutual funds. More than ever before, big investors bestow lofty price earnings multiples only on stocks that show consistently rising earnings and can absorb multimillion-dollar transactions without sharp gyrations.

Consistent growth in the past, money managers say, is what lends credibility to future earnings projections.

In the current Wall Street jargon, predictability of earnings growth allegedly makes a stock like IBM a highly desirable "one-decision" stock. A pattern of irregular growth, even if fitted to a long-term uptrend, is seen as putting a stock into the "two-decision" category, requiring judgments as to when to buy it and when to get out.

If they are picked right, growth stocks don't have to be traded as often as cyclicals, and have a greater upside potential over a three-to-five-year period.

American Home Products, which has achieved 11 per cent growth in earnings per share over the last five years, is put by many analysts into the select "one-decision" category. The firm's steady growth has impressed the market enough to have its shares bid up to a price-earnings ratio of 40.

By comparison, Weyerhaeuser, which has also shown an 11 per cent average annual earnings improvement over the same span, isn't considered to be in the same league.

Since the forest-products company's per share results have moved up in zig-zag fashion, the stock carries a price-earnings ratio only half as high as American Home Products.

In picking out "one-decision" growth stocks, money managers say they look for a company with a clear-cut technological or proprietary product advantage, a high return on invested capital, freedom from government controls, and a high degree of pricing flexibility.

Such firms usually dominate their industry (IBM, or Proctor & Gamble) or sell a unique product (Polaroid with its "instant" cameras). "In screening these stocks, it's important to keep the mesh very tight," advises John Clarens, a director of Lepercq, de Neuflize, a New York money management firm.

The risks of making a mistake are too great, he says, to play around with second-rate growth stocks. Any adverse surprises, such as an unexpected decline in quarterly earnings, can send a high-multiple stock into a tailspin.

Clarens reckons the current market decline may be a fairly steep one, and has moved his accounts heavily into cash. But when the market rebounds, he says, most of his buying will continue to be concentrated in growth issues such as IBM, Johnson & Johnson, and Walt Disney.

Unlike 12 months ago when the economy was in a recovery stage, money managers are leery of committing new funds to cyclical issues, such as steel or autos. If the economy peaks out this year, as many believe, cyclical companies may face an earnings slowdown. The resurgence of inflationary forces, moreover, is believed to enhance the appeal of solid growth stocks. During inflationary periods, says Robert Doty, Philadelphia investment counselor, "the strong gets stronger and the weak becomes weaker."

Sears Garden Sale Proves Big Success

Northgate Sears special garden sale last Saturday morning, which was advertised in the Independent-Journal the previous day, drew such a mob that many customers stood in line for almost an hour to make purchases.

George Hale, merchandise manager for Sears, said there were about 200 people in line when the garden shop opened its doors at 8:30 a.m., and a couple thousand or more went through the shop during the four-hour sale.

"We prepared for the rush and put in four cash registers whereas we have only one during a normal day," said Hale. Even then, there was a crush of people, especially at the start of the sale, but customers seemed to accept the fact that there would be some waiting at a sale like this, Hale added.

The rush of customers was not entirely unexpected. Hale said he has had similar garden sale advertisements placed in the Independent-Journal about six times, and the turnout has been excellent each time. He said last Saturday's turnout was one of the most successful.

Profit Taking Wave Cuts Market Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices advanced narrowly today on the New York Stock Exchange as a wave of profit-taking began to undercut gains of the past three sessions.

Two-hour volume came to about 7,000,000 shares, compared with 8,410,000 shares Tuesday.

Analysts said some buying was inspired by higher first quarter earnings reports, but much of the market's strength was being sapped by selling into the recent market advance.

Kennecott Copper Co. led the actives with a gain of ⅜ to 29 ⅛ on 126,200 shares.

Prices were mixed in quiet trading on the American Stock Exchange. Prentice Hall led the actives with a loss of ½ to 21 ½ on 193,200 shares.

Oil stocks were mixed. Ohio Standard lost 2 and Halliburton 1 ¼. Getty added 1 ⅛.

Glamor stocks also declined. Walt Disney was off 2 ⅛ and Schlumberger 1 ⅝.

Steels, motors, chemicals, rails, aircrafts and electronics and computers were mixed in fractions.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Be Sure Your Tax Return Has Sufficient Amount Of Postage

The new Form 1040, together with the many schedules and attachments that must be included to make up your federal income tax return, will probably weigh more than one ounce and will not go through the mails with only one stamp attached.

If your return is mailed close to April 15, it is possible that it could be returned to you for insufficient postage.

We have weighed a standard envelope with the Form 1040 and with more than three schedules, one postage stamp would not be enough.

In order to avoid any possible penalties, you should be sure that the tax return carries sufficient postage.

Californians will mail their 1972 federal income tax returns to the new Internal Revenue Service Center at Fresno: Internal Revenue Service Center; 5045 East Butler Avenue; Fresno, Ca. 93730.

This situation exists with the State of California return also and here again you should be sure that the envelope carries sufficient postage.

State of California individual tax returns with a refund due should be mailed to: Personal Income Tax - Refund Due; Post Office Box 13-540; Sacramento, Ca. 95813

All other State of California individual returns should be mailed to: Personal Income Tax; Franchise Tax Board; Sacramento, Ca. 95867.

PG&E SETS REFUND TO CUSTOMERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. will make $6.3 million in refunds to gas customers during the May billing period, the state Public Utilities Commission said yesterday.

This action stems from refunds made by El Paso Natural Gas Company to PG&E in connection with earlier gas settlements.

The average refund for residential customers will be $1.20 and includes 7 per cent interest. It will be credited to the customer's account.

THE GROWTH STOCKS

Big Gap Price Causes Concern

NEW YORK — The wide price gap between leading growth stocks and the average industrial equity listed on the New York Stock Exchange is making institutional investors increasingly uncomfortable.

With the market decline since early January, many money managers are wondering how much longer growth stock favorites such as International Business Machines, McDonald's, and Johnson & Johnson will continue to buck the downtrend.

Selling at price-earnings multiples more than three times that of the Dow Jones industrial average, some two dozen big-name "superstocks" currently represent more than 10 per cent of the value of all shares traded on the Big Board.

Their ownership is highly concentrated in portfolios of banks, insurance companies, and pension funds. Although the growth favorites have been lively performers during the see-saw market of the past three years, some money managers now think they are highly vulnerable to a sizable setback.

Three weeks ago many of the leading growth stocks were clipped for big losses as the market sustained its worst setback in three years.

In a jittery market, it is "awfully difficult" to justify purchases of growth stocks selling at multiples of 40 times estimated 1973 earnings, says Paul F. Miller Jr., partner of Miller Anderson & Sherrerd, a Philadelphia investment management firm.

Speaking at an institutional investors conference here, Mr. Miller chided money managers for ignoring hundreds of solid investment values in their single-minded pursuit of "assured, predictable earnings growth."

The annual conference, sponsored by Institutional Investor magazine, affords money managers of commerical banks, mutual funds, and insurance companies an opportunity to exchange views on the investment outlook and discuss portfolio strategies. A major conference theme centered around the provocative question "Is growth real?"

Judging by the views expressed during the three-day session, a majority of money managers would dispute the charge that IBM, Avon, Walt Disney, and similar growth vehicles are "highly overpriced."

Although many of the 1,500 money managers and analysts were bearish about the intermediate-term market outlook, there was wide agreement that any price decline in quality growth stocks will be relatively moderate.

Growth stocks may slip a bit in a poor market, said a trust official of a Philadelphia bank, "but the banks and pension funds will step in and snap up big blocks of Disney and Xerox long before they look cheap."

Money managers are screening their growth favorites much more carefully than in the late 1960's, when "fad" groups such as franchising, modular housing, and computer peripheral companies caught the fancy of many mutual funds. More than ever before, big investors bestow lofty price earnings multiples only on stocks that show consistently rising earnings and can absorb multimillion-dollar transactions without sharp gyrations.

Consistent growth in the past, money managers say, is what lends credibility to future earnings projections.

In the current Wall Street jargon, predictability of earnings growth allegedly makes a stock like IBM a highly desirable "one-decision" stock. A pattern of irregular growth, even if fitted to a long-term uptrend, is seen as putting a stock into the "two-decision" category, requiring judgments as to when to buy it and when to get out.

If they are picked right, growth stocks don't have to be traded as often as cyclicals, and have a greater upside potential over a three-to-five-year period.

American Home Products, which has achieved 11 per cent growth in earnings per share over the last five years, is put by many analysts into the select "one-decision" category. The firm's steady growth has impressed the market enough to have its shares bid up to a price-earnings ratio of 40.

By comparison, Weyerhaeuser, which has also shown an 11 per cent average annual earnings improvement over the same span, isn't considered to be in the same league.

Since the forest-products company's per share results have moved up in zig-zag fashion, the stock carries a price-earnings ratio only half as high as American Home Products.

In picking out "one-decision" growth stocks, money managers say they look for a company with a clear-cut technological or proprietary product advantage, a high return on invested capital, freedom from government controls, and a high degree of pricing flexibility.

Such firms usually dominate their industry (IBM, or Proctor & Gamble) or sell a unique product (Polaroid with its "instant" cameras). "In screening these stocks, it's important to keep the mesh very tight," advises John Clarens, a director of Lepercq, de Neuflize, a New York money management firm.

The risks of making a mistake are too great, he says, to play around with second-rate growth stocks. Any adverse surprises, such as an unexpected decline in quarterly earnings, can send a high-multiple stock into a tailspin.

Clarens reckons the current market decline may be a fairly steep one, and has moved his accounts heavily into cash. But when the market rebounds, he says, most of his buying will continue to be concentrated in growth issues such as IBM, Johnson & Johnson, and Walt Disney.

Unlike 12 months ago when the economy was in a recovery stage, money managers are leery of committing new funds to cyclical issues, such as steel or autos. If the economy peaks out this year, as many believe, cyclical companies may face an earnings slowdown. The resurgence of inflationary forces, moreover, is believed to enhance the appeal of solid growth stocks. During inflationary periods, says Robert Doty, Philadelphia investment counselor, "the strong gets stronger and the weak becomes weaker."

Sears Garden Sale Proves Big Success

Northgate Sears special garden sale last Saturday morning, which was advertised in the Independent-Journal the previous day, drew such a mob that many customers stood in line for almost an hour to make purchases.

George Hale, merchandise manager for Sears, said there were about 200 people in line when the garden shop opened its doors at 8:30 a.m., and a couple thousand or more went through the shop during the four-hour sale.

"We prepared for the rush and put in four cash registers whereas we have only one during a normal day," said Hale. Even then, there was a crush of people, especially at the start of the sale, but customers seemed to accept the fact that there would be some waiting at a sale like this, Hale added.

The rush of customers was not entirely unexpected. Hale said he has had similar garden sale advertisements placed in the Independent-Journal about six times, and the turnout has been excellent each time. He said last Saturday's turnout was one of the most successful.

Even Crime Covered By Privilege

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified Tuesday that the President could invoke executive privilege even to prevent Congress from calling a presidential aide with knowledge of a crime.

"I think it is a frightening concept," said Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine. He said no administration had ever before defined executive privilege in such sweeping terms.

Nixon has used the doctrine to prevent White House Counsel John W. Dean III from testifying in the Senate investigation of the bugging of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate during the last campaign.

Kleindienst testified before a joint session of three Senate subcommittees. He said that especially in criminal cases aides to the President should be denied to congressional committees because, "to safeguard the rights of individuals we have a judicial system."

Kleindienst said that "if the President of the United States directs me not to appear I am not going to appear."

Muskie asked whether presidential use of executive privilege would bar Congress from calling a presidential aide with knowledge of a crime.

"That is my opinion," replied Kliendienst.

"You can conceive of no circumstances?" Muskie asked.

"No I can't," said Kleindienst.

President Nixon said in a statement on executive privilege March 12 that the doctrine would be invoked for employes of federal agencies and departments only in cases of "compelling need" and only with his approval. He said it would be used in cases of cabinet members only with respect to their White House roles. He said it would normally apply in cases involving the presidential staff.

BART Service To City Banned

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) was barred from extending its service Tuesday until the safety procedures—including the automatic train system—begins working smoothly.

The State Public Utilities Commission order applies to any extension of the transit service "involving merging, diverging or crossing" of trains.

BART's extension of service to include the Concord line would not be affected by the ruling and will occur as scheduled May 21.

'Little Cigar' Advertising Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed by a voice vote and sent to the House legislation that would prohibit broadcast advertising of "little cigars."

The bill amends the 1969 Public Health Cigarette Smoking Act, which prohibits the radio or television advertising of cigarettes by adding a provision bringing "little cigars" under the ban.

The R. J. Reynolds and P. Lorillard firms announced in February they would voluntarily discontinue broadcast advertising of the cigarette-sized cigars.

However, Consolidated Cigar Corp. said April 2 it intended to go ahead with broadcast advertisements, and the Senate Commerce Committee pushed through the new legislation.

Officers Elected By Family Service

The Family Service Agency of Marin elected and installed officers for 1973 last night, at an annual dinner in the home of the agency's executive director, Chester F. Villalba.

The new president is Mrs. Walther H. Buchen of Belvedere; vice president, Gary T. Ragghianti of Corte Madera; secretary, Mrs. Lawrence Goldberg of Larkspur, and treasurer, Michael L. Ingerman of Corte Madera.

Financier Indicted On Tax Violations

BOSTON (UPI) — Edward Krock of Worcester, Mass., an internationally known financier, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on seven counts of income tax violations totaling more than $6 million.

Fred Ugast, acting assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's Tax Division in Washington, said it was one of the largest criminal income tax cases on record.

U.S. Attorney James N. Gabriel said Krock was indicted on three counts of income tax evasion totaling $1,443,231. He also was charged with wilfully filing false and fraudulent income tax returns from 1966 to 1969.

Gabriel said Krock is listed as an official of the world's largest surface transportation company, The Fifth Avenue Coach Lines in New York; Defiance Industries of Ohio; Baltimore Paint and Chemical Co., Baltimore; Guaranty Bank of Chicago; B.S.F. Co. of California; American Steel and Pump of New York; Wright Machine Corp. of Worcester; and the Mercantile National Bank of Chicago.

Krock was accused in the indictments of reporting losses on his income tax returns of $32,000 in 1966, $125,000 in 1967, $158,000 in 1968 and $842,000 in 1969.

However, the government charged that Krock should have reported taxable income of $839,000 in 1966, $1.2 million in 1967, and $81,000 in 1968 —or taxes of $558,000 in 1966, $847,000 in 1967 and $36,000 in 1968.

The indictments against Krock, who lives in a 38-room house on his 500-acre Rockinghorse Farm, listed five groups of evaded items. They included:

Unreported interest income of $280,000 in 1966 through 1968.

Income from exercise of stock options of taxable income of $737,000 in 1966 and 1967.

Income from loan commitment fees of $572,000 in 1966-68.

Other income, including consulting fees, of $257,000 in 1966-67.

Alleged fictitious net operating loss deductions of $642,000 in 1967-68.

Included in the four counts of filing false and fraudulent income tax returns were government accusations that Krock omitted more than $3 million in sales of securities from 1966 through 1968; an alleged fictitious judgment fee of $750,000 in 1969; and the omission of interest income of nearly $10,000 in 1969.

All told, the seven counts add up to $6,271,569.

Even Crime Covered By Privilege

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified Tuesday that the President could invoke executive privilege even to prevent Congress from calling a presidential aide with knowledge of a crime.

"I think it is a frightening concept," said Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine. He said no administration had ever before defined executive privilege in such sweeping terms.

Nixon has used the doctrine to prevent White House Counsel John W. Dean III from testifying in the Senate investigation of the bugging of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate during the last campaign.

Kleindienst testified before a joint session of three Senate subcommittees. He said that especially in criminal cases aides to the President should be denied to congressional committees because, "to safeguard the rights of individuals we have a judicial system."

Kleindienst said that "if the President of the United States directs me not to appear I am not going to appear."

Muskie asked whether presidential use of executive privilege would bar Congress from calling a presidential aide with knowledge of a crime.

"That is my opinion," replied Kliendienst.

"You can conceive of no circumstances?" Muskie asked.

"No I can't," said Kleindienst.

President Nixon said in a statement on executive privilege March 12 that the doctrine would be invoked for employes of federal agencies and departments only in cases of "compelling need" and only with his approval. He said it would be used in cases of cabinet members only with respect to their White House roles. He said it would normally apply in cases involving the presidential staff.

BART Service To City Banned

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) was barred from extending its service Tuesday until the safety procedures—including the automatic train system—begins working smoothly.

The State Public Utilities Commission order applies to any extension of the transit service "involving merging, diverging or crossing" of trains.

BART's extension of service to include the Concord line would not be affected by the ruling and will occur as scheduled May 21.

'Little Cigar' Advertising Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed by a voice vote and sent to the House legislation that would prohibit broadcast advertising of "little cigars."

The bill amends the 1969 Public Health Cigarette Smoking Act, which prohibits the radio or television advertising of cigarettes by adding a provision bringing "little cigars" under the ban.

The R. J. Reynolds and P. Lorillard firms announced in February they would voluntarily discontinue broadcast advertising of the cigarette-sized cigars.

However, Consolidated Cigar Corp. said April 2 it intended to go ahead with broadcast advertisements, and the Senate Commerce Committee pushed through the new legislation.

Officers Elected By Family Service

The Family Service Agency of Marin elected and installed officers for 1973 last night, at an annual dinner in the home of the agency's executive director, Chester F. Villalba.

The new president is Mrs. Walther H. Buchen of Belvedere; vice president, Gary T. Ragghianti of Corte Madera; secretary, Mrs. Lawrence Goldberg of Larkspur, and treasurer, Michael L. Ingerman of Corte Madera.

Financier Indicted On Tax Violations

BOSTON (UPI) — Edward Krock of Worcester, Mass., an internationally known financier, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on seven counts of income tax violations totaling more than $6 million.

Fred Ugast, acting assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's Tax Division in Washington, said it was one of the largest criminal income tax cases on record.

U.S. Attorney James N. Gabriel said Krock was indicted on three counts of income tax evasion totaling $1,443,231. He also was charged with wilfully filing false and fraudulent income tax returns from 1966 to 1969.

Gabriel said Krock is listed as an official of the world's largest surface transportation company, The Fifth Avenue Coach Lines in New York; Defiance Industries of Ohio; Baltimore Paint and Chemical Co., Baltimore; Guaranty Bank of Chicago; B.S.F. Co. of California; American Steel and Pump of New York; Wright Machine Corp. of Worcester; and the Mercantile National Bank of Chicago.

Krock was accused in the indictments of reporting losses on his income tax returns of $32,000 in 1966, $125,000 in 1967, $158,000 in 1968 and $842,000 in 1969.

However, the government charged that Krock should have reported taxable income of $839,000 in 1966, $1.2 million in 1967, and $81,000 in 1968 —or taxes of $558,000 in 1966, $847,000 in 1967 and $36,000 in 1968.

The indictments against Krock, who lives in a 38-room house on his 500-acre Rockinghorse Farm, listed five groups of evaded items. They included:

Unreported interest income of $280,000 in 1966 through 1968.

Income from exercise of stock options of taxable income of $737,000 in 1966 and 1967.

Income from loan commitment fees of $572,000 in 1966-68.

Other income, including consulting fees, of $257,000 in 1966-67.

Alleged fictitious net operating loss deductions of $642,000 in 1967-68.

Included in the four counts of filing false and fraudulent income tax returns were government accusations that Krock omitted more than $3 million in sales of securities from 1966 through 1968; an alleged fictitious judgment fee of $750,000 in 1969; and the omission of interest income of nearly $10,000 in 1969.

All told, the seven counts add up to $6,271,569.

Two Bond Issues That Merit Support

Bond issues for flood control and a new firehouse-police headquarters will be on ballots next Tuesday in Novato and Fairfax, respectively.

The question before Novatans probably boils down to this: How much flood control is enough?

This year's disastrous flooding in the Nave Gardens area proved that correction of flood conditions in Novato definitely is needed, and without delay.

This spurred the Marin County Board of Supervisors to put on the ballot a $4.5 million bond issue, which would pay the local share of a control project proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers. An average tax rate of 20.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation over the next 25 years would be assessed against property in the Novato Flood Control Zone to retire the bonds.

The entire project, as planned by the Corps of Engineers, would run to about $14 million.

THE CORPS of Engineers believes in no half-measures. The project it envisions would eliminate flooding. The question Novato voters must decide is whether a smaller project would suffice.

A smaller project, directing most of the floodwaters into the bay, has been worked out by the flood control zone's staff and would cost about $1 million — all of which would have to be raised locally.

This might be ample — except in the exceptional year. And, of course, we had just such an exceptional year this time.

When it comes to flood control, we tend to go along with the old adage of "better safe than sorry." The million-dollar "mini-project" might do the job — until more creekside property upstream on Novato, Warner and Arroyo Avichi Creeks is built up. But then it might have to be all done over — and a million dollars would be, indeed, "washed down the drain." So we think Novatans would be wise to authorize the $4.5 million bond issue for the complete project. (Measure M on ballots within the flood control district).

IN FAIRFAX, the need for a new fire station, police station and city hall has long been recognized. The quarrel has been over where to put them.

The current proposal is for a $300,000 bond issue for firehouse and police quarters adjoining the present firehouse and extending into the city park.

It also would finance purchase of property adjacent to the park on which are an old house and a duplex. It is planned to use the duplex for recreation headquarters and tear down the old house. This, according to proponents, would mean no reduction in the size of the park.

However, the proposal includes needed widening of Park Street, of which part of the right-of-way is now park land. Opponents object to this as reducing the size of the park.

WE DON'T think the plan is ideal, especially as it would leave Fairfax still without a real city hall. But it is questionable whether the city's taxpayers can finance a complete new civic center on other property.

We therefore go along with the proposed Fairfax bond issue (Measure A on the Fairfax ballot) as a workable compromise.

Regents, College Board Should Represent Public

By RUS WALTON

The way it is now, the governor appoints the members of the UC board of regents and the California state colleges board of trustees. An appointment to the regents is good for 16 years; to the trustees, eight years.

Every now and then legislators chew on the idea of shortening those terms and changing the way in which those appointments are made.

THE NEXT TIME they get around to the subject, there is one thing they should consider:

The voters — the taxpayers — should have more of a say in the way things are done in those two systems of higher learning, and more of a say in the selection of the governing boards. As the state constitution says, those schools are a public trust.

Altogether we shell out $429 million a year for the nine UC campuses and $442 million for the 19 state colleges and universities. That's just from the general fund; there are extra monies, too.

It all adds up to $1 billion a year, and for that we should be permitted a few words and a couple of wishes.

In addition to the 16 "public" members appointed by the governor to the board of regents, there are eight ex officio members: governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the assembly, state superintendent of public instruction, president of the state board of agriculture, president of Mechanics Institute in San Francisco, president of the UC Alumni Association, and president of the university.

There are five ex officio members on the board of trustees, in addition to the 16 public members: governor, lieutenant governor, speaker, superintendent of public instruction, and chancellor of the state college system.

IN GENERAL, the two boards function with a minimum of friction or fuss. And, in general, the two boards do not really represent the voters.

The old school ties grow stronger than the public's purse strings.

There is a better way to handle these affairs; a better way to give the taxpayer some control over the funds: let the people elect the public members of the boards of regents and trustees.

THERE ARE TWO ways to do it. First, the easy way:

Divide the state into 16 districts and let the voters in each elect one member to each board. Make the seats non-partisan, with six-year terms. No salaries, just a reasonable per diem or expense allowance.

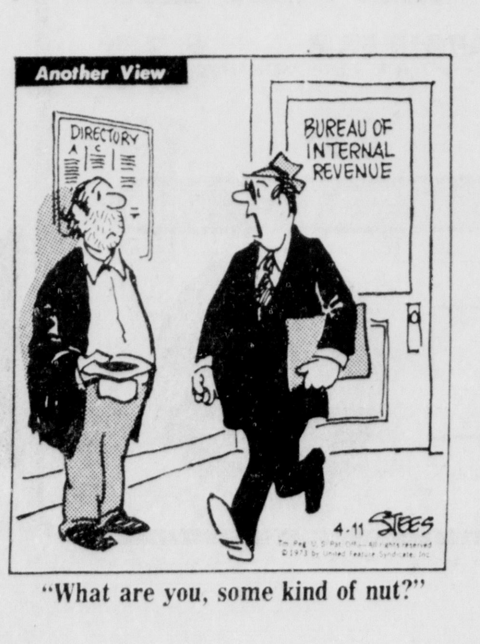
And, cut the number of ex officios back to five: governor, speaker, Senate president pro tempore, state superintendent of public instruction, and the president (or chancellor) of the system.

THE SECOND METHOD would be a bit more cumbersome. But, it would offer greater voter participation:

Define geographic areas for the various campuses and let the voters in those areas elect a governing board for the university or college campus with its boundaries. (For example, the folks in San Diego, San Bernardino and Imperial counties would elect boards for both UC San Diego and San Diego State.) This would be along the same lines as the election of the board members for community colleges.

The chairman of each district would be selected by the district board and would automatically become a member of the state board.

Each board could make sure that the taxpayers are getting the best return on the dollar at its campus.



"What are you, some kind of nut?"

What Griffin Says In Seeking Election

In your water district editorial last week you claimed that Dr. (Martin) Griffin "seeks election so that the water district can be used as an agency to stop growth."

You are doubly mistaken because:

(1.) Dr. Griffin clearly favors limited growth rather than no growth. An annual quota of new housing (a system now in practice in Petaluma) would be in the best interests of all Marin residents. . .

(2.) Dr. Griffin has frequently stated that the planning agencies should do the planning, not the water board. He has repeatedly called upon the City-County Planning Council to approve a fail-safe method of annual growth limits to be adopted by each city and the county. . .

Foster Grandparents Benefited By Story

The members of the Foster Grandparent Program at Sonoma State Hospital wish to express their deepest appreciation for the wonderful article, written by reporter Karen Peterson, which appeared in last Thursday's paper.

This article furnished an excellent image of what it means to be a foster grandparent and some of the various emotional assets to be derived from the "service." You presented our story in a most emphatic way and we feel it will be of great benefit to the future of our program; possibly in terms of recruiting, as well as public interest.

May we also state that we were particularly pleased with the accuracy of all statements made in the article.

Rabbi Disavows 'Jews For Jesus'

It has been brought to my attention that the organization known as "Jews for Jesus" in a letter sent throughout Marin County has recommended that Congregation Rodef Sholom be visited as a place of worship. It was further stated that the rabbi of the congregation is a dynamic personality and one who is socially conscious.

May I state that at no time was this endorsement sought from Congregation Rodef Sholom or was the rabbi aware or contacted regarding the statement by the "Jews for Jesus." Congregation Rodef Sholom is a dynamic viable Jewish synagogue, with a rabbi who serves as a leader of the Jewish community in Marin. He teaches and preaches Jewish values and concerns, as well as a more universal approach and philosophies. In either case he is passionately Jewish in his commitment, and deplores this kind of sensationalism and misleading statement.

The rabbi does not endorse the "Jews for Jesus" nor does he consider them to be Jews. . .

Few Hours On Floor, But Plenty Of Work

I've just read my good friend Earl Waters' column in your paper about the Legislature's work schedule. His article estimated that we spent an average of only 1½ hours per day, four days a week, in session. Mr. Waters mentioned that we also spent some time at committee meetings.

He's right. Considering dead time, recesses, quorum calls, etc., it's even less. I'd say I spent about five hours a week on the floor of the Assembly and maybe another five hours a week at meetings of the committees I serve on. According to Earl, I should be credited with a 10-hour work week.

You know, it only took minutes for Mark Spitz to prove he's the world's greatest swimmer. But it took years to prepare for those few minutes in Munich.

A legislator may well receive as many as 100 pieces of mail a day. Perhaps he replies to 15 letters, while staff handles the rest. How long does it take to read and prepare a reply to an average letter? How about 10 minutes? That means 2½ hours on the mail alone.

A legislator gets and makes dozens of phone calls daily. Constituents with problems call; in my case, school superintendents, administrators, teachers, board members want to know where I stand on bills before the Education Committee. We phone agencies of government — Welfare, Corrections, Department of Finance, Department of Education, committee consultants seeking answers to constituent complaints, supplying answers to others, exchanging information on legislative proposals.

Each day there are appointments with individuals and groups promoting or opposing legislative action. The background and research effort that must be undertaken before legislation is ready to be heard is a little more time consuming than preparing a cup of instant coffee. On weekends, I read and make notes on all bills scheduled to be heard by my Education Committee. Other members leave Sacramento Thursday evening to work in their home districts and visit their families . . .

Mr. Waters was absolutely correct; we spend very few hours on the floor of the Assembly or at committee meetings.

THE NEEDLE

Everybody talks about the weather, but the Cupertino City Council did something about it. Passed a resolution banning rainfall.

The elements defied the edict, and the city got three days of bad weather in one 24-hour period.

This proves the elemental nature of lawlessness.

Now the city fathers are threatening to sue nearby communities for damage from windblown rain.

Stormy weather is like the price of meat. It's hard to control through legislation.

Senate Probers Of Watergate Damaging Own Credibility

WASHINGTON — The monkey is now on the back of the Senate's Watergate investigation committee. The White House didn't put it there. The committee itself put it there.

The committee did it when it started to leak witnesses' unproved allegations. It did it when it began to make unsupported accusations against White House staff members. It did it when it began to practice guilty by supposition and then had to make a public apology.

Let me illustrate how far the Senate's Watergate investigators have strayed in violating their own avowed standards of judicial fairness.

AT A BREAKFAST interview with this and other reporters, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., a member of the committee, said that H. R. Haldeman (1) "cleared the policies and personnel of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President" in whose behalf the Watergate offense was undertaken, (2) "inevitably knew what was going on because of his position as Nixon's chief of staff," and (3) "ought to resign because he was involved."

The next day, in an attempt to retrieve the credibility of the committee, Chairman Sam J. Ervin and Vice-Chairman Howard H. Baker were forced to repudiate all of these allegations by a fellow committeeman. They stated that the committee "had no evidence of any nature linking Haldeman with any illegal activities in connection with the presidential campaign of 1972."

Note that this disclaimer goes beyond the Watergate itself and reaches to other alleged sabotage and espionage activities of a political nature.

But Senator Ervin makes his disclaimers only after the damage has been done. His sense of candor apparently does not compel him to explain that it was the Senate investigators themselves who were responsible for "unfairness and injustice." Senator Weicker was not inaccurately quoted and leaks from closed sessions could only come from violation of confidence by those privy to them.

THIS IS "guilt by supposition," which is direct lineage from Sen. Joseph McCarthy's shabby, shoddy, evil practice of "guilt by association" which ruined many careers.

At stake is the credibility of the Senate investigation itself. If Senator Ervin can't shut off the flow of neo-McCarthyism, this needed effort to clear up the Watergate crime, whomever it touches, will be grievously, perhaps fatally, impaired.

Thus far, neither the court nor the grand juries are succeeding. The President isn't helping. I suspect that many people would rather see no Senate investigation than a return to McCarthyism.

OBVIOUSLY the offenses of the Senate committee do not extenuate the Watergate offenses nor President Nixon's use of executive privilege as a means of making it difficult to check up on possible misdeeds by present or former presidential aides.

It seems to me that executive privilege is a protection to a President in his transaction of presidential business, just as immunity from libel or slander is a protection to congressmen speaking on the floor of Congress. But there have to be limits to these protections.

A congressman does not get immunity when he speaks off the floor of Congress, and executive privilege ought not to shield presidential aides in transacting nonpresidential business. Surely no one in the White House wants to assert that the Watergate break-in was presidential business.

There is a further oddity — the oddity of G. Gordon Liddy, one of the convicted seven, who has accepted an eight-month addition to his jail sentence rather than answer questions before the grand jury. James W. McCord testified that Liddy had told him that others were involved in the burglary and bugging. Liddy was granted immunity if he would answer pertinent questions. Why he refused is murky. If he could conscientiously say there were no others, why not say so? If he can't conscientiously say there were no others, this refusal to answer tends to confirm there were others.

Environment Becomes Political Issue That None Can Shun

WASHINGTON — Just after the Nixon team arrived in town, a few of us had dinner one evening with Robert Finch, then HEW secretary. Two or three times I dropped in questions about the chance of a ban on use of DDT, and others on the then unfamiliar subject of the environment. When Finch left, my political-writing colleagues braced me about wasting the man's valuable time with such foolishness. What the hell did the environment have to do with politics?

That was a long time ago.

In those days, anybody who worried out loud about pollution and destruction of the earth was scoffed at as an eccentric birdwatcher, Boy Scout, garden club chairwoman or biology professor. But gradually the smog got thicker, the rivers smellier, the beaches oilier, the mountains barer. The people at large got madder. The environment was no longer an esoteric cause.

ONE OF THOSE who helped bring us from where we were then to where we are now was a politician ahead of his time, Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

In the spring of 1970, when the American underground was blowing things up to end the war, he lent his name to what might have turned out just another case of mass student misbehavior. I for one thought he was taking a silly political risk. Not so.

His idea made so much sense that it is commemorated on the Sierra Club calendar for this month, below a photograph of grass and flowers on the shore of Alaska's Beaufort Lagoon, along with the birthday anniversaries of John Muir, Frederick Law Olmsted and John James Audubon.

That year, it was Earth Day. This year —this week —it is Earth Week. Nelson is still its promoter, but what began as a fairly haphazard nationwide rash of teach-ins, car burials and rock demonstrations in defense of the environment is much too big now to be identified with any one man. Every politician in the country would like to have a piece of it.

Some of them were in the environment-ecology protection-conservation-preservation movement early, for example Sen. Edmund Muskie, whose concern about air and water pollution was one of his recommendations for the vice-presidential nomination in 1968. But many others are recent converts. And many more are not genuine converts at all, but have learned to salute anyhow when the green-and-white ecology flag goes by.

Thus we have Mr. Nixon himself respectfully issuing a proclamation four full weeks ahead of time, designating this Earth Week. In it, he praised "individual initiative, voluntary action, and a deep sense of responsibility for the gifts of nature and the welfare of our community. . .I ask that special attention be given to personal voluntary activities and educational efforts directed towards protecting and enhancing our lifegiving environment."

OF COURSE, there were a few springs of green spring prose praising the environment for just being there and for bringing out the best in the American spirit and all that. But his message was plain: Do it yourself.

Here is an instance where his words and actions match. While urging self-improvement by states, communities and individuals, he has been vetoing and impounding right and left when confronted by programs to clean up the country by federal effort.

The President's call for voluntary action is commendable. We could and should organize school classes to clean up roadsides and parks and assign scout troops to collect bottles, cans and paper for recycling.

We most affirmatively should, as Senator Nelson suggests, hold down our consumption of electricity and other energy to mark this Earth Week. Cities and states must push ahead with sewage treatment plants and other projects, on their own if necessary.

But schoolchildren and scouts and we individually can make only a small dent in the problem. Localities are exerting themselves, but they have learned to rely on — in fact have been promised in law — important federal matching funds for antipollution programs.

AIR AND WATER do not halt at political boundaries. Their pollution is a national plague, as clearly as interstate concern as ever envisioned in the Constitution. The federal government cannot opt out of this situation, no matter how tight its budget.

By this Earth Week, even as millions of volunteers are sprucing up their hometowns, the astute Mr. Nixon must have learned that the environment has one hell of a lot to do with politics.

Two Bond Issues That Merit Support

Bond issues for flood control and a new firehouse-police headquarters will be on ballots next Tuesday in Novato and Fairfax, respectively.

The question before Novatans probably boils down to this: How much flood control is enough?

This year's disastrous flooding in the Nave Gardens area proved that correction of flood conditions in Novato definitely is needed, and without delay.

This spurred the Marin County Board of Supervisors to put on the ballot a $4.5 million bond issue, which would pay the local share of a control project proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers. An average tax rate of 20.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation over the next 25 years would be assessed against property in the Novato Flood Control Zone to retire the bonds.

The entire project, as planned by the Corps of Engineers, would run to about $14 million.

THE CORPS of Engineers believes in no half-measures. The project it envisions would eliminate flooding. The question Novato voters must decide is whether a smaller project would suffice.

A smaller project, directing most of the floodwaters into the bay, has been worked out by the flood control zone's staff and would cost about $1 million — all of which would have to be raised locally.

This might be ample — except in the exceptional year. And, of course, we had just such an exceptional year this time.

When it comes to flood control, we tend to go along with the old adage of "better safe than sorry." The million-dollar "mini-project" might do the job — until more creekside property upstream on Novato, Warner and Arroyo Avichi Creeks is built up. But then it might have to be all done over — and a million dollars would be, indeed, "washed down the drain." So we think Novatans would be wise to authorize the $4.5 million bond issue for the complete project. (Measure M on ballots within the flood control district).

IN FAIRFAX, the need for a new fire station, police station and city hall has long been recognized. The quarrel has been over where to put them.

The current proposal is for a $300,000 bond issue for firehouse and police quarters adjoining the present firehouse and extending into the city park.

It also would finance purchase of property adjacent to the park on which are an old house and a duplex. It is planned to use the duplex for recreation headquarters and tear down the old house. This, according to proponents, would mean no reduction in the size of the park.

However, the proposal includes needed widening of Park Street, of which part of the right-of-way is now park land. Opponents object to this as reducing the size of the park.

WE DON'T think the plan is ideal, especially as it would leave Fairfax still without a real city hall. But it is questionable whether the city's taxpayers can finance a complete new civic center on other property.

We therefore go along with the proposed Fairfax bond issue (Measure A on the Fairfax ballot) as a workable compromise.

Regents, College Board Should Represent Public

By RUS WALTON

The way it is now, the governor appoints the members of the UC board of regents and the California state colleges board of trustees. An appointment to the regents is good for 16 years; to the trustees, eight years.

Every now and then legislators chew on the idea of shortening those terms and changing the way in which those appointments are made.

THE NEXT TIME they get around to the subject, there is one thing they should consider:

The voters — the taxpayers — should have more of a say in the way things are done in those two systems of higher learning, and more of a say in the selection of the governing boards. As the state constitution says, those schools are a public trust.

Altogether we shell out $429 million a year for the nine UC campuses and $442 million for the 19 state colleges and universities. That's just from the general fund; there are extra monies, too.

It all adds up to $1 billion a year, and for that we should be permitted a few words and a couple of wishes.

In addition to the 16 "public" members appointed by the governor to the board of regents, there are eight ex officio members: governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the assembly, state superintendent of public instruction, president of the state board of agriculture, president of Mechanics Institute in San Francisco, president of the UC Alumni Association, and president of the university.

There are five ex officio members on the board of trustees, in addition to the 16 public members: governor, lieutenant governor, speaker, superintendent of public instruction, and chancellor of the state college system.

IN GENERAL, the two boards function with a minimum of friction or fuss. And, in general, the two boards do not really represent the voters.

The old school ties grow stronger than the public's purse strings.

There is a better way to handle these affairs; a better way to give the taxpayer some control over the funds: let the people elect the public members of the boards of regents and trustees.

THERE ARE TWO ways to do it. First, the easy way:

Divide the state into 16 districts and let the voters in each elect one member to each board. Make the seats non-partisan, with six-year terms. No salaries, just a reasonable per diem or expense allowance.

And, cut the number of ex officios back to five: governor, speaker, Senate president pro tempore, state superintendent of public instruction, and the president (or chancellor) of the system.

THE SECOND METHOD would be a bit more cumbersome. But, it would offer greater voter participation:

Define geographic areas for the various campuses and let the voters in those areas elect a governing board for the university or college campus with its boundaries. (For example, the folks in San Diego, San Bernardino and Imperial counties would elect boards for both UC San Diego and San Diego State.) This would be along the same lines as the election of the board members for community colleges.

The chairman of each district would be selected by the district board and would automatically become a member of the state board.

Each board could make sure that the taxpayers are getting the best return on the dollar at its campus.

What Griffin Says In Seeking Election

In your water district editorial last week you claimed that Dr. (Martin) Griffin "seeks election so that the water district can be used as an agency to stop growth."

You are doubly mistaken because:

(1.) Dr. Griffin clearly favors limited growth rather than no growth. An annual quota of new housing (a system now in practice in Petaluma) would be in the best interests of all Marin residents. . .

(2.) Dr. Griffin has frequently stated that the planning agencies should do the planning, not the water board. He has repeatedly called upon the City-County Planning Council to approve a fail-safe method of annual growth limits to be adopted by each city and the county. . .

Foster Grandparents Benefited By Story

Rabbi Disavows 'Jews For Jesus'

It has been brought to my attention that the organization known as "Jews for Jesus" in a letter sent throughout Marin County has recommended that Congregation Rodef Sholom be visited as a place of worship. It was further stated that the rabbi of the congregation is a dynamic personality and one who is socially conscious.

May I state that at no time was this endorsement sought from Congregation Rodef Sholom or was the rabbi aware or contacted regarding the statement by the "Jews for Jesus." Congregation Rodef Sholom is a dynamic viable Jewish synagogue, with a rabbi who serves as a leader of the Jewish community in Marin. He teaches and preaches Jewish values and concerns, as well as a more universal approach and philosophies. In either case he is passionately Jewish in his commitment, and deplores this kind of sensationalism and misleading statement.

The rabbi does not endorse the "Jews for Jesus" nor does he consider them to be Jews. . .

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Candidate Views Differ From What Happens

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Nearly 3,000 school trustees will be elected in California on Tuesday, April 17, either two or three in each of more than 1,000 districts.

Many, of course, will be incumbents re-elected to new four-year terms. But many others will be new to the job.

What kind of candidates are asking to be entrusted with running the schools? What do they know about the schools and their problems, and what are their attitudes toward those problems?

In an attempt to get some answers, the author mailed a questionnaire to all school board candidates in Marin County's 20 school districts for the Independent-Journal. Most of them responded.

The questions would apply in Sonoma or any other California county. The answers may be typical of candidates throughout the state.

WITHOUT EXCEPTION the candidates — both incumbents and first-timers — said they are opposed to automatic promotion of pupils. Yet automatic promotion is almost universal.

With a single exception, all incumbent candidates expressed dissatsifaction with existing teacher tenure laws, holding that they are too restrictive and prevent districts from keeping the best teachers while weeding out the worst ones. Some whose districts are experiencing enrollment declines were especially critical of the legislatively mandated lottery system, which requires that staff reduction be accomplished by holding a lottery among the teachers most recently hired, with dismissals by lot rather than on the basis of performance.

Candidates who have not had school board experience were less nearly unanimous in opposition to the tenure laws. Some of them showed by their answers that they do not know how restrictive the laws are, suggesting more careful evaluation of teachers "before they are granted tenure" — which is impossible when the newly hired "probationary" teacher actually already is tenured.

But, despite the overwhelming support for changing the laws to give school boards a chance to keep the best and eliminate the worst teachers, the most recent tenure law revision — the Stull-Rodda Act of 1971 — actually tightened job protection for both tenured and "probationary" teachers. The answers indicated that many candidates, including some incumbents, have never read the act.

ALMOST WITHOUT exception, the candidates — both incumbents and first-timers — said that educational decisions, particularly those on curriculum changes, should be made by the school board. The answers varied widely as to how much participation in these decisions should be accorded administrators, teachers and students.

Yet, in most districts, such decisions are made by the staff, then submitted to the board for approval in what often is merely a rubber-stamping process.

The candidates, including incumbents, showed considerable confusion over the effects of last year's Senate Bill 90 on their school districts' finances — hardly surprising since even those who have studied it most closely are not sure yet just what the effects will be. But most indicated agreement with the principle of limiting school spending on a per-pupil basis.

Yet not one mentioned that many headaches accompanying the new financing system result from its elimination of all but 10 of 43 purposes for which school boards formerly could impose "override" taxes without voter approval. Nor did one mention that many of these over-ride taxes were imposed to pay fringe benefits to teachers which had been negotiated behind closed doors and never publicly debated.

The survey did not include a question regarding union exclusive bargaining agent representation of teachers, as advocated in the California Teachers Association-sponsred Senate Bill 400. But in replying to the tenure question, one incumbent expressed belief that such exclusive bargaining is inevitable, and two non-incumbents advocated its adoption.

Microwave Oven Check Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barely one month after a major report urged consumers to avoid buying microwave ovens, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has proposed new controls to prevent dangerous radiation leakage in the appliances.

The FDA proposal would require the quick-cooking ovens to be equipped with a backup device to prevent them from working when the door is opened.

The ovens are supposed to be equipped with one such device right now, but if it fails, the FDA said, the radiation can flow out when the door is opened. As a result the agency is proposing that a second such device be required which would shut the oven down when the first fails, and keep it shut off until the primary device is repaired.

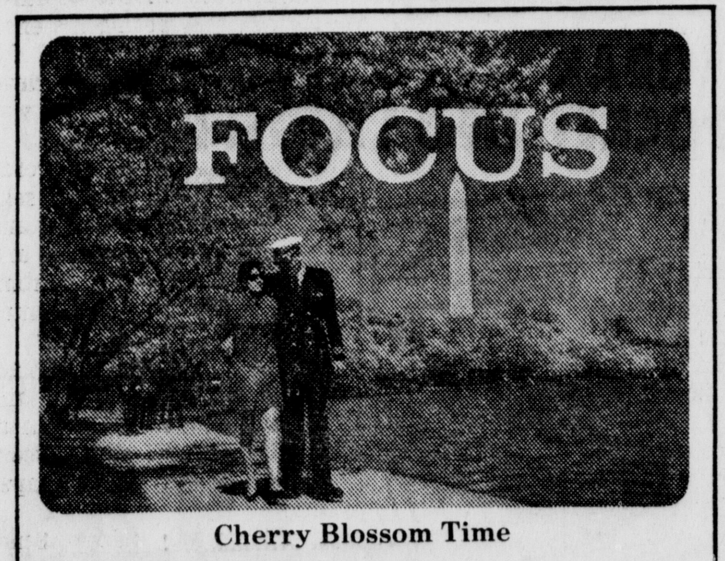
Problems with radiation emerging from oven doors were cited by Consumers Union, publisher of the magazine Consumer Reports. It urged March 7 that the public not buy such ovens and said all 15 models of microwave ovens on the U.S. market leak radiation.

Consumers Union said, among other things, that the ovens may leak radiation if a piece of paper towel accidentally gets caught in the door. Other rays can escape through glass viewing panels built into the doors, it added.

Novato Prepares For Trash Bash

Novato will conduct its annual spring cleanup, named Trash Bash VI, April 28 and May 5 with a free dump site at Rowland and Redwood Boulevards, according to administrative assistant Rodney B. Brown.

The cleanup originally was scheduled to be held next Saturday and April 21 but was switched because of the Easter holidays, Brown said.



Cherry Blossom Time

This week's annual Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington is being accompanied by the sound of whirring wheels as thousands of sightseers are encouraged to view the trees on bicycles. The National Park Service's 4th annual bike-in is being held in conjunction with the festival for the first time. First planted in 1912, the cherry trees were a gift of the city of Tokyo. Although a shipment of cherry trees were sent from Tokyo in 1909, they were found to be infected and had to be burned. Amidst delicate diplomatic handling, new trees were sent and planted 3 years later.

Democrats Sound Call For Unity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic party is trying to retain its hard-won reforms but at the same time make room for its alienated "Old Guard."

Top Democrats, including titular leader George S. McGovern, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and National Chairman Robert Strauss stressed unity at the opening session of the Democratic charter commission Tuesday.

Similar pleas were expected today from Hubert H. Humphrey, the 1968 presidential candidate, and Jean Westwood, hand-picked by McGovern as the national chairwoman after last year's turbulent Miami Beach convention.

McGovern, whose presidential nomination deeply divided the party, said "that in many respects, the reform rules worked better than our best expectations. The reforms did not fail."

But the South Dakota senator conceded "the reform rules were not without some defects or errors of interpretation even as they are properly judged a general success."

He said "no one really wants to return the party to secret caucuses, fraudulent proxies and backroom deals," and added "no one wants to betray those who have relied on the sincerity of the reforms.

"Still, the reforms were an innovation, a voyage on an uncharted sea—and they can be improved," he said.

But McGovern said improvement should be "based, not on less reform, but on more reform of the right kind."

Strauss reminded the charter commission that "reform is a continuing effort."

Nixon's Labor Chieftain Finding Road Is Rough

By DONALD FINLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Someone once said it gets lonely at the top, but Peter Brennan may find it even lonlier caught in the middle— where he seems to be as President Nixon's new labor secretary.

Brennan, the "Mr. Hardhat" New York construction union leader who joined Nixon's cabinet this year, appears to be caught in the middle between organized labor and Nixon, who apparently selected Brennan to help woo union members into his "new Republican majority."

What many observers predicted would happen became evident Tuesday: Brennan is having difficulty reconciling his views, grounded in the trade union movement, with those of the White House. He will have to compromise while at the same time trying to get a better deal for labor from the administration.

The first signal of this was on minimum wage legislation.

In his Senate confirmation hearings in January, Brennan voiced strong opposition to a special lower minimum wage for teen-agers proposed by the White House last year. But Tuesday he presented the administration's revised proposal for a sub-minimum wage for teen-agers—a measure bitterly opposed by labor leaders.

The reaction from his former union colleagues was quick and sharp. In short, they accused him of doublecrossing labor.

"We are aghast," said AFLCIO President George Meany, "that Brennan has so completely abandoned the trade union principles he espoused for all of his life before coming to Washington."

Meany's language and tone raised the question of whether he had given up completely on Brennan being a good influence for labor in the administration, or whether Meany was just stating his own position for public consumption.

Meany, after refusing to back Democrat George S. McGovern against Nixon in last year's presidential election, has grown increasingly critical of Nixon's economic policies in recent weeks.

In defense, Brennan said he had had to compromise on the minimum wage bill to keep from getting a measure even more unpalatable to labor. For instance, he said some White House officials wanted to apply the youth minimum all the way through age 20.

And Brennan said he had been able to limit the subminimum wage to a maximum of 20 weeks for any one teenage worker.

But Brennan, discussing the bill before a union audience Tuesday, was clearly on the defensive and in an apologetic mood, showing clearly that he was having to compromise his own labor views while fighting against harsher terms from the White House.

Caught in the middle, he already has alienated Meany and other colleagues in labor. And if he fights too hard for labor's position, he might find himself isolated within the administration.

The last union official who was secretary of labor, Martin Durkin of the Plumbers, lasted only nine months in President Dwight D. Eisenhower's cabinet of "nine millionaires and a plumber." He quit in frustration when he couldn't get his views implemented.

It is too early yet to tell if Brennan will go the way of Durkin.

Former Nixon Physician Hit

NEW YORK (UPI) — An osteopath who once treated President Nixon was charged Tuesday with evading federal income taxes.

Dr. W. Kenneth Riland, 61, who also was a physician for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, was charged in a five-count indictment with failing to pay $39,000 in taxes on $82,000 in unreported medical fees between 1966 and 1970.

Riland is employed as chief physician to the U.S. Steel Corp. If convicted, he could face up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count.

Life Sentences In Man's Death

LONDON (UPI) — A judge sentenced two teen-agers to life imprisonment Tuesday for beating a 79-year-old church verger to death in a mugging attack.

William Challis, 18, and Thomas Nolan, 19, pleaded guilty to killing William Goldsworthy for his money in an unlit alley last October.

Their crime netted them $22.50, four cigars and a pocket knife.

Chanel's Secret Is Cat's Sweat

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the 100 secret ingredients of Chanel No. 5 perfume is "the sweat of the whipped Abyssinian civet cat," according to its makers.

Colin Platt, a veterianarian for the Society for Animal Rights, said Tuesday that the whipping part of the claim is not true. Nonetheless, the way the sweat is collected cuts the cat's life in half, he said.

Platt, who visited one of the largest civet cat farms in southern Ethiopia on behalf of the international society, said the cats are confined in tiny cages. The civet cat is wild and has a long body and short legs. Its "civet" is a thick, yellowish musk-smelling substance and is removed from a pouch near its sex organ.

China Frees A West German

HONG KONG (UPI) — Trutz Ritter von Xylander, a West German convicted of charges he was spying for the United States, walked to freedom today after more than five years imprisonment in China.

Von Xylander, 38, the last known West German held by the Chinese, was sentenced in 1969 to 10 years in prison.

Border officials said he walked across the Lowu border bridge between Hong Kong and China "apparently in good health though he looked pale."

Von Xylander told the officials he "felt fit and well." He said he had been able to keep up-to-date with world news through German and English newspapers supplied by the Chinese authorities, the officials said.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Candidate Views Differ From What Happens

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Nearly 3,000 school trustees will be elected in California on Tuesday, April 17, either two or three in each of more than 1,000 districts.

Many, of course, will be incumbents re-elected to new four-year terms. But many others will be new to the job.

What kind of candidates are asking to be entrusted with running the schools? What do they know about the schools and their problems, and what are their attitudes toward those problems?

In an attempt to get some answers, the author mailed a questionnaire to all school board candidates in Marin County's 20 school districts for the Independent-Journal. Most of them responded.

The questions would apply in Sonoma or any other California county. The answers may be typical of candidates throughout the state.

WITHOUT EXCEPTION the candidates — both incumbents and first-timers — said they are opposed to automatic promotion of pupils. Yet automatic promotion is almost universal.

With a single exception, all incumbent candidates expressed dissatsifaction with existing teacher tenure laws, holding that they are too restrictive and prevent districts from keeping the best teachers while weeding out the worst ones. Some whose districts are experiencing enrollment declines were especially critical of the legislatively mandated lottery system, which requires that staff reduction be accomplished by holding a lottery among the teachers most recently hired, with dismissals by lot rather than on the basis of performance.

Candidates who have not had school board experience were less nearly unanimous in opposition to the tenure laws. Some of them showed by their answers that they do not know how restrictive the laws are, suggesting more careful evaluation of teachers "before they are granted tenure" — which is impossible when the newly hired "probationary" teacher actually already is tenured.

But, despite the overwhelming support for changing the laws to give school boards a chance to keep the best and eliminate the worst teachers, the most recent tenure law revision — the Stull-Rodda Act of 1971 — actually tightened job protection for both tenured and "probationary" teachers. The answers indicated that many candidates, including some incumbents, have never read the act.

ALMOST WITHOUT exception, the candidates — both incumbents and first-timers — said that educational decisions, particularly those on curriculum changes, should be made by the school board. The answers varied widely as to how much participation in these decisions should be accorded administrators, teachers and students.

Yet, in most districts, such decisions are made by the staff, then submitted to the board for approval in what often is merely a rubber-stamping process.

The candidates, including incumbents, showed considerable confusion over the effects of last year's Senate Bill 90 on their school districts' finances — hardly surprising since even those who have studied it most closely are not sure yet just what the effects will be. But most indicated agreement with the principle of limiting school spending on a per-pupil basis.

Yet not one mentioned that many headaches accompanying the new financing system result from its elimination of all but 10 of 43 purposes for which school boards formerly could impose "override" taxes without voter approval. Nor did one mention that many of these over-ride taxes were imposed to pay fringe benefits to teachers which had been negotiated behind closed doors and never publicly debated.

The survey did not include a question regarding union exclusive bargaining agent representation of teachers, as advocated in the California Teachers Association-sponsred Senate Bill 400. Tiburon Link Advised For Strawberry

County Administrator John F. Barrows will advise the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission tonight that unincorporated Strawberry be included in the "sphere of influence" of Tiburon and that Strawberry be discouraged from becoming a city itself.

Barrows revealed his recommendation by memo Monday to Strawberry citizen groups and to the cities of Mill Valley and Tiburon which have long been vying to control the unincorporated area, including the tax-rich Strawberry Town and Country Village shopping center. So far, both have failed to in commission approval of proposals to annex or have lost an annexation election.

State law requires the commission to declare spheres of influence for cities, or what adjoining unincorporated areas a community ultimately should annex.

Barrows's memo says both cities could probably provide the necessary services to Strawberry if either annexed the area. But he added that annexation by Mill Valley would mean complicated arrangements on fire protection and sewer services since Mill Valley provides these services as a city while Tiburon does not.

Strawberry now gets these two services through special districts which might have to be dissolved.

Barrows's main argument in Tiburon's behalf is that Strawberry is more economically and socially dependent on that city than Mill Valley.

"Mill Valley is separated from the Strawberry area by U.S. Highway 101, which creates a formidable physical barrier between the two areas," Barrows wrote.

He added that "residents of the City of Tiburon are required to travel through the Strawberry area to get to Highway 101, while the residents of Mill Valley are not. This could be construed as providing a higher level of social interaction with Tiburon than with Mill Valley."

Barrows warned that if Strawberry incorporates it would further fragment government within Marin County.

He recommended against splitting the area between the two cities.

Last night the Mill Valley City Council reviewed Barrows's recommendations and said four or five councilmen and the city manager would attend the commission meeting to object to the report.

"It looks to me as if Barrows is saying that Mill Valley can provide all the services, so therefore Strawberry should go to Tiburon," said Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker.

The LAFC meeting at the Civic Center will begin at 8 p.m.

Weight Problem Of New Ferries Solved

A Net Saving Of Only $1,970 On Each Boat

Unexpected weight problems with the Golden Gate Bridge District's new ferries were solved yesterday by hacking eight tons off each of the three new vessels being built in San Diego.

Because of a host of costly additions, the net cost saving per vessel was only $1,970 — barely noticeable in the total contract with Campbell Industries for $12,620,000.

A detailed list of 50 changes proposed in the design by the district's staff was approved unanimously by the building and operating committee. Its recommendation will go to the full board for ratification on Friday.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini made the motion to approve the changes, but observed that the ferries originally must have been "a little bit overdesigned" for so many changes to be necessary.

The staff said the original design assumed a certain tonnage, based on estimates of the weight of every item aboard. Detailed computations by the shipyard, however, found they would be too heavy to make the required 25 knots.

The district's ferry transit manager, Stanley M. Kowleski, said the weight cuts would reduce each ferry to about 185 tons. Tons in his nautical language are long tons, each weighing 2,240 pounds.

The biggest weight cut was removal of the 2,482-pound boarding ramps, which instead will be mounted on the piers. Kowleski said even the model of the hydraulic folding contraption generally failed to work.

Putting it ashore will allow a simpler device and easier maintenance, he said.

The second biggest change was to eliminate about half of the interior lights, which will save 3,895 pounds and $25,571. Kowleski said the original lighting would have been far too bright.

Other changes which will be apparent to passengers include carpeting instead of tile and clear glass instead of tinted glass. The designer of the vessels, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle, said the public had objected to Puget Sound ferries with tinted glass.

The other changes were outside of passenger areas.

Spaulding explained that part of the weight problem resulted from addition of a third engine, additional fuel capacity and hiking the passenger capacity from 636 to 750 persons.

He assured the committee the 50 changes would not sacrifice quality, serviceability or decor.

Council Opposes Transit Use Of Rail Right-Of-Way

By REBECCA LARSEN

Yielding to protests of Scott Valley homeowners, the Mill Valley City Council reverted last night to opposition to any rapid transit use of the abandoned railroad right-of-way through the city.

The council voted 3-2 to reverse a stand adopted in February favoring transit on the Northwestern Pacific right-of-way north of East Blithedale Avenue, running near the Scott Valley development.

At that time, the council was advised by representatives of the Golden Gate Bridge District that Mill Valley approval of rapid transit use is essential to district purchase of the right-of-way through a federal loan. Though the district has no intention of using it for rapid transit, the declaration of such intent is required to qualify for a loan, the representatives said.

Despite district assurances that the maneuver was merely lip service, 200 Scott Valley residents signed a protest presented to the council Monday, resulting in last night's special session attended by about 40 valley residents. They complained they still fear buses or trains may one day run near their homes.

While yielding to the residents' pleas to withdraw the February endorsement of limited use of the right-of-way for transit, the city council announced it will withhold so informing the federal government until after the bridge district board meets and acts Friday on its application for the federal loan.

The council also instructed staff to negotiate with the district to insure some city control of the use of the right-of-way should the district buy it. Councilmen said the city could contribute as much as $10,000 a year toward district interest payments on any federal loan.

The district is seeking a 10-year, low-interest loan for a six-mile stretch of right-of-way from Larkspur through Mill Valley to Sausalito. District transit plans include a feeder line through Larkspur, Corte Madera and Mill Valley to a main line running along Highway 101.

Dean N. Meyer, bridge district director, said last night that Mill Valley's latest turnabout probably would not jeopardize getting the loan, if applied for.

But, he added, directors may dump the whole idea because of the difficulties met so far. "There's a good possibility that Mill Valley might have looked a

Stewart Is Elected San Anselmo Mayor

Lewis W. (Skip) Stewart, who has served on the San Anselmo City Council since 1970, last night was elected mayor by his fellow councilmen, who carried out unanimously the San Anselmo custom of elevating the vice mayor to mayor. (Other San Anselmo City Council stories, page 7.)

Dr. Martin G. Blinder, the only councilman who has not served as mayor or vice mayor, was elected vice mayor for the coming year. Both men took office immediately.

Stewart 38, is a freelance photographer with offices in San Anselmo.

He was an organizer and keynote speaker for the San Anselmo Town Meeting in 1969 and has served on the board of the San Anselmo Festival.

Four Lose Lives In Chicago Fire

CHICAGO (UPI) — Four persons burned to death today in a fire at the Sears Tower, a 1,454-foot building in the final stages of construction. It will be the tallest building in the world when completed.

The four bodies, burned beyond recognition, were taken to Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital.

"We have no identifications yet," a hospital spokesman said. "We believe all four were men, but we're not sure. They were in pretty bad shape."

County Reorganization Plan Hit

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A proposal to consolidate three county departments came under fire yesterday from county officials who criticized the plan as one developed in a vacuum in the county administrator's office. (Other Marin County Board of Supervisors stories, pages 14, 15.)

The criticism, aired before county supervisors, failed to draw the necessary three votes either to scrap the proposal or to send it back to the drawing boards. As it stands, the proposal will be heard as is on May 1.

The consolidation proposal, developed by County Administrator John F. Barrows and his staff, calls for merging the departments of planning, public works and parks and recreation into a new Department of Planning and Public Facilities.

Parks Director Pierre W. Joske, who would lose his directorship under the reorganization, told the board it is "regrettable" his department wasn't asked its opinion before Barrows drafted the proposal.

Joske, backed by several members of his parks and recreation commission, said the reorganization would mean the end of park development in Marin. He asked it be shelved immediately.

"Our ability to render good service to the people of Marin depends on our remaining a separate agency," Joske said, predicting park development would be lost in the shuffle of a larger department.

He was joined by Sol Silver, chief of advanced planning, who said the planning department is "quite disappointed" in not being involved in developing the consolidation plan.

"We were aware it was being developed . . . and were waiting to be asked to comment," Silver said, adding the first official word to the department came "just a few hours before it hit the press."

Barrows responded that he had not approached the two

Car Makers Granted Pollution Extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) today granted the auto industry a one-year delay in meeting the 1975 anti-pollution standards.

But the agency set strict interim pollution standards, and ordered the industry to equip all cars sold in California in 1975 with pollution control devices.

The industry had urged the EPA to allow it to use California, a state with a serious pollution problem, as a testing ground for its pollution control devices, known as catalytic converters.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus said he chose to phase-in the pollution control devices gradually to prevent disruption in the auto industry.

The use of catalytic converters in California will boost the price of the cars bought in the state, and will require the use of nonleaded gasoline for efficient performance.

Under the standards for California, hydrocarbon emissions for 1975 must be cut to 0.9 grams per mile and carbon monoxide to 9 grams per mile. The nationwide standard by 1975 will be 1.5 grams hydrocarbons and 15 grams per mile of carbon monoxide. Present emission levels are much higher.

The major U.S. manufacturers —General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors —had claimed in testimony before the EPA last month that they could not meet the standards and, that without the one-year delay, the industry might be forced to foist an expensive and untested pollution control device on the car-buying public.

The delay means that automakers now will be required to cut carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon exhaust on 1976 model cars —instead of 1975 models

Ferry Work Is Set April 25

The Sausalito ferry will be in drydock and out of service on April 25.

Stanley M. Kowleski, ferry transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District, said the vessel will go into drydock for periodic maintenance after its last night run from San Francisco on the 24th. It will be back in service for the first run from Sausalito on the 26th, he said.

Buses will replace the ferry runs on the 25th.

The Case Finally Shut On Mystery Of Bormann

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — A 28-year-old mystery came to an official end today when the West German government announced that Martin Bormann, Adolf Hitler's deputy, "definitely committed suicide" on a bridge over a desolate Berlin railroad yard on May 2, 1945.

Assistant prosecutor Joachim Richter of Hesse State, in charge of the Bormann file, confirmed in a news conference that a skull and bones found last December in Berlin's Lehrter railway yard were those of Bormann. He said remnants of a poison capsule were found in the teeth of the skull.

It was an official end to a case that sent investigators many times to South America to track down reports Bormann had escaped there with other Nazis, but there still were some skeptics—including Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal, who heads the Jewish documentation center in Vienna.

"I still have some doubts," Wiesenthal told reporters at the news conference. "But I'm sure the officials here conducted their investigation with great seriousness."

Richter was definite in his statement. "Bormann definitely committed suicide in 1945."

Bormann killed himself when he failed to break through Russian lines surrounding Berlin shortly before dawn on May 2, 1945, said Richter and the chief public prosecutor of Hesse, Horst Gauf, who had been investigating the case for 12 years.

Gauf said Bormann died sometime between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. on a bridge over the Invalidenstrasse in Berlin's Tiergarten.

He was last seen alive when he left Hitler's chancellery bunker after the Fuehrer committed suicide there April 30.

Eyewitnesses said Bormann fled with Dr. Ludwig Stumpfegger, Hitler's personal physician, in an attempt to join Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler in Flensburg.

Rumors abounded as to Bormann's whereabouts during the long years since the end of World War II. Ironically, one of the most fervent attempts to prove the former Nazi strongman was still alive came only last November when the London Express, in cooperation with the New York Daily News, published excerpts from a book by author Ladislaw Farago, alleging Bormann was living in the jungles of northern Argentina.

On Dec. 8, soon after the documented Farago dispatches appeared, workmen discovered the skull and bones in the ruins of the Lehrter railroad freight yard a few hundred feet from the bridge. A dental bridge found in the skull was compared to dental records drawn from memory by Bormann's dentist.

Richter said positive identification was made by using latest police methods for reconstructing a human face from Bormann's skull.

He said the glass splinters found in the teeth were identical with material in the 950 "suicide pills" passed out to leading Nazis in Berlin in 1945. These contained a cubic centimeter of cyanide and one of them was used by Himmler in his suicide.

Richter said West Germany has now withdrawn the $36,000 reward for Bormann's capture and had instructed the Foreign Ministry to tell informants reporting they have seen Bormann that the case is closed. The remains were to be turned over to Bormann's family for burial after public agencies issued the necessary certificates of death, he said.

Three Arabs Are Killed By Explosion

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Three Arab guerrillas died last night in an explosion on the Israeli-held Golan Heights, a Tel Aviv spokesman said today, but there was no indication the incident was linked with an Israeli commando raid in Beirut.

A military announcement said the three Arabs had penetrated the Heights and were planting a bomb when it exploded near a village. Israeli soldiers said they found several other bombs and bazookas at the site.

It was the second infiltration of the area from Syria in a week, Israelis said.

Phnom Penh Blockade Penetrated

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A 387-vehicle convoy today wound its way up vital Highway 4, Phnom Penh's only link with the supply-laden ships docking at the Kompong Som seaport, breaking a 20-day-old land blockade of the city.

The success raised speculation that an American airlift of petroleum products to Phom Penh's airport will be canceled.

The truck convoy which broke the Communist supply blockade of Phnom Penh carried desperately needed supplies of food, salt, lumber, cement and heavy machinery and arrived without serious incident under heavy U.S. air cover.

The Berlin-style airlift of petroleum products was announced in the midst of the biggest Communist offensive ever launched in Cambodia. The offensive, now in its third month, virtually severed all major supply lines feeding the capital, causing serious shortages of many basic necessities throughout the capital.

Friedheim Due Big Promotion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon intends to promote Jerry W. Friedheim, 38, a Pentagon press spokesman, to the position of assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

Friedheim, a native of Joplin, Mo., will succeed Daniel Z. Henkin, who resigned.

Communists Attack Mekong Delta Camps

SAIGON (UPI) — Communists launched three sharp attacks in the Mekong Delta southwest of Saigon today, and U.S. Defense Department officials said that far to the north the North Vietnamese had virtually annexed the region south of the Demilitarized Zone in South Vietnam with a string of air defense weapons.

Despite mounting cease-fire violations, a U.S. State Department official said Hanoi probably will try to achieve its objectives in Indochina by political rather than military means.

The situation at the surrounded government Border Ranger camp at Tong Le Chan, 50 miles north of Saigon, where Communist shellings have been an almost daily occurrence since the end of February, was reported unchanged today.

The four-nation International Commission on Control and Supervision (ICCS) met again to work out a means of ending the 44-day-old siege. Informed sources said the ICCS still was discussing what type of action to take in investigating the most prolonged incident since the Jan. 28 cease-fire.

About one third of the 500 government defenders at Tong Le Chan have been reported killed or wounded. Tuesday, 313 rounds of Communists artillery, rocket and mortar fire hit the camp.

In the Mekong Delta, Communist forces penetrated a hamlet near Kien Hung, 120 miles southwest of Saigon, this morning but were driven back by local militiamen. Six militia troops and two Communists were killed and one government soldier was wounded, the command said.

Ten miles to the southeast, 15 rounds of 61mm mortar fire hit a militia outpost and wounded two of its defenders.

In nearby Vinh Binh province, Communist troops attacked a militia position 70 miles southwest of Saigon shortly before dawn and killed two militiamen and wounded five others.

Defense Department officials said today the North Vietnamese had planted eight to 10 surface-to-air missile (SAM) sites and antiaircraft artillery around the former U.S. Marine outpost of Khe Sahn, in northernmost South Vietnam.

A Nixon Visitor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew spent several hours Tuesday at the White House, conferring with President Nixon and being guest of honor at a dinner.

Bankrupt Firm Gets A New Boss

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A nationally recognized mutual fund expert from Minneapolis was named Tuesday by a federal judge to assume command of the bankrupt and scandal stricken Equity Funding Corp. of America.

Robert M. Loeffler, 49, named by U.S. District Court Judge Harry Pregerson to "reorganize and rehabilitate" Equity under the federal bankruptcy laws, was expected to arrive in Los Angeles today.

"In effect, Mr. Loeffler is now the chief executive officer of Equity Funding Corp. of America," the judge's order said.

Equity and one of its insurance subsidiaries are currently in the hands of federal and state officials, as investigations continue into a $2 billion insurance swindle, which experts say may be one of the biggest in American financial history.

The judge has been in control of the parent corporation of the giant financial conglomerate, at the request of the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

POW Dinner

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Twenty-six Americans, held prisoner in Indochina for a total of 85 years, dined privately on chicken and champagne with Gov. and Mrs. Ronald Reagan Tuesday night.

It was the third "welcome home" dinner the Reagan's have hosted, in a scheduled series around the state for returned POWs.

Haig Warning

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Presidential envoy Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. left for Washington today after reportedly warning President Lon Nol that U.S. aid may be curtailed unless he eases his hardline antinegotiating posture with the Communists.

Haig, dispatched by President Nixon on a tour of Southeast Asian capitals to assess Cambodia's worsening military and political crisis, spent two consective days conferring with Lon Nol and other Cambodian officials.

Foreign diplomats were skeptical of Haig's alleged threat but speculated he may have demanded that Lon Nol ease his tough "no compromise" negotiating stance.

Meets Peron

PARIS (UPI) — President Luis Echeverria of Mexico met with former Agrentine President Juan D. Peron today and afterwards Peron said they had agreed on the readmission of Cuba to the Organization of American States (OAS).

Peron also said the two men agreed on the need for laws to control multinational corporations.

Sniper Killed

BELFAST (UPI) — A sniper in Londonderry shot and killed a British soldier with a single shot, the army said. And in Belfast a part-time militiaman was shot and killed in a barracks accident by a friend cleaning his rifle.

An army spokesman said the dead soldier was with a foot patrol in the Roman Catholic Bogside district when the sniper fired on the troops.

A Belfast spokesman for the Ulster Defense Regiment (UDR), a part-time militia, said one of its soldiers was struck in the head and killed by a bullet fired from a gun that was being cleaned by another UDR man. The death was listed as accidental.

In Dublin, a statement from the militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army IRA denied "with some amusement" reports that up to $375,000 of the IRA's stolen or donated funds had been embezzled and squandered by IRA members in Belfast.

Energy Policy

BURLINGTON, Wis., (UPI) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., called yesterday for a presidentially appointed national energy council to spearhead a $2.5-billion a year federal drive for conservation and development of energy.

In his energy policy address at a candlelight dinner Tuesday night, the founder of Earth Day three years ago said the pollution crisis and the energy crisis were "merely different sides to the same coin and both must be dealt with together."

Nelson's address highlighted "Energy Conservation Day" in this Racine County community of about 8,000. Residents attempted to dramatize the need to conserve energy.

Search Halted

HOCHWALD, Switzerland (UPI) — Fresh snowfalls early today halted the search for nine persons missing in Switzerland's worst air disaster, the crash of a chartered airliner carrying a party of English housewives on a one-day shopping trip.

Officials said late yesterday that the confirmed death toll was 96 dead.

Another 39 persons survived the crash and nine were listed as missing.

Commercial Zoning Discussion Delayed

The Novato City Council, seeking tight control of commercial development in the city, last night delayed for one week considering rezoning for planned commercial use 33.7 acres at the future Highway 101-Rowland Boulevard interchange.

Novato Center Inc. is seeking the commercial zoning as the key to development of the Hanna Ranch, east of Highway 101 from Highway 37 to Novato Creek.

The bid has sparked debate over whether commercial development at the interchange would disrupt the city's plan for a community-sized shopping center downtown and concentrated, rather than scattered business areas.

Planning Director Brian W. Mattson said "on the surface" it appears that commercial development at the interchange would have a significant impact on plans for a community shopping center.

Attorney Joseph A. Forest, representing the applicant, said the type of commercial uses planned for the site wouldn't conflict with downtown policy.

The potential tenants, yet undisclosed, aren't the type that would locate in a downtown area, but seek highway sites with access to railroad tracks, Forest said.

Philip A. Coady, president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce said the chamber board favors the zoning "with assurance the city has control over the planned commercial" developments.

Mattson questioned whether the city's shoppers "could support" the interchange commercial, plus 27 acres at the Pinheiro Ranch "in addition to our existing commercial." He recommended that rezoning not occur until the firm provides marketing data and economic analysis to justify the proposed commercial uses at the interchange.

Forest said the firm can't provide supporting data until it has tenants and it can't get commitments from tenants until it has commercial zoning.

Councilman F. Wayne Sartain said the only justification for commercial zoning would be to permit highway-oriented business that wouldn't go in downtown and "the consumer would get what he wouldn't get otherwise."

Councilmen then discussed ways to assure that the city would have full control over type of commercial use at the site.

City Atty. Clark M. Palmer said possibly the city could achieve its aim by creating a special highway commercial zone "or something of this kind."

The council appointed a subcommittee of Mayor Fred F. Ruegg and George C. Quesada to meet with Palmer on defining exactly what uses it would permit and the method for assuring control.

Councilman David Price Jones, a member of the same law firm as Forest, left the chambers during the discussion and the vote.

Woman Hurt In Car Crash

A San Leandro woman was taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco yesterday with injuries suffered in a two-car accident on Tiburon Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Joan M. Kleinmaus, 25, was reported in satisfactory condition with a broken knee, scrapes and bruises and possible internal injuries.

Officers said she was westbound on Tiburon Boulevard at 3:45 p.m. when her car and one driven by Estes-Patricia J. McVickers, 30, of 15 Andrews Drive, Tiburon, collided at the intersection of Cecelia Way.

Officers said the McVickers vehicle, southbound on Cecelia, was making a left turn onto eastbound Tiburon Boulevard when the collision occurred.

Novato Council Favors Permits

The Novato City Council last night recommended that use permits be granted for both the Renaissance Center andorld College West south of San Antonio Creek, west of Highway 101.

The action came after representatives of the center and college outlined their plans at a joint meeting of the council and city planning commission.

Atty. Douglas P. Ferguson, representing the center, said the annual Renaissance Faire, held at Black Point for the past two years, would be held at the new 275-acre site.

He said he doesn't believe the traffic problem, providing access to the site from northbound Highway 101, is insurmountable, a problem that has concerned the state Division of Highways.

Atty. Albert Bianchi, representing World College West, said the college would be on about 200 acres adjacent to the Renaissance Center, would open with about 40 students and have an eventual enrollment of 600 students.

After planning commissioners recommended supporting both projects, the council agreed but recommended several conditions.

Among the conditions were that the Renaissance Faire not operate at the site until the Highway 101 bypass is completed. It is scheduled for completion next year.

The council's recommendations will be forwarded to the Marin County zoning administrator, who is considering granting use permits for both projects.

The council recessed to a closed session to discuss what Mayor Fred F. Ruegg described as a "personnel matter."

The Ralph M. Brown Act which sets forth the few permissible reasons for going into closed session does not list discussion of a "personnel matter" among them. But Ruegg gave no other explanation for taking the council behind closed doors.

State Highway Deaths Decline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Traffic fatalities took 67 fewer lives in California during the first three months of this year than in the same period in 1972, Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski said Tuesday.

A total of 1,023 persons died on California roads from New Years through March, a six per cent decline from the 1,090 deaths during the corresponding period last year, he said.

Pudinski attributed the drop in deaths to the "continuing attention to driving safely" by California motorists.

"Now that good weather is here, we can hope that the fatality rate will drop even more," the commissioner said.

San Rafael Man Arraigned On Weapon Charge

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Stephen Michael Boyle, 22, of San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday in Central Sonoma Municipal Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Judge Frank J. Passalacqua scheduled Boyle to enter a plea today and said he would also consider releasing him on his own recognizance.

Boyle was arrested Sunday after Sonoma sheriff's deputies said he threatened Paul R. Begins, 24, of Santa Rosa, with a gun at the Sonoma County Jail honor farm.

The Smokers Hit In Davis

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — It's against the law today to light up a cigarette, cigar or pipe in public elevators, rooms where public meetings are being held, auditoriums and theaters in Davis.

Violators of the new municipal "infraction" are liable to $5 fines, along with the owners of theaters and auditoriums.

The city council adopted the ban as a compromise after nonsmokers proposed a measure which would also have prohibited smoking in portions of restaurants and set the fine at $25.

The council said it would review the measure in six months to check its effectiveness in this university-oriented town near Sacramento.

Three Students Win Merit Scholarships

One student from Sir Francis Drake High School and two from Terra Linda High have won four-year National Merit Scholarships, the nationwide competitive organization announced today.

Michael A. Grey of 7 Idlewood Street, San Anselmo, a senior at Drake, won the scholarship sponsored by the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, among children of Prudential employees. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Grey.

He plans to major in chemistry in college. He is a life member of the California Scholarship Federation, a lifetime Honor Crew member, a member of the varsity track squad, twice winner of the most valuable player award in B track competition and president of the school's Travel Club.

Grey was a semifinalist in Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and California Scholarship competitions.

Thomas C. Elkjer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Elkjer of 104 Twelveoak Hill Drive, San Rafael, won the McGraw-Hill Merit Scholarship.

He plans to major in humanities in college. At Terra Linda High, he is on the honor roll, a member of the student council, director and performer in school plays, choir singer, feature editor on the school paper, literary magazine contributor and chess club member.

Mark R. Tummerman, also a Terra Linda High senior, won a Bank of America Foundation Merit scholarship, and plans to major in mathematics in college. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Tummerman of 19 Ana Court.

He is a cross-country and track runner, first-place winner in the Mathematics Association of America math contest, and an active debater in the National Forensic League and Congress.

The amounts of the specific four-year scholarships were not announced; they vary from $400 to $6,000 depending on the financial circumstances of the recipients, the scholarship corporation said.

Nixon Asks Congress To Protect Pensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon urged Congress today to pass new pension legislation to give working people greater assurance of getting full benefits from retirement plans, and even to encourage them to set up their own retirement plans.

The President called for tax breaks for those who want to contribute to their own retirement —even if they also are part of group retirement plans.

Individual employers also would be given much more generous treatment in setting aside money for their own retirement under Nixon's proposals. The amount of such contributions that could be deducted from income tax payments would be tripled — from the present maximum $2,500 to $7,500 a year.

For individual workers, as much as $1,500 a year toward retirement savings would be tax deductible. Pension plan contributions by a worker's employer would have to be deducted from the $1,500, however.

Coupled with this, in what Nixon described as an effort to brighten "the retirement picture for America's working men and women," were proposals aimed at seeing that workers do not lose the money contributed by themselves and employers to retirement plans.

"Vesting" is the key word in this. This means that whether or not a worker leaves a job — or even is fired —before retirement, he is entitled to the pension benefits earned during his employment.

There has been some recent movement toward protecting pension rights of a worker after he leaves a job, Nixon said. But he said many private plans still carry overly restrictive requirement for age or length of service or participation before a person is entitled to receive his pension after he resigns or is discharged from a job.

He said his proposals are a refinement of pension reform legislation submitted to Congress in December, 1971, and are based on completed government studies on the pension question and information derived from congressional hearings on pension reform.

The President, in a message to Congress, said he would submit in a few days two bills —a Retirement Benefits Tax Act and an Employee Benefits Protection Act.

To protect older workers particularly, Nixon proposed that half of all pension benefits earned by a worker be considered vested — which means a person is entitled to the amount contributed to his retirement — when his age plus the number of years he has participated in a pension plan adds to 50.

From that starting point, an additional 10 per cent of all the benefits earned would be vested each year so that the pension would be fully vested five years later.

The President said that under this formula, the proportion of full-time workers in private retirement plans with vested pension benefits would almost double —from 32 per cent to 61 per cent.

Among participants over 40, the percentage of vested benefits would rise from 40 per cent to about 90 per cent, he said.

To avoid excessive pension cost increases, the new law would apply only to benefits earned after the bill becomes effective although the number of years a worker participated in the pension plan prior to enactment would count toward meeting the vesting standard.

Nixon said, "This reform would help to reduce the frequency and magnitude of benefits losses when pension plans terminate." But he said he was not yet ready to recommend — as he said had been suggested —creation of a government-sponsored program to insure workers against suffering pension losses.

COUNTY

departments because he did not think he would get "much valid information from departments heads whose departments were proposed to be eliminated as departments."

His comments sent a ripple of grumbles across the audience. "Maybe I'm very cynical but I'm paid to be cynical," he said in answer to the uneasiness in the room.

"This is not a take it or leave it proposal," Barrows continued, adding it could be modified by the board on recommendations from other department heads during public hearings.

Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr., recommended to head the new department, was involved in the planning but did not speak yesterday.

Parks and Recreation Commissioner Merritt A. Robinson protested the proposal as submitted and suggested it be sent back with instructions to the county administrator to meet with department heads.

He drew support from Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Michael Wornum, who agreed the three departments involved should develop the plan together, since they would have to work under it.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who proposed the consolidation in January, objected, saying such action would dilute the proposal.

"I don't want a consensus of what the three departments think we will accept," he said, adding the purpose was to consolidate like functions for cost savings and efficiency.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere agreed. "I would hate to infer that the county administrator had to negotiate (his proposals) with department heads."

"They had better be able to talk now," Giacomini said. "They are going to have to provide the services. We can't make it happen with a wave of the magic wand."

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste joined Arrigoni and Roumiguiere in support of Barrows, saying the method of proposing the consolidation insures the public will not be excluded.

A plan developed by the departments would be a compromise plan to which everyone agreed beforehand, he said. "I'm looking for a reorganization to improve efficiency and coordination . . so far it hasn't happened between separate departments."

On a motion by Arrigoni, the matter was set for further discussion May 1. Supervisor Giacomini voted against the motion, protesting the board's refusal to direct the administrator to meet with department heads to discuss the proposal.

In a related action, the board set May 8 for discussion of another proposal to consolidate the probation, welfare and health departments into a new Department of Health and Human Services. There was no discussion.

Novato Pay Request Is Studied

While 20 to 25 raise-seeking teachers picketed outside, the Novato Unified School District board went into a closed session with its negotiating representatives last night on the pay requests.

Supt. James G. Bunker said the board's representatives are prepared to meet with the teacher representatives at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Teachers, seeking a 21.6 per cent hike in pay and fringe benefits, have been picketing since last Tuedsay when they charged the board with stalling in negotiations. Students have shown support of the teacher demands, and yesterday several mothers picketed the district office. (See photo, page 6.)

During a short open session, the board voted 4-3 to lease space from standard growth properties to house district administration offices at the San Marin Professional building at a cost of $9,000 a year.

Trustees Carolyn M. Crabtree, Elizabeth Mertel and Jan Murray opposed the expenditure.

Bunker said the current administration building will be used for North Marin High School, a continuation school now in leased quarters at a cost of $8640 a year.

Volunteers For Center Pick Name

The new volunteer organization formed to help support the Marin Suicide Prevention Center last night tentatively decided to call itself "Incorporated Lifesavers," according to Richard Reubin, executive director of the center.

The group's first fundraising activity will be to man a booth selling antique dishes and other collector's items, Friday and Saturday at the "Village Fair" in the Novato Community Center.

At last night's meeting, the group filled out its first slate of officers, electing June Grime vice president, Judy Yost secretary and Peggy Gartman treasurer. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. April 24 in the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

—to 90 per cent below those of 1970 models.

Ruckelshaus said he had "chosen to phase in the catalyst because of the potential societal disruption involved in attempting to apply this new technology" to all cars in a single year.

He said he chose California as a test area for the toughest pollution standard because it "has an especially serious air quality problem."

Ruckelshaus called his decision a compromise that would provide for "an orderly phase-in of new technology" and would continue the "momentum of progress toward reducing auto emissions."

At the same time he said the decision would avoid "the possibility of economic turmoil" if the industry was forced to comply with the 1975 standard.

Environmentalists said the delay was a major setback for the clean air campaign because the nation's congested cities are depending on reduced auto pollution to meet the requirements of the Clean Air Act. If cars continue to pollute, the urban leaders say, the costs of meeting the act's standards would be prohibitive.

Ralph Nader accused Ruckelshaus of bowing to White House pressure by granting the delay.

Woman Is Hurt In Van Crash

A 26-year-old San Geronimo woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with injuries suffered when she was flung from a careening car in the San Geronimo Valley yesterday.

Susan Glassman, of 6400 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, suffered a broken left arm, broken pelvis and multiple scrapes, hospital officials said.

The California Highway Patrol said she was a passenger in a van driven by Mitchell L. Woods, 21, also of the San Geronimo address.

Mitchell's car was eastbound on Sir Francis Drake just west of Nicasio Valley Road at 11 a.m., officers said, when it skidded into an embankment, turned on its side and slid along the highway.

Officers said Mitchell told them he took his eyes off the road for a moment just before the accident.

Summer School Plans On Agenda

The San Anselmo School District board will review plans for summer school this year when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Red Hill School library.

The board will also consider acquiring burglar alarms to improve school security systems, discuss alternative approaches to education and consider a proposal to close Isabel Cook School within three years due to declining enrollment.

Trustees will also consider salary proposals by the elementary teachers association.

Tam High Grant Approval Expected

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A $51,859 federal grant for Tamalpais High School District's compensatory education program is scheduled for approval tomorrow by the California State Board of Education.

The grant, providing $346 for each of 150 students participating, would fund the program through next Aug. 31, according to the state Department of Education's recommendation for approval.

Terra Linda Group In Support Of Nixon

The board of directors of the Terra Linda Gardens cooperative housing complex has endorsed Jack G. Nixon for election to the San Rafael City Council, according to board president Robert H. Caro.

Caro noted that San Rafael Manor, the corporate name of the 160-unit complex at Los Gamos Road and Manuel Freitas Parkway, houses about 250 residents.

Report Of Open House Erroneous

Sir Francis Drake High School news bureau has reported that the Marin County Superintendent of Schools erred in announcing an open house tonight at that high school.

There will not be an open house, but the social studies department will outline its program for parents of students in that department at 8 p.m. today in the little theater.

Court Now Has General Plan Briefs

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — The State Supreme Court yesterday took under submission arguments in the Selby vs. San Buenaventura case, which may determine how far local government can go in restricting use of private property.

A ruling is expected sometime next month.

William T. Selby, a Ventura attorney and real estate broker, brought an inverse condemnation suit against the City of San Buenaventura and County of Ventura alleging the two agencies, through a general plan, had deprived him of property rights.

His contention was upheld by a state Court of Appeals, which found the two agencies had inversely condemned his land by not allowing him to build apartments.

In its ruling, the appellate court said provisions of the Ventura General Plan — similar to provisions in Marin's proposed general plan — were tantamount to condemnation of private property.

The ruling concerned Marin officials since the Marin plan shows large areas to be left in open space.

According to Marin Deputy County Counsel George J. Silvestri Jr., who attended yesterday's hearing, the high court gave no indication whether it agreed with the lower court's findings.

Water Board Vacancy Filled

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday appointed Lily Cuneo of San Francisco to the San Fracisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

She takes a seat that has been vacant almost 12 months.

Mrs. Cuneo, a Republican, is a partner in a furniture company. Her husband is a retired executive for a lock company.

She is a member of the board of directors of the Opera Guild, Art Institute, Opera Association, Salesian Boys Club, Guide Dogs for the Blind and Children's Hospital.

Her term expires in September of 1976.

Her appointment still leaves the nine-member board one short. A. R. Turturici of San Jose resigned two months ago.

Beautification Members Named

The Larkspur Chamber of Commerce yesterday appointed two delegates to the city's new Larkspur Beautification Committee headed by Councilman Joan Sestak.

The chamber representatives will be Robert Busse and Harriet Barry, according to Sue Schaefer, chamber president.

Chamber members heard Carroll A. Snyker, manager of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, report on current Marin County growth, particularly in the industrial areas along Highway 101 north of San Rafael.

Closed Session Set By Dixie Trustees

The Dixie School District board will meet in closed session at 7:30 p.m. today to decide whether the educational program at Vallecito School is suitable for a child whose parents have requested the district pay tuition for him at private school.

The board will meet in open session at 8 p.m. to consider a wage proposal from the Dixie Teachers Association's Certificated Employee Council and review association views of a planned staff reduction of 15 teachers next year.

'Tires Slashed On Patrol Cars

Seven tires were slashed on two California Highway Patrol cars in the parking lot of the Lyons Restaurant in Greenbrae last night, Larkspur police reported.

Patrol officer Vincent A. Williams's car had three slashed tires and Officer Edwin Scott, four tires, while the two took a coffee break between 8:40 and 9 p.m., investigators said. A knife or icepick was used.

Vandals Shred O'Toole Signs

Five signs promoting Thomas R. O'Toole's candidacy for San Rafael City Council were shredded by vandals on Arias Drive yesterday morning, according to Andrea Boggs, O'Toole's campaign coordinator.

In addition, dozens of O'Toole signs posted in Terra Linda have disappeared, she said.

TRANSIT

gift horse in the mouth for too long," he said.

Meyer insisted that the bridge district has no plans for using the Mill Valley right-of-way for transit and wants only to secure the land for public use, possibly to assure a Mill Valley bike path there some day.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard agreed that if the right-of-way is split up and reverts to its original owners, city plans for the property will be blocked. "One man in Scott Valley might buy land near his house for a swimming pool," she said. "Another might add it to his backyard. Then how would you keep it together for a bike path?"

But Councilman Robert E. Capron argued that letting the bridge district get control of the land is a "big risk." "Ten years from now they might not be able to afford buying any other land for a transit corridor, and they might be pushed into using it," he said. "The risk is there, and it terrifies me."

Councilman Robert E. Burton urged in vain that the council stick with its February endorsement of use of the right-of-way for transit north of East Blithedale. He said this move would actually block most transit use since it would be hard to run heavy traffic on an isolated strip of right-of-way.

Scott Valley residents said they had been shocked by the council's February action.

"Our homes border the right-of-way, and our children play there," said Thomas McNally.

"We don't want this land used for any transit — trains or buses," said Harry Andrews.

Several urged the council to turn the right-of-way into a bike path.

Meyer responded that federal funds would probably be available for the city to buy the land for this purpose when the original loan lapses.

"But in eight or nine years, if we came to them with the money for a path they would say, 'Sorry, we'd like to help out, but we have to use this land for transit,' " said Capron.

Mayor Barnard and Burton voted against resisting any transit on the right-of-way.

Passenger Hurt In Cycle Mishap

A motorcycle passenger suffered a broken leg in Corte Madera when he jumped off the vehicle while it was moving, Corte Madera police reported today.

Mark B. Leonhard, 16, of 95 Main Street, San Quentin Village, was reported in good condition at Marin General Hospital, with a broken right leg.

Police said he was injured at 9:40 a.m. yesterday, while riding a motorcycle driven by Edward Lynn Zith, 18, of 351 Willow Street, Corte Madera. As Zith rounded the corner of Willow and Baltimore Avenue, preparing to stop, Leonhard tried to get off and was thrown to the pavement, officers said.

Bon Air Road Development Set

Developer Horst Hans won variance requests from the Larkspur Planning Commission last night for construction of an office development on Bon Air Road to be known as Sohner Plaza.

The variances, for use of a specialized glass and to enable construction of a fence higher than normally allowed, will permit the development to be screened from neighbors. Special landscaping also is planned.

The project is to rise at 5 Bon Air Road in the Hillview Gardens area.

Development Committee Review Due

Concerned that its project area committee may not be fulfilling the conditions of its contract, the Marin County Redevelopment Agency board last night appointed a committee to discuss the problem with area group representatives.

Board chairman George H. Gnoss Jr. said the board took the action because "it feels the committee isn't accomplishing" the tasks which the contract calls for. (The area committee was formed by the agency board to advise it in redevelopment matters and to report on community sentiment about the redevelopment project in Marin City.

For example, Gnoss said, the group is charged with meeting regularly under the contract and there is some question whether this has been done. In addition, he said, there has been a failure of communication between the agency board and the committee.

Gnoss said the board also is concerned that the area committee may be violating its contract by appointing replacements for members who have resigned.

The original agreement provides that the agency board initially appoint area committee representatives from Marin City organizations and that an election be held within a year to choose permanent members for the area committee.

He said the board's attorney has indicated that vacancies which occur on the citizen's panel either should be filled by election or appointment by the agency board.

The board selected members Collie B. Gaines and James O. Quiett to serve on the subcommittee, which is to discuss the situation with area committee representatives then provide the board with recommendations on how the problems can be solved. The committee's suggestions are to be presented at a special board meeting April 24.

In other business, the board agreed to notify all Marin City and Tamalpais Valley organizations that the agency is proceeding with formation of an assessment district to finance a second access road out of Marin City.

Gnoss said comments on the assessment district or plans for the road, which is to link Marin City with Tamalpais Valley, should be forwarded to the redevelopment agency.

Council Seats To Ecologists

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — Environmentalists won all three city council seats at stake in Tuesday's Santa Cruz municipal election.

The winners, who were backed by University of California students, were Burt Muhly, Virginia L. Sharp and Sally DiGirolamo.

All advocated saving the area's redwood trees, preserving the coastline from highrise hotels and halting urbanization.

One Candidate Sets Appearances

One candidate in Marin school board race Tuesday has announced two public appearances.

KENTFIELD SCHOOL DISTRICT — Candidate Joan Brownstein at 8 p.m. today at the Stewart Boxer home at 286 North Almenar Drive, Greenbrae, and at 10 a.m. Friday at the Barbara Deutsch home at 111 Wolfe Grade, Kentfield.

OBITUARIES

MRS. MILANI

Florence Milani, longtime San Anselmo resident, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 81.

Mrs. Milani was born in Craveggia, Italy, and came to this country when she was 14 years old.

She and her late husband, John L. Milani, were married in 1909 at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael. They lived all their married life in San Anselmo. Milani died in 1971.

PARENTS SUPPORT TEACHERS' DEMAND

Mothers of students in the Novato Unified School District yesterday picketed Novato high school showing that they support the teachers in the district in their demand for higher salaries. The teachers a week ago stopped the regular meeting of the board of trustees by stomping, clapping and shouting their demands for higher wages. The teachers have not had a pay increase in three years.

Sterner Hand Urged On Drunken Drivers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Thousands of California motorists with two or more drunken driving convictions are being freed by the courts to sit behind the wheel again.

Some judges are throwing out their own prior convictions of drunken drivers so the motorist will be handled as a first-time offender and be punished less severely.

"It seems to me they are going to great lengths to circumvent the intent of the Legislature," says E. Keith Ball, the state's man in charge of licensing drivers.

California Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski and Motor Vehicles Director Robert Cozens say they are alarmed at the situation and have appealed to municipal and justice court judges for firmer action.

So far, they say, there has been little noticeable change and, if anything, more and more prior drunken driving convictions are being invaldated by the courts.

Records of the state Department of Motor Vehicles disclose that last year approximately one out of every three drunken driving convictions involving a prior conviction was declared invalid.

Pudinski, who targets the drinking driver as the No. 1 highway menace, asserts that in handling repeat offenders as first-timers, the courts have failed to make the drunk-on-wheels "socially unacceptable."

"I can arrest all the drunks in the West but if they are not going to be prosecuted and told that their acts are socially unacceptable, I'm still going to have the problem," said the nononsense CHP chief.

For the first offense, the judge may fine the driver $250 to $500 or sentence him to serve 30-days to six months in jail. He also may recommend suspension of the offender's drivers license, but few do.

The more severe second conviction carries a $250 to $1,000 fine and a jail term of five-days to one year in jail, if the second offense occurs within seven years of the first. The driver's license must be suspended for one year and cannot be returned until he produces proof that he is covered by automobile insurance.

At the core of the issue is a 1969 state Supreme Court decision (Mitchell vs. Orr) and a U.S. Supreme Court ruling which allow courts to invalidate a repeat offender's prior conviction for drunken driving if the first judge failed to inform him of is rights before he pleaded guilty.

In 1969, the California monthly average of prior drunken driving convictions being declared invalid was 161. In four years, the total has soared to 1,048 a month.

If a prior conviction is invalidated, the repeat performer is handled as first-timer who often pays the fine and keeps his drivers license.

"We say that is wrong," Pudinski protested in an interview." "These are repeaters."

He expressed "sympathy" for the problems of judges who cite overcrowded court calendars and a shortage of manpower and funds to handle huge caseloads.

"But I can't ignore my problem," Pudinski said. "The drunk driver is killing people in California.

"The courts have the power to make drunk driving socially unacceptable because they are the ones who weigh the case and the penalties. They are the catalyst. They are part of this whole spectrum of traffic law enforcement which must carry out their part of the job in order to make our part of the job effective."

Cozens charged the courts with making a "wholesale application" of the state court's 1969 ruling in order to avoid meting out the more severe penalties required for a second or subsequent conviction

"Judges have told me they find that the mandated penalties in some instances are too harsh and the only way they can get around it is to find the prior conviction invalid," he said.

Many courts are reluctant to suspend the driving privilege, Cozens said, because this could prevent a breadwinner from driving to and from his job. He added:

"It seems to be from my vantage point that today's public accepts the drinking driver —up to the point of a fatal accident. He isn't ostracized in society and maybe this is because there are so many of them."

One possible partial remedy cited by Cozens might be creation by the legislature of a "limited" drivers license that would allow a convicted drunken driver to drive to work and back but no where else.

He said judges are invalidating their own decisions on repeat offenders after finding they themselves failed to advise a defendant of his rights before he pleaded guilty.

"It seems incongruous to us that a judge can be aware of the fact that an individual had not been properly processed for a prior conviction without making certain that his court is not committing the same error again," he said.

Meantime, a class action law suit has been filed in Los Angeles seeking to recover $500 million in drunken driving fines paid by persons whose convictions later were ruled invalid.

The suit was brought by two Anaheim citizens on behalf of themselves and an estimated 100,000 other similarly affected Californians. The case s pending.

Suit Seeks Damages For Quarry

American Savings and Loan Association filed suit yesterday against Corte Madera, claiming the town council cut the value of an old quarry American owns by $750,000 when the property was rezoned last year.

The suit filed by Oakland attorney Edmund L. Regalia claims the town rezoned the 20.5 acres behind the Corte Madera Regional Library to reduce its value and buy it for open space "at a vastly reduced price."

The Corte Madera Town Council voted Dec. 18 to move the wooded hillside from a multiple residential zoning allowing 440 units to a planned unit development category permitting only 109 units, according to the suit.

The suit labeled the rezoning "arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory" and likened it to spot zoning because neighboring property is used for apartments.

The suit also attacks the decision on the grounds that public hearings were improperly noticed and the single-family planned unit development category was not defined by the town codes and thus, invalid.

In addition to the damages, the savings and loan association is seeking an order barring enforcement of the council ruling.

The owner acquired the property for $442,289 in 1967 through foreclosure and the value has since risen to almost $700,000, according to the company.

Howard Lawson, vice president and property manager for the association, has asserted the rezoning would decrease the value of the land by at least $300,000.

The town council rejected the damage claim Feb. 20, thus clearing the way for the lawsuit.

Stan's Headquarter Lot Permit Approved

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved a use permit for a warehouse and office facility proposed by Stan Goldsmith for a three-acre parcel at 1851 Francisco Boulevard.

The development will become the office headquarters for Stan's Sporting Goods of San Rafael, according to Charles J. Linthicum, senior planner.

Linthicum said the development was unanimously approved by the commission even though the city's new general plan does not yet show what land use will be made of surrounding areas, now classified as an industrial zone.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

POSTPONED — Put over to April 24 consideration of a 10-foot setback for development of a lot at 197 Altura Way, and consideration of a five-unit apartment complex proposed for 123 Union Street.

PARKING LOT — Reviewed plans for a parking lot proposed for a parcel across from city hall on Fifth Avenue, and said several aging trees on the parcel will be removed to make way for the lot. The trees also present a safety hazard, Linthicum said. Plans call for landscaping the 42-space lot with new trees, he added.

STREET — Made no recommendation on the name of a new street being built in East San Rafael as an extension of Jacoby Street.

REMODELING — Approved remodeling plans for commercial buildings at 1701 and 2138 Fourth Street.

DELAY — Said a backlog of work in the planning department will result in delays of up to two weeks for setting hearings of new development applications.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. April 24.

Goldwater Says GOP Periled By Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today that the Republican party may be seriously hurt in the next election and could lose the White House in 1976 unless President Nixon deals quickly with the Watergate bugging case.

Expressing sentiments stated earlier by conservative Republicans —but speaking in far stronger terms —Goldwater said in an interview with the Christian Science Monitor: "The Watergate. The Watergate. It's beginning to smell like the Teapot Dome. I mean there's a smell to it. Let's get rid of the smell."

A convicted Watergate conspirator, James W. McCord Jr., who was security chief for the Committee to Re-elect the President at the time of the June 17, 1972, break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters, resumed testimony today before a federal grand jury — his fourth day before the panel.

A source close to the investigation said McCord had given the grand jury records showing he was paid $3,000 a month, apparently to keep quiet about the bugging.

The source described the late Dorothy Hunt, wife of former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt Jr., who pleaded guilty as a Watergate participant, as the person who passed the money to McCord. Mrs. Hunt was killed in an airliner crash in Chicago Dec. 8 with $10,000 in her possession.

Expressing concern about the impact of Watergate on Republicans, Goldwater said in an interview with the Monitor in his Senate office:

"All of us who support Nixon are going to be on the line in the 1974 election. When they say, 'Are you still supporting the President?' I'd say, 'Yes, I'm still supporting the President'. And I'd say that even if ... No, I won't say that. I might not support him if it turns out he knew about all this and kept his mouth shut. But I don't think he knew about it."

The Mill Valley contest will measure skill in 10 basic tricks: the spinner, walking the dog,the creeper, around the world, skin the cat, rocking the baby, sleeping beauty, three-leaf clover, loop the loop and man on the flying trapeze.

Judging the contest will be John Garber of the city parks and recreation department and Stephen Bawl of the Organic Hair Care Center in Mill Valley.

Link Made To Hair, Good Marks

DALLAS (UPI) — A University of Michigan study reported today that the hair of students with high academic grades contains substantially more zinc and copper than the hair of students with low grades.

Michigan Chemistry Prof. Adon A. Gordus told the 165th national meeting of the American Chemical Society he has been directing a study of hair samples taken from George Washington, John Paul Jones, Eskimos, students and others, analyzing them for 38 trace elements to find effects of the human intake on environmental contaminants.

"By comparing historical hair samples with modern hair samples we hope to establish the extent of human intake of potentially harmful elements as industrialization has advanced," Gordus said.

But he said all the factors affecting the makeup of modern hair must first be identified before a valid comparison can be made with historical hair.

One thing Gordus said his study seems to show is a correlation between academic grades and hair content.

"It appears that those students with the highest grade-point average frequently tend to have higher than normal zinc and copper content in their hair, but lower than normal iodine content," Gordus said. He said the reverse is generally true of students at the lower end of the grade-point spectrum.

The starkness of the city's concrete, multilevel parking lots has long drawn criticism from some quarters.

Attorney Found Dead From Gunshot Wound

A Sausalito attorney, apparently despondent over problems with his job, shot and killed himself yesterday in the bedroom of his home at 145 Prospect Avenue, the Marin County Coroner's office reported today.

Hugh Higbee Redford, 32, was found at 8:20 p.m. by his roomate, David Baudler, the coroner's office reported. He was lying on the bedroom floor with a gunshot wound in his head. A .30 Caliber rifle was under the body and a box of shells was on the bed.

Redford, an employee of the San Francisco law firm of Skornia, Rosenblum and Gyemant, left a 15-page note saying he was despondent over working conditions at the law office, the coroner said. The note, along with his will, was discovered on the dining room table.

Survivors include his mother, Ione Redford, and a brother, Steve, both of Seattle.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

San Anselmo Councilmen Reach Creekside Parking Lot Pact

San Anselmo City councilmen last night finally reached a compromise "which we know won't please either side" on how to improve the creekside parking lot in downtown San Anselmo. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1.)

The unbeautified lot, into which as many as 100 cars now squeeze, has been eyed for a park by some residents, for a combination park-parking lot by others and for a parking lot with plantings by many merchants.

City officials have considered at least two plans, one with 50 parking spaces and another with about 39. Last night after hashing over again the merits of parking vs. plants, the council approved a 45-space lot with "attractive, natural landscaping" and parking below street level.

At Councilman Martin G. Blinder's request, it was agreed that a "permeable" parking material, something other than asphalt be considered.

The city will have plans drawn up, according to Alfred C. Kaeppel, administrator-controller, to meet the council requirements. Mayor Lewis W. Stewart cast the lone vote against the compromise, saying he didn't think the need for more parking spaces had been demonstrated by merchants.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

PARTY — Granted a use permit for a reunion party of recent Sir Francis Drake High School graduates from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. April 20 at 21 Mariposa Avenue.

DENIAL — Turned down an appeal by John Blackwell of the planning commission's denial for a variance to build a garage-workroom-storage building on his property at 149 Scenic Avenue.

SCHENCK — Adopted by a 3-2 vote a 16-unit maximum as the desirable number of units on the controversial Schenck property.

OPEN SPACE — Referred to the planning commission and the city attorney suggestions by the open space committee on how to obtain open space for decision on whether they are feasible and legal.

RETIREMENT — Adopted an amendment to city policy to allow for safety employees to retire at age 50 instead of 55 if they wish at a reduced annuity.

POLICE — Agreed to purchase two patrol cars for the police department at a total cost of $7,000.

FIREMAN — Hired Robert Ecke as a probationary fireman effective Monday at a monthly salary of $822 a month.

Blinder Enters Contest: A Hub Greenery Windfall

Psychiatrist Martin G. Blinder, called "San Anselmo's answer to the 'Wizard of Oz' " by a fellow city councilman, last night proudly announced in a sort of show-and-tell period that he has won a nationwide essay contest.

Mindful that San Anselmo well may have use for some "grapes and berries that would grow wild" on future open space, Blinder said he entered a nationwide contest sponsored by Stark Brothers nursery in Louisiana, Mo.

Apparently unabashed by a 50-word limit, Blinder, who often expresses his views at greater length, whipped off an essay on "Why I Like Arbor Day."

Last night, before the regular agenda of the San Anselmo City Council, the psychiatrist proudly showed a letter announcing he had won first prize with his theme that "mostly man exploits the earth — but tree planting is the opposite."

Furthermore, the doctor will have his choice of $500 worth of nursery stock from the nursery's catalogue, which will be given to the City of San Anselmo.

Innocent Plea Entered On Murder Charge

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Walker L. Moore, 25, of Rohnert Park, pleaded innocent yesterday in Sonoma County Superior Court to a murder charge.

Judge John Moskowitz set a jury trial to begin May 15. A request to reduce the $50,000 bail was denied by Moskowitz.

Moore was arrested March 12 on suspicion of shooting Sue E. Candida, 25, after an argument at a Santa Rosa apartment. Miss Candida, who was not involved in the argument, was shot twice by a shotgun fired from outside the apartment building.

Brookdale Avenue's 101 Plight

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Property owners on the east side of Brookdale Avenue in San Rafael have been waiting 10 years for the state Division of Highways to buy their property for widening Highway 101; now they have been told they must wait three more years.

"How long can the state tie up a man's property without buying it from him?"demands Leon E. Sigard of 46 Brookdale, one of 16 affected property owners.

On Jan. 26, 1963, the City of San Rafael signed an agreement with the Division of Highways for eventual widening of Highway 101 to eight lanes. A map filed by the state showed the properties that would have to be acquired for the widening. They included all 16 lots on the east side of Brookdale.

After a few years, some of the property owners sought building permits for second houses on the rear of the deep lots, which back up to the existing highway right-of-way between Linden Lane and Myrtle Avenue. They were told no permit could be issued because the property was marked for acquisition by the state.

In March of 1968 — more than five years after the state had signified its intention to buy the property — 15 owners signed a petition to the San Rafael City Council asking for action, either to buy their lots or "unfreeze" them for sale or development.

The city relayed the request to the Division of Highways. On April 16, 1968, Alan S. Hart, then District 4 engineer for the state agency, wrote:

"Our present planning schedule provides for the acquisition of the properties ... This project was deferred in order to finance construction of the six-lane project which is scheduled to begin this year. I do not anticipate that funds will be available for acquisition of these properties until 1971 or 1972."

In 1971, John De Rosa of 30 Brookdale sought to dispose of his home and lot because he was entering the State Veterans Home in Yountville. He wrote the Division of Highways asking that it be bought immediately as a hardship case. According to Sigard, he was informed that it would be fiscal 1974-75 before the state could buy the property. DeRosa, however, found a buyer through a real estate broker, and his former home is now rental property.

Early this year, following the death of Mrs. Mary K. Zunino of 36 Brookdale, her daughter, Mrs. Romeo J. Martignoli, who lives next door at 40 Brookdale, wrote the state asking that it buy the Zunino property since it was involved in settlement of the estate.

The reply she received from David Gaston, state right-of-way agent, said:

"Normal right-of-way acquisitions are funded two or three years in advance of an anticipated construction date. We do not expect to have funds on this project until our 1975-76 fiscal year."

"First it was two or three years from 1963," complained Sigard today, speaking as spokesman for the Brookdale owners. "Then, in 1968, we were told it would be 1971 or '72. In 1971, DeRosa was told 1974-75. Now it's 1975-76. I suppose next it will be 1980.

"How long can the state tie up a man's property without buying it?"

Despite the cloud on titles resulting from the state's highway-widening plans, several pieces of property on the east side of the one-block street have changed hands in the past decade.

A vacant lot was sold for taxes. Five other properties — including DeRosa's — have been sold to private buyers and are now rental properties, Sigard said.

All the owners would like to sell, he said — especially since the state has bought property for future right-of-way both below Linden Lane and above Myrtle Avenue, but none on Brookdale.

Vote Is Set Tuesday On School Bond

A $1.5 Million Issue In Cotati And Rohnert Park

Voters in Rohnert Park and Cotati will decide the fate of a $1.5 million school bond issue when they go to the polls Tuesday.

A total of 4,917 persons is registered to vote in the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Polling places will be at Thomas Page School, Cotati City Hall, Cotati Veteran's Memorial Building, John Reed School, Rohnert Park Junior High, Las Casitas De Sonoma Mobile Home Park, Garden Homes Condominium office, 691 Lincoln Avenue, and Waldo Rohnert School.

The district intends to use only $400,000 for a new, 15-classroom school in the Holiday Park Subdivision of both Rohnert Park and Cotati, obtaining the remainder of the funds needed for the facility, estimated to cost up to $800,000, from the state. The rest of the bond issue, $1.1 million, would be saved by the district for future school construction.

The reason the district must seek approval of bonds beyond the cost of the Holiday Park school at this time is that school boards must sell bonds equaling 5 per cent of a district's assessed valuation to qualify for state aid.

If the bonds are approved Tuesday, the school could be open for classes in the fall of 1974.

The Sonoma County Assessor's Office estimates the bonds would add 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the current district tax rate of $2.68 on a home with a market value of $30,000, the bonds would add $17.25 in taxes the first year, according to Supt. James H. Davidson.

Davidson said the district expects a large influx of new students because of an upsurge in subdivision development in Rohnert Park. The district now has one available classroom at John Reed School and two at Thomas Page School.

The district last asked approval of building bonds in 1962 and was successful.

School board members have said if bonds are rejected, the district will have three optional plans for coping with additional students. Choices include the purchase of additional portable classrooms which could require a tax-rate increase; a change to a year-round school schedule with staggered attendance to stretch school capacities or double sessions. Schools have not been on double sessions since 1964.

Callas Directs Opera Opening

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Thirty-seven years after the original was destroyed by fire, a rebuilt Royal Theatre opened Tuesday with a performance of Verdi's opera "Sicilian Vespers" and a new role for diva Maria Callas.

The opera marked a return from retirement for the tempor-amental opera star who once reigned over Milan's famous La Scala.

But this time, Miss Callas' role was director rather than performer.

An audience of 1,800, including President Giovanni Leone, were booed by demonstrators. A group of radical students outside the theater itself waved placards and shouted "hospitals, schools, houses"—to protest the spending of money on the theater instead of needed public construction.

Plea Date Set In Morals Case

Douglas Dwight Evans, 43, of Petaluma, is to plead Monday in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to a charge of child molesting.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon released Evans on his own recognizance on the provision he does not associate with anyone under the age of 18. Evans was arrested by Petaluma police April 4 on suspicion of molesting his mentally retarded son.

Pay Toilets Hit

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UHI) — The Nevada Assembly unanimously approved Tuesday a bill banning pay toilets in the state. The measure was sent to the Senate on a 37-0 vote after Assemblywoman Eileen Brookman, D-Las Vegas, said it was "a little money bill aimed at giving some relief to the public."

UNUSUAL SPRING VENTURE

John Kinning of Des Moines can be called a brave person. He was one of a few who ventured out yesterday in what would be the height of the rush hour on a freeway in the Iowa city. His plight: digging his car out of a spring snowstorm as a pedestrian braves the Des Moines River bridge — normally bumper-to-bumper in traffic. The widespread storm so far has claimed 42 lives.

Yarbrough Wins Again In Game Of Cat And Mouse With Police

Folksinger Glenn Yarbrough last night again eluded law enforcement officers who have been dogging his concerts throughout Northern California for the past week to arrest him on a criminal charge of failing to support his children.

Yarbrough, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams, did not appear for a concert in Redding by the recently revived Limeliters after two narrow escapes.

On Sunday in Chico, a process server in a related civil case leaped onto the stage during the group's performance to serve a summons on Yarbrough, but the singer fled through a back door, Hyams said.

Last Thursday, Hyams said, he wired the Los Altos Police Department to arrest the former Sausalito man after his first show at the Sand Castle nightclub, but police told the manager of the Limeliters and Yarbrough disappeared. He skipped the group's show the next evening too, Hyams said.

The cat-and-mouse hunt is the product of Yarbrough's alleged refusal to support his ex-wife, Margaret Jones of Inverness, and their children, Glenn Sean, 14, and Stephany, 12.

By not paying since last April, he is in arrears $12,000, Hyams said. Bail was set at that amount on the warrant of arrest issued last Thursday by Judge Robert A. Smallman.

In the civil case stemming from the same nonpayment, Yarbrough was found in contempt of court last August by Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick and ordered to pay $6,300 he was then behind in payments.

But the singer, who was not in court when the ruling was made, "has been staying out of the state for the express purpose of avoiding all this," Hyams said. Yarbrough reportedly has homes in British Columbia, Los Angeles and Honolulu.

Despite the risk of being brought to Marin Courts, Yarbrough, the portly lyric tenor who rose to fame with the Limeliters over a decade ago, has been appearing in concerts throughout California since the group reunited recently.

Why Yarbrough stopped paying 11 years after the divorce was granted in Colorado is unknown, but Hyams theorized the singer may have been carrying through on a threat he made in a newspaper interview in 1971.

Yarbrough told the Los Angeles Times he would cut off his wife unless she let the children go on a five-year, around the world cruise with him.

Yarbrough's plan to sail around the world in his own boat has been written about for a decade, but the trip has not materialized.

Hopefuls Will Appear On Show

Five of the six candidates running for San Rafael City Council to fill two vacancies, will appear on the KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" program tomorrow at 9 a.m.

Appearing will be Lawrence E. Mulryan, Jack G. Nixon, Thomas R. O'Toole, Leo Tinkler and Richard C. Fox. Because of a teaching obligation at Sir Francis Drake High school, Carl J. Brown will be unable to appear.

Questions called into KTIM during the program will be repeated by tape-recording Sunday at 10 a.m.

Art Center Faces Eviction

The Sausalito Art Center will probably have to move from quarters in the Old Bayside School by Aug. 1 so the structure can be torn down to make way for additional playground area for Sausalito School District students.

And the president of the Sausalito Arts Association board, which runs the center, said today he believes the eviction may result in the demise of the art facility.

"I am skeptical as to whether we have the ability, manpower, intelligence and integrity to begin all over again," said Jack J. Beckerman. "And I don't think we have a legal basis for fighting the school district's move."

The art center's latest problems with its occupancy of the vacant old school began last week, according to Francis Coelho, its new director, when school district officials revealed that the move may be necessary.

Sausalito Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg said he will recommend the eviction to the school district board at its Monday night meeting because the federal government, which owns the land, has requested that the district use the property rather than continue to rent it out.

"The Department of Surplus Property wants the school to increase its use of the property," he said. "And we need additional playground space (for students at the adjacent "new" Bayside School)."

The government is owner of the land on which old and new Bayside schools and the district office are located. Title is scheduled to pass to the school district three years from now "so long as the district meets all the requirements" which the government has set for use of the land, according to Lindberg.

Beckerman said the center itself is partly to blame for its present predicament.

"I don't think this would have happened, at least so casually, if the community was enthusiastic about and involved in the center," he said.

Coelho, former chairman of the San Francisco State College Art Department, has not yet given up hope that the center will survive the move and is already making plans for relocation.

If the eviction notice is forthcoming, he said he will try to get the district to donate the Old Bayside buildings to the center, "so we can take them with us." He is currently searching for land on which to locate a new center and hopes that property, too, will be donated to the group.

The present skirmish over the building is not the first between the school district and the art center which first leased the facility in April 1969.

In July 1971 the school district board voided the lease and told the center to find a new home within 30 days. At that time the board said the government had refused to approve the lease because it had given the land to the district for "strictly education use."

But somehow a compromise was worked out with the federal landlord and in November 1971, the district agreed that the center could remain in the old school building, on a month-to-month basis and with a rent hike from $80 to $150 a month.

Swigert Considers Leaving Agency

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 13 astronaut John L. (Jack) Swigert is considering leaving the space agency to take a position with the U.S. House Science and Astronautics Committee, sources said Tuesday.

Swigert, a last-minute replacement aboard the trouble-plagued Apollo 13 flight to the moon, joined the astronaut corps in April 1966.

Strawberry Leaps Into Master Plan

Five committees were formed last night to work on separate phases of a Strawberry master plan now taking shape under the direction of the Strawberry Area Community Council and the Marin County Planning Department.

Target date for completion of the plan and presentation of a draft version to Strawberry residents is June 11.

Sandra A. Dorsaneo, council secretary, said about 45 persons at the meeting volunteered for committee work and 25 were named to the panels immediately.

The committees suggested by Steven E. Chaum, a representative of the Marin Planning Department who is working with residents on the plan, are schools, open space, transportation public facilities and residential and commercial development.

Committee members are to determine what the situation is in each of the five committee jurisdictions and where residents think things should go by 1980.

A steering committee which will keep an eye on the other five panels will meet at 8:30 p.m. April 26 at the Strawberry Community Building to review the status of the work, Mrs. Dorsaneo said.

With the information they turn in, she said, Chaum will work up a rough draft of a master plan by May 31 and present it to Strawberry residents before taking it to the Marin County Planning Department.

Strawberry residents wishing to work on any of the committees may call her (Mrs. Dorsaneo) for information, she said.

Laotian Copter Crash Kills 9

VIENTIANE (UPI) — A Royal Laotian Air Force helicopter believed hit by Communist ground fire crashed in north Laos Tuesday, killing nine persons, military officials said today.

The officials said the incident occurred near the town of Vang Vieng, about 75 miles north of Vientiane. Among those killed was a colonel who commanded the garrison at Vang Vieng, a neutralist military headquarters.

Six persons aboard the helicopter survived. The officials said the incident was an apparent violation of the Laotian cease-fire that went into effect Feb. 22 and that an investigation was under way.

School Budgets Top $10 Million

The San Rafael Board of Education last night took its first look at preliminary budgets for 1973 proposed for the high school and elementary districts, but made no comment on the spending programs.

Supt. John F. Plank said trustees will study the spending programs for the next 30 days and begin public deliberations on them at their May 8 meeting.

Plank has proposed an elementary district budget of $5,025,370, down about $200,000 from this year's $5,232,990 spending program. He has also suggested a high school budget of $5,752,351, up about $150,000 from this year's $5,603,150 spending program.

Both proposals are "bare bones budgets," Plank said, that will allow the board to "put back in" programs and services not included. The proposals will have no significant effect on the current elementary tax rate of $3.41 per $100 assessed valuation or the high school tax rate of $2.33 per $100 assessed valuation, Plank said.

Although both proposed budgets provide for employee "step and increment" salary increases, they do not include cost-of-living increases, he said.

Plank, noting enrollment is expected to dip about 200 in the elementary district and about 100 in the high school district next year, attributed the proposed $149,201 increase in the high school district spending program over this year to increases in costs of fringe benefits, plant maintenance and operations.

Plank said the preliminary high school budget includes cuts of about $95,000 in instruction, and the proposed elementary district spending program includes cuts of about $40,000 in administration over services provided this year.

In addition, the elementary spending program provides for the closing of two neighborhood schools, Plank said, as well as cutting from present staff 12 regular instructional aides and 27 summer school aides. The elementary budget does not provide for 16 teachers cut due to declining enrollment, he added.

"We have already made the cutbacks," he said. "So now the board can put back in services not provided for" that trustees consider crucial.

Plank said the board made no comment on the proposals pending review over the next month.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

Ellsberg Says He Spent His Life Protecting U.S.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg, the man who made public the Pentagon Papers, told the jury today he had devoted his professional life to "protecting and defending the United States of America."

Ellsberg, who has admitted he leaked the secret Vietnam War history because the knowledge he gained as a Defense Department and Rand Corp. consultant convinced him the government was employing deceptive practices in the war, testified in his own behalf for the second day.

Ellsberg said that from 1959 to 1969 he worked as a consultant to government agencies on national security.

He said he prepared a report for President John F. Kennedy in 1961 outlining "specific strategic objectives the President wanted the military to be capable of" but Kennedy never issued the report.

Ellsberg said he made the first of several trips to Vietnam, visiting the command centers, in 1961.

As the trial entered its climactic phase the jury was to hear Ellsberg explain why he made public a shelf full of classified documents that only a small percentage of Americans have ever read.

The 1970 U.S. Census showed Florida with a population of 6,673,098, an increase of 35 per cent over 1960.

Bid By Manning's To Operate County Cafeteria Gets Nowhere

Marin County supervisors yesterday unanimously gave a cold shoulder to the Manning's cafeteria chain, which wants to supplant the local operators of the Marin Civic Center Cafeteria.

"I think this is superb cooking," Supervisor Michael Wornum declared of the food served by Dom A. Giovannoni and Camille Bamatter, the cafeteria operators. "I'm surprised at Manning's going after the poor little guy."

Jon Merrell, vice president of Manning's, told the board that his chain could serve the same quality food at less cost, offer a more varied menu and probably could return $8,000 to $10,000 a year income to the county, if the volume were to reach $250,000 annually.

Merrell claimed that the operators' present contract would give them $46,500 with a total volume of $250,000 a year. He recalled that Manning's was low bidder in December, 1970, when the supervisors heeded county employees' vociferous complaints by ousting the state-subsidized, blind cafeteria operator and choosing Giovannoni and Bamatter over six competitors.

County Analyst Michael A. Chrystal said the cafeteria managers actually received about $16,000 for management last year, under their contract, on a volume of $200,000-plus.

Audience members chimed in against Manning's, arguing that it would take its income out of Marin, and that it "makes the only doughnuts in the world that sink in the coffee."

Leroy J. Syrop, a Marin restaurant supplier, said "there's really nothing to compare" because the Marin cafeteria far outshines all other government cafeterias in the Bay Area. Francis J. O'Connell, county employee association director, said his members are happy with the operation.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said the Marin cafeteria is "really unique" and impresses visitors; Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini added, "I hear nothing but praise," and moved the board take no action on Manning's request to reopen the contract.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

SALARIES — Voted unanimously to have Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste and Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere make recommendations to the entire board on salaries for county department heads and their chief assistants. The two supervisors and six department heads, plus County Admin. John F. Barrows and Maren Rinne, personnel director, have been gathering data on department heads' responsibility and performance since December.

PAY — Voted unanimously to pay members of the Marin Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission up to $15 per meeting attended, for a maximum of two meetings a month. Committee chairman Leroy J. Syrop explained that the members have been reimbursed for expenses, but only through tedious forms. The reimbursement will be dropped in favor of the pay, he said.

SCHOOL — Approved application for a $1,150 grant from the California Council on Criminal Justice to pay part of the fee for Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman to attend a four-week course at the National College of the State Judiciary.

RETIREE — As suggested by Grand Jury foreman William Howell, adopted a resolution of appreciation to Mrs. Edmar Hicks, clerk in the county clerk's office, who is retiring after 30 years' service.

BIKE PATH — Approved a change order for $3,232 extra on the Novato Boulevard bicycle path to correct slippage problems due to the stormy winter.

FLOOD CONTROL — Voted $1,000 to complete landscaping and erosion control along Novato Creek at Gerner Park, and allocated $750 for supplies for a creek naturalist's study in the Novato Flood Control Zone No. 1.

HIRING — Approved filling 10 vacancies in authorized jobs in various departments, including that of a stenographer-clerk in Dist. Bruce B. Bales's office. Barrows had recommended against filling the job. Bales had asked it be upgraded to a legal secretary. Bales complained he was "being picked on." The compromise called for obtaining extra-hire help in the job until budget discussions in June.

HOUSING AUTHORITY — Directed the county administrator's office to look into charges from Ann W. East of San Rafael that the county housing authority owes her four months rent on a home she placed under the "leased housing program."

SERVICE AREA — Authorized an application to the county local agency formation commission for creation of a county service area in the Greenbrae-Kentfield area to purchase open space. Residents are interested in buying 27 acres planned for development behind Marin Catholic High School. Formation of such a district would have to be approved by voters in the Kentfield School District and the Hillview section of Larkspur.

STREET — Heard a complaint from Helen Colvin of 459 Live Oak Drive in Mill Valley that construction trucks were allowed to damage Live Oak Drive, a privately maintained street.

REQUEST — Received a report, but took no action on a request from Marin Parents for Mental Recovery for $10,000 to help establish a residential care facility for schizophrenic youth. The matter was set over to June budget hearings.

FAIR — Authorized $32,000 for large portable tentlike structures to house fair booths during the annual fair.

REGIONAL PARK — Acting as the board of directors for the Marin County Regional Park District, reviewed but took no action on a proposed $800,000 budget for fiscal 1973-74. All but $50,000 is slated for open space land acquisition. The rest is for administration.

County Will Establish A Design Review Board

The Marin County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously yesterday to set up a local design review board in Southern Marin to rule on architectural qualities of new development. (Another Marin County Board of Supervisors story, page 1.)

The review board, suggested by the Tamalpais Valley Task Force and pushed by Supervisor Michael Wornum, will be tested for at least a year before it is established as a permanent county agency.

The seven-member board will be made up of architects, contractors, realtors, landscapers and residents at large from the Almonte, Alto, Tennessee Valley and Tamalpais Valley areas.

Its primary function will be to review the design of apartment, townhouse and commercial developments in that area.

Harvey Bragdon, chief of current planning, said he thinks the local board will save the county money by lifting some of the workload of the planning department. (Design review is now handled by Planning Director Werner von Gundell and his staff.)

Decisions of the local design review board may be appealed to the planning commission and board of supervisors under the enabling ordinance.

Opposition to the proposal was voiced by several audience members, including real estate salesmen Joseph Morrison and Henry Spitzer, who called the idea "quasi-government by a small group."

However, local groups such as the League of Women Voters and the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club voiced support.

The Arcadian Copper Mine at Ripley, Mich., is the only copper mine in the world open to the public.

Soviets Discover Ancient Building

MOSCOW (UPI) — Archeologists have discovered a dwelling built 20,000 years ago by Paleolithic man from mammoth bones, the Tass news agency said today.

The archeologists said the structure, found near Achinsk, Siberia, had many features in common with similar ancient dwellings discovered by other archeologists on the river Don in central Russia.

The Siberian find indicated Siberia was originally populated by men coming not only from the South but also from Europe, the archeologists said.

A Magazine Sales Firm Is Dissolved

A magazine subscription sales firm that spurred complaints from Marin County residents has gone out of business, the Corte Madera police department learned yesterday.

A court-appointed receiver in Terra Haute, Ind., wrote the department that LRS Inc., also known as Local Readers Service, Leisure Readers Service and Literary Readers Service, had been liquidated, and its door-to-door salesmen no longer would be selling subscriptions.

Whistlestop Soon To Feed Meals To Senior Citizens

Senior citizens in Marin will soon be able to count on one nutritious but inexpensive meal a day thanks to the efforts of a fund-raising group of local residents, the Marin County Board of Supervisors was told yesterday.

According to Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, cochairman of the group, some $11,500 was raised for a kitchen and dining room at the Whistlestop in San Rafael, headquarters for the Marin Senior Coordinating Counsel.

The move was sparked earlier this year when Edward T. Ryken, director of the coordinating council, appealed to supervisors for $7,500 to construct and equip the kitchen.

Before the matter came to a vote, Roumiguiere offered his services to try to raise the funds through private donations.

"I think this is a fine example of how the people of Marin County will support a cause that is good and just," Roumiguiere told fellow supervisors yesterday. "The benefits of going to the community for aid instead of using public funds g far beyond just saving tax dollars. . .A wonderful feeling of helping the other guy was developed in the campaign."

According to Ryken, meals will be offered to senior citizens for about $1.25. "We hope to eventually be able to even deliver a meal to those seniors who are unable to leave their homes," he said.

Ryken said the kitchen will open in late May or June. Volunteers are needed to assist in preparing menus and serving meals. Those interested should contact Ryken at the Whistlestop, which is located in the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad depot.

Space Ship Report

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government reported today that the Salyut 2 space station is functioning normally in orbit but gave no indication if or when a space crew would be sent up to board it.

COUNTY FINDS MONEY DUE FOR WELFARE

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell told county supervisors yesterday a new auditing system in his office has recovered some $300,000 in delinquent state and federal welfare payments to the county.

Mitchell said $100,000 has been received and $200,000 has been billed to the state, which acknowledges the debt.

The recovery, retroactive to 1970, was possible through a "cost allocation system" that allows county government to pinpoint local, state and federal shares for programs.

The new system, in operation for six months, will be expanded to cover other joint programs.

Birth Control Pills Deductible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service has ruled the cost of birth control pills, abortions and vasectomies are tax deductible.

The IRS handed down its first decision in the controversial area Tuesday, saying payments by taxpayers for the purposes were legitimate medical expenses under tax laws. However, the deductions will be allowed only in states where such practices are legal.

Skillet Spanish Rice Quick And Easy Meal For Campers

Camping has changed since the day when a tent was tops in shelter and a smoky fire challenged the cooking skill of even the experienced camper.

Today's camper may still prefer canvas, but more likely than not the tent has been replaced by a pickup camper, travel trailer or motorhome.

Skillet meals are the mainstay of the experienced camper, but they are different from those ground beef creations with which every home cook is familiar.

The camping family that gets off the beaten path, drives late into the evening or fishes "just a few minutes longer" must rely on meats other than fresh ground beef.

Canned meats pack easily and with a little imagination, can be turned into sumptuous main dishes in minutes.

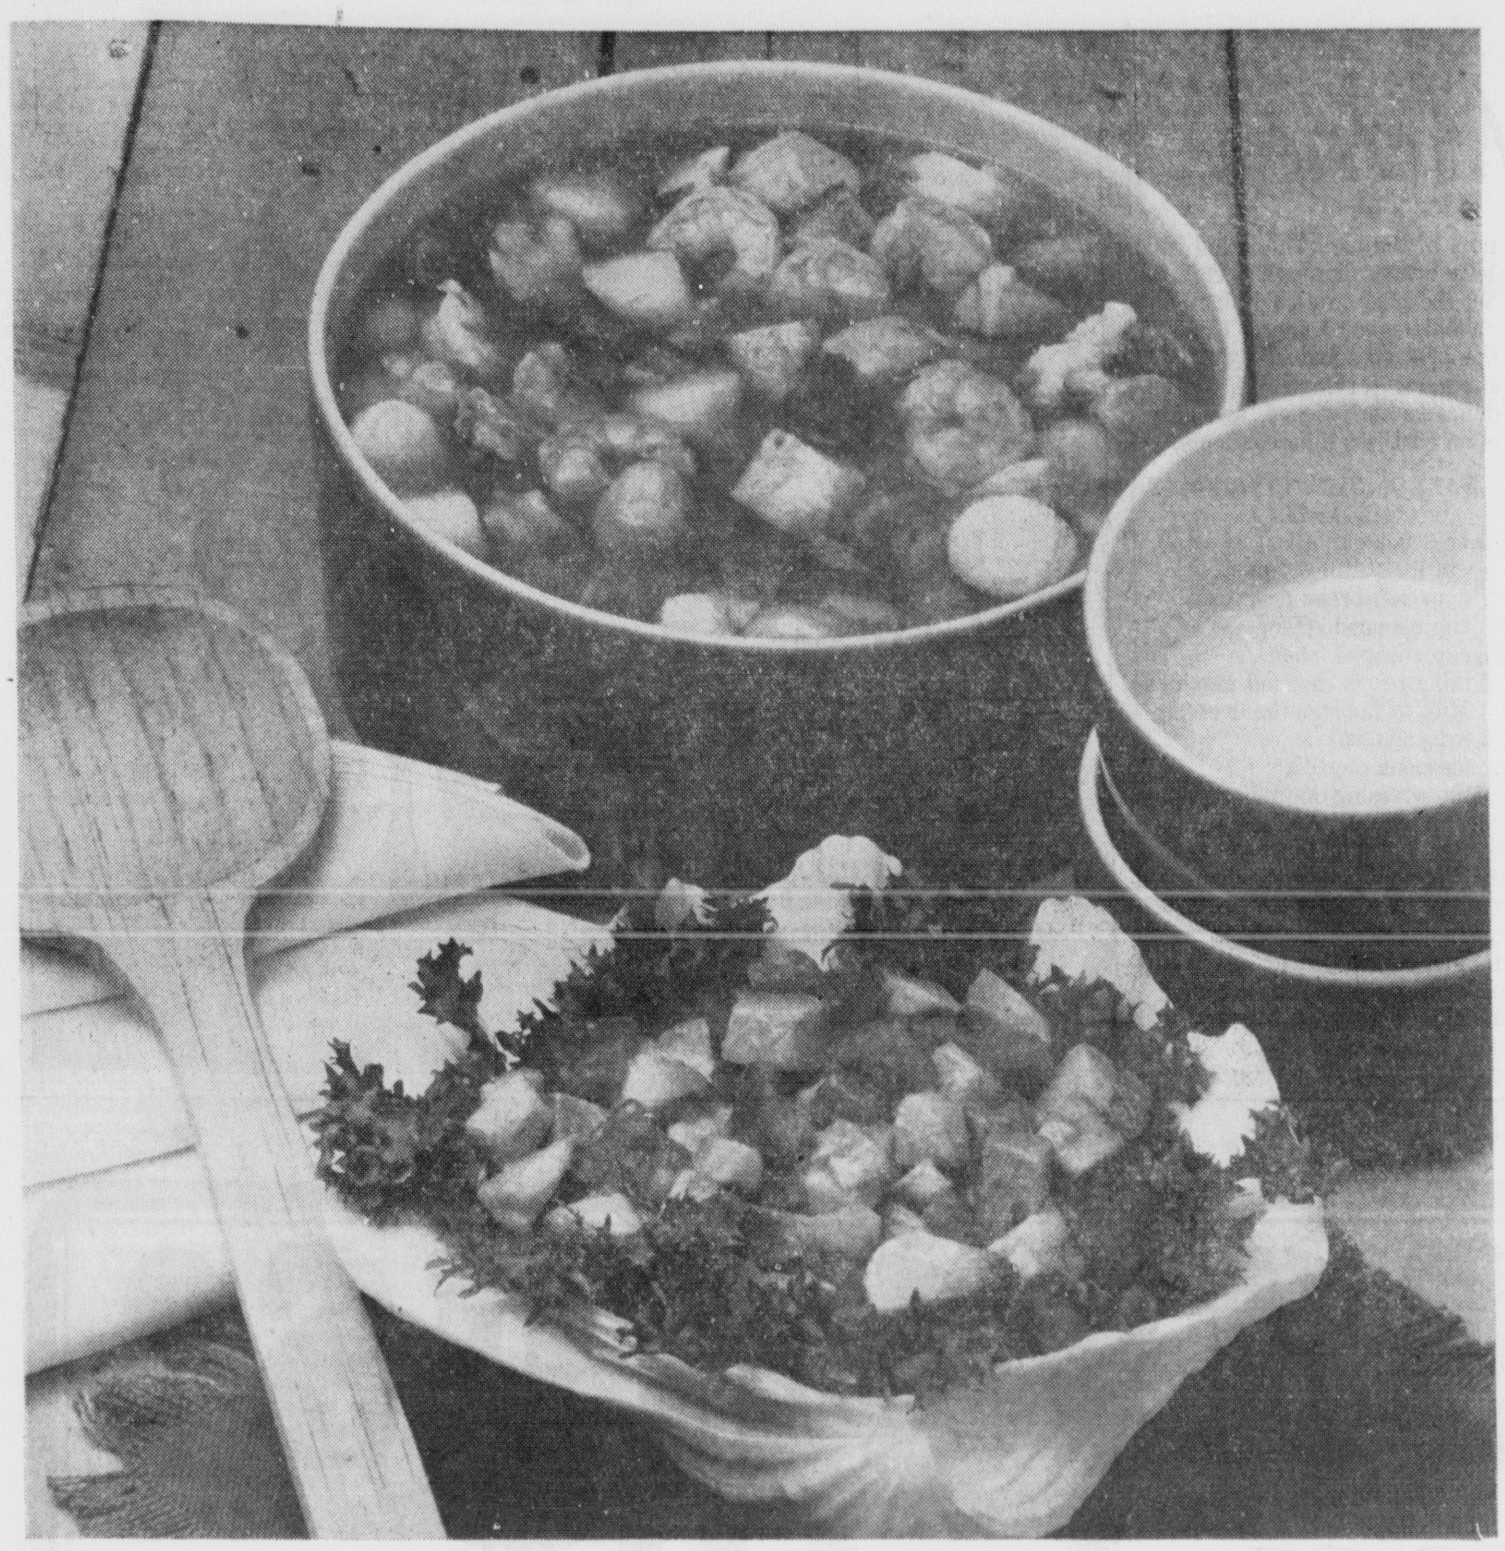
Start with a basic recipe and use whatever seasonings are on hand. To this recipe for skillet Spanish rice, one might add a dash of chili powder, garlic salt or dehydrated onion to emphasize that already in the stewed tomatoes. Or try tossing in cubed cheddar cheese just before serving.

SKILLET SPANISH RICE

4 strips of bacon
1 7-ounce can luncheon meat
1 14½-ounce can stewed tomatoes
½ cup instant rice
Salt and pepper to taste

Fry bacon crisp and drain on paper towel. Cut lunchoen meat in cubes or strips and brown lightly in bacon fat. Drain fat. Add tomatoes and bring to a boil. Add rice, return to a boil and remove from heat. Toss with fork until moisture is absorbed. Crumble bacon and toss into mixture. Makes two generous servings.

QUICK DINNER in the camper comes with knowing what to pack and how to combine the ingredients for good flavor. Here's a quickly made one-burner skillet Spanish rice with bacon and tomatoes.



CIOPPINO IS one of the Bay Area's favorite and distinctive dishes, combining seafoods of the area. Teamed with it is the avocado-tomato salad and sour dough bread.

Cioppino One Of The Most Famous Seafood Concoctions

One of California's most famous seafood concoctions is cioppino, a savory fish stew with tomatoes, onions, garlic and herbs. The name cioppino supposedly is a word coined by Italian fishermen who settled in the state and means "chopped a little." This highly seasoned seafood stew is similar to the bouillabaise of France.

San Francisco sourdough bread is the classic accompaniment to cioppino — especially for sopping up the broth.

An ideal choice to accompany the cioppino is an avocado-tomato salad.

AVOCADO-TOMATO SALAD

1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 ripe avocado, peeled and diced
2 medium-sized tomatoes, peeled, seeded and cut into small pieces
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
¼ cup peanut oil
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
Generous dash pepper
Crisp salad greens

Sprinkle lemon juice over diced avocado. Add tomato, onion and parsley.

Combine oil, vinegar, salt and pepper in a small jar. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed. Pour over avocado mixture; toss gently. Chill thoroughly.

Serve on crisp salad greens. Makes five servings.

CALIFORNIA CIOPPINO

½ cup (½ medium onion) chopped onion
2 tablespoons peanut oil
2 cups clam broth
2 cups peeled and chopped ripe tomatoes
1 cup chopped celery
1 carrot, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 bay leaves
½ pound shrimp, shelled and deveined
½ pound scallops
½ pound shucked oysters
1 can (6½-ounce) crabmeat

In a large saucepan saute onion in peanut oil. Add clam broth, tomatoes, celery, carrot, garlic, salt, mustard, oregano, paprika, and bay leaves. Simmer one hour, stirring occasionally. Add shrimp, scallops and oysters. Simmer 10 minutes longer. Stir in crabmeat. Serve. Makes 12 one-cup servings.

Polka Dot Coffee Cake Fine For Greeting New Neighbor

Polka dot coffee cake extends the warmest and sweetest of greetings to a new neighbor. The flavorful, fragrant corn meal ycast bread boasts pockets of luscious strawberry or raspberry jam — making it delightfully different, unusually good.

POLKA DOT COFFEE CAKE
Makes two 8-inch coffee cakes

2 cakes, compressed or 2 pkg. dry yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
¾ cup milk, scalded
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
⅓ cup butter or margarine
1 egg
4 to 4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup enriched corn meal
1 cup strawberry or raspberry jam or preserves

Glaze:
1 cup sifted confectioners sugar
1½ tablespoons milk

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in egg and 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast and corn meal. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn dough out onto lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover. Divide in half. Round each part into ball. Place in two greased 8-inch baking pans. Brush with melted butter.

Cover and let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes. With finger make deep hole in center of dough; insert some of the jam. Continue making holes over surface in same manner, filling each hole with jam. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F.) 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Cool; frost with glaze made by combining confectioners sugar and milk.

Specials Can Cut Food Costs

To keep the food bill down the Consumer Product Information Center of the General Services Administration advises shoppers to check weekly food specials and include them in the meals planned. Make a grocery list and stick to it.

Try to shop when the store is not crowded and when there is time to make selections carefully. Buy food in large containers if it will not be left over and eventually thrown out.

Flour Sifter

Some cooks keep the flour sifter in a plastic bag and don't wash it between uses.

Lamb Riblets For Snacks Or Main Dish

Food consultant Shirley Wilson McRae of Belvedere offered this recipe for her Riblets Far East when she was a guest on "Kitchen Time in Marin" hosted by Diane MacMillan yesterday on KTIM radio.

Lamb is very popular in the northern provinces of China and Mongolia where it is featured in many fascinating dishes. The riblets may be cut into two-rib sections, as well, but the one-rib pieces are easier to eat and portion. Whether served as a main dish, as a snack or buffet item, Riblets Far East will make any occasion more special, says Shirley.

RIBLETS FAR EAST

3 pounds lamb riblets
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
½ cup water
½ cup minced onion
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup sugar
1 Tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 garlic clove, crushed and minced
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
Salt to taste

Cut lamb into single ribs. Arrange in one layer in pan. Bake in 325 degree oven 30 minutes. Pour off excess fat. Combine tomato paste, water, onion, soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, Worcestershire, garlic and ginger. Salt to taste. Pour or brush sauce on ribs. Bake about 30 minutes longer until tender. Serve as main dish or as a snack or buffet item.

Makes six main dish servings or 12 to 15 snack servings.

Camper Cooking Calls For New Kind Of Meal Planning

The popularity of family camping vacations and motor homes has created a need for a new kind of meal planning. That's why manufacturers of gas ranges for recreational vehicles are distributing a booklet, "Meals on Wheels."

Because camping cooking should be as much fun as the other activities on a vacation, these recipes have been tested on recreational vehicle ranges for flavor, ease and speed of preparation.

To get a free copy of "Meals on Wheels," send name and address to Mr. Charles Naylor, Frigiking, Inc., 10858 Harry Hines Blvd., Dallas, Texas 75220.

A sampling of recipes are these two: Quickie Quiche for a change of pace lunch or light supper, and Supper-On-A-Slice, a hamburger dish that saves dishwashing.

QUICKIE QUICHE

1 (10¾ oz.) can Cheddar cheese soup
1 cup milk
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 8-inch pastry lined pie pan
4 to 6 slices bacon, fried crisp
Canned French fried onions

Combine soup, milk and eggs, crumble bacon into pie shell. Sprinkle French fried onions over to taste. Pour soup mixture over bacon and onion. Bake at 375 degrees for one hour or until knife comes out clean. Serve warm. Serves 6.

SUPPER-ON-A-SLICE

1½ lbs. ground beef
1 small can undiluted evaporated milk (⅔ cup)
½ cup soft stale bread crumbs
1 egg
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 cup grated American cheese
1 loaf Italian or French bread
4 slices American cheese, cut into strips

Combine all ingredients except the bread loaf and sliced cheese. Cut the bread in half lengthwise. Place each half, crust side down, on foil sheet 1½ inches larger all around than bread. Spread meat mixture evenly over bread. Bring foil up and around each bread half, crimping together at ends to form boat-shaped holders. Bake in 350 degree oven 25 to 30 minutes; arrange strips of cheese over tops and bake five minutes longer. To serve, cut bread across diagonally. Serves six to eight.

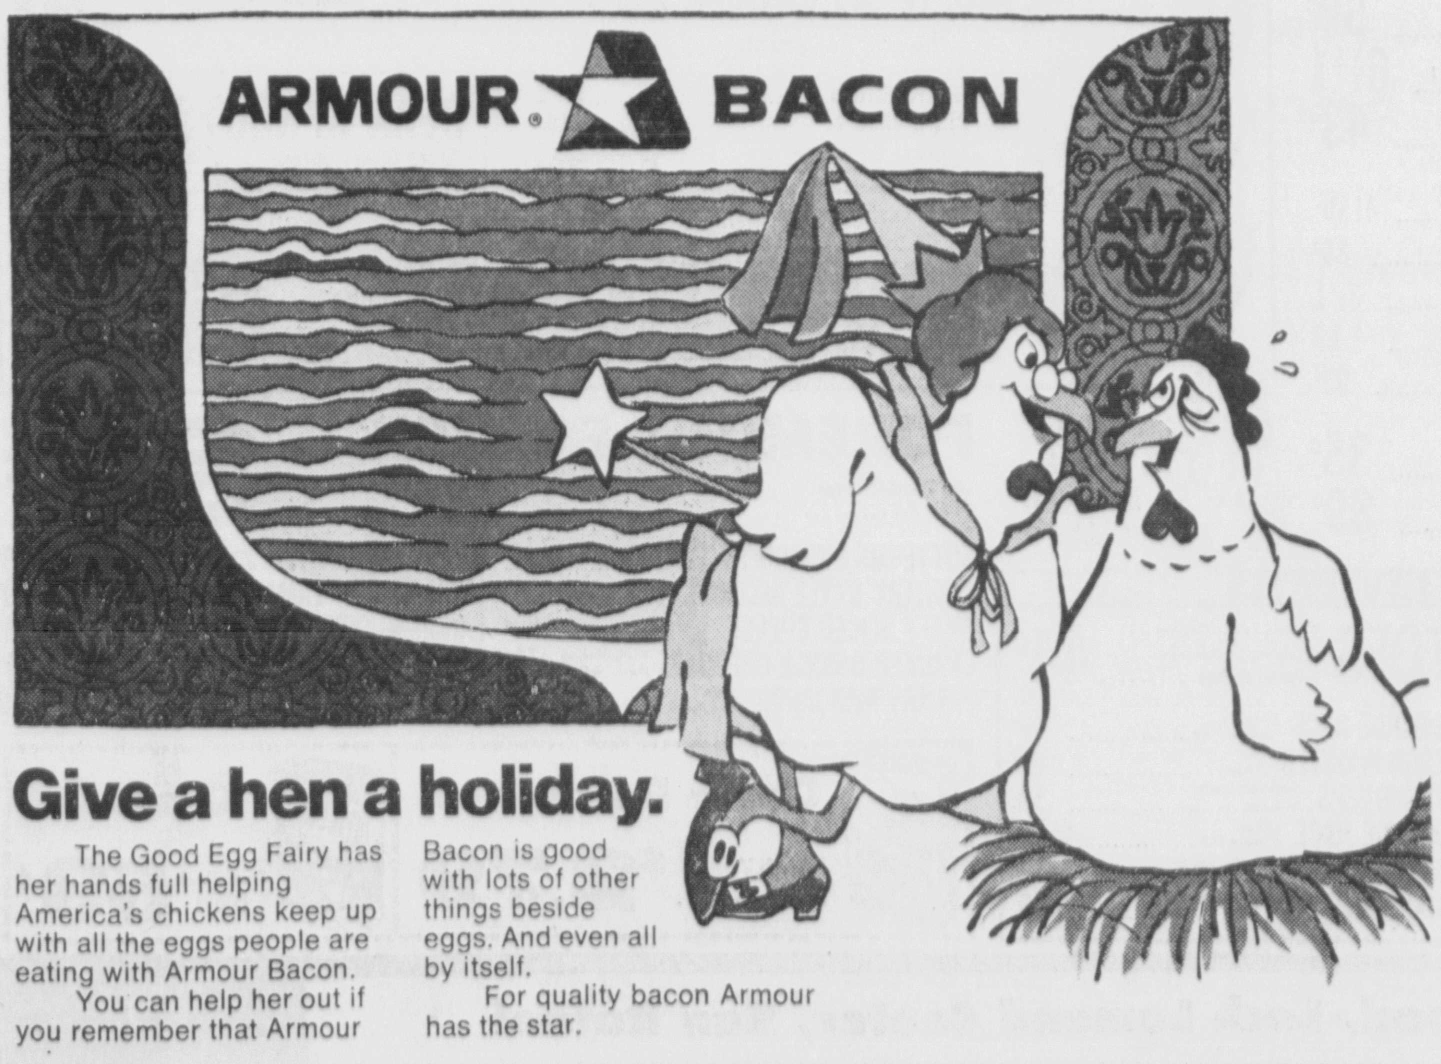
Spread Stretcher

Use spreads such as margarine and butter when they are oft enough to be easily spreadable. Each pound will go further.

Large Eggs Can Be Best Bargain

By the dozen, larger sizes of eggs usually cost more than smaller sizes of the same grade, but the larger eggs are the better buy if the price difference per dozen is less than 7 cents for smaller sizes in the same grade.

If the eggs are to be used in combination dishes and baked goods use the cheaper grade B eggs since their appearance is not important.



ARMOUR BACON

Give a hen a holiday.

The Good Egg Fairy has her hands full helping America's chickens keep up with all the eggs people are eating with Armour Bacon.
You can help her out if you remember that Armour Bacon is good with lots of other things beside eggs. And even all by itself.
For quality bacon Armour has the star.

Way To Eat Meat And Save Money

For families who still like meat but not the prices, there are some less expensive things like kidneys, heart, lamb breast and tripe that make tasty meals, suggests Peggy Hopkins, home economist for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael.

She recommends stuffed or broiled heart, liver, lamb or calf kidneys, boiled beef tongue and baked stuffed breast of lamb as examples.

STUFFED HEART

Heart (see below)
2 cups cooked rice
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 small onion, chopped
Tomato soup
Salt-Pepper

Select one pork or lamb heart for each person to be served. Veal hearts will serve two persons and beef heart is large enough for the average family. Remove veins and arteries from heart. Brown onion in fat, add with chopped pepper to cooked rice. Stuff hearts.

Place in covered pan or casserole. Pour tomato soup over all (or canned tomatoes or tomato juice). Simmer until heart is tender, either in 300 degree oven, or on top of range. It will require about one and one-half hours for pork, lamb, or veal hearts and two and one-half to three hours for beef heart.

BROILED CALF'S HEART

Remove veins and arteries from a calf's heart; wash and cut crosswise in thin slices. Sprinkle with a little chopped salt pork or uncooked bacon. Broil for 10 to 15 minutes. (Instead of broiling, the sliced heart may be "panfried" in a skillet. Cook the chopped salt pork or bacon a few minutes, then add the sliced heart.)

BROILED LAMB OR CALF KIDNEYS

Have the meat retailer leave about one-fourth inch of fat on lamb kidneys. Split and place on broiler rack with fat side up. Broil, with the kidneys about three inches from source of heat, until the fat is brown and crisp. Season and turn. Spread with finely chopped garlic, and continue broiling until done, or omit the garlic and serve with broiler bacon. (Kidneys may be dipped in French dressing before broiling.) Pieces of kidney may be threaded onto a skewer with alternate pieces of bacon. Broil and serve with grilled tomatoes.

SAVORY LIVER

1½ pounds beef liver, sliced thin
¼ cup chopped onion
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2½ cups bouillon
2 tablespons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash Pepper
3 tablespoons vinegar

Saute onion and parsley in butter in frying pan until lightly browned; stir in flour, seasonings and vinegar, and add bouillon gradually, stirring and cooking until well mixed. Place liver in gravy and cook, covered, 15 minutes, turning once.

BOILED BEEF TONGUE

(Fresh, corned, or smoked tongues may be purchased. Corned or smoked tongues are improved by soaking in cold water for several hours before cooking.)

1 beef tongue
1 tablespoon salt (for fresh tongue)
½ teaspoon pepper
4 whole cloves
1 tablespoon vinegar

Scrub the tongue under running water; place in a deep kettle. Add the seasonings; cover with boiling water. Boil 10 minutes, then simmer about 3 hours or until a fork will penetrate readily to the center. Allow the tongue to remain in the water until cool enough to handle. Peel off the outer skin and cut out the membranous portions of the roots. Press into shape for serving. Tongue may be served hot with horseradish sauce or may be pressed and served cold.

Directions for Pressing: When cooked beef tongue has cooled sufficiently to remove from the kettle, place in a loaf pan; cover with a pan of the same size; place a heavy weight in the top pan. On standing, the weight will press enough liquid from the meat to fill the corners of the pan. The liquid will jelly when thoroughly chilled. Set the pans in a cold place for at least several hours. Unmold the pressed meat and cut into slices for serving. This makes delicious sandwiches, and may often cost less than cold cuts.

BAKED, STUFFED BREAST OF LAMB

2 or 3 pounds breast of lamb, cut for stuffing
2 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Milk to moisten the dressing
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika

Mix dressing ingredients together, lightly, adding just enough milk to moisten. Stuff the lamb breast with mixture. Fasten with skewers, or sew edges together with large needle and coarse thread. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for about two hours. This makes four to six servings.

At last we have an outside that's as great as what's inside.

Asparagus Dish High In Protein

Here's an elegant main dish for a small luncheon party, Sunday brunch or family supper that doesn't call for any meat, but it's packed with protein and other important nutrients.

Now that fresh asparagus is more reasonable in price, you can well afford this fancy presentation of asparagus spears and eggs on toast topped with a rich, egg-almond cream sauce and elegant sliced natural almonds. (The term "natural" simply refers to shelled almonds that were sliced without being blanched: the little bits of brown skin makes them attractive for garnish.)

EGGS ASPARAGUS ALMONDINE

Melt 6 tablespoons butter or margarine in top of double boiler placed over boiling water; blend in ¼ cup flour and ½ teaspoon salt, then stir in 1⅓ cups milk. Cook sauce, stirring, until it thickens. Remove from heat then stir in 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 4 beaten egg yolks (use a wire whip if you have one).

Stir over boiling water again about 4 minutes or until sauce is thickened and smooth. Fold in ¼ cup toasted slivered almonds and keep sauce warm while you prepare plates. Place about 4 hot canned or cooked fresh asparagus spears on each serving of 2 slices buttered toast or split English muffins; top each with 2 sliced hard-cooked or poached eggs. Spoon sauce over all and garnish with a few more almonds on top. Makes six servings.

A BUSY INTERNIST

Dr. Linda Clever Guides Large Outpatient Clinic

By PAT BALMES

"My basic interest is getting health care to those who are not getting it and improving the health care of people who are. There are many ways a physician's skills can be expanded through allied health professionals," said Dr. Linda Clever of Tiburon.

The 32-year-old internist is the director of St. Mary's Hospital outpatient department, an assistant clinical professor of medicine and ambulatory and community medicine and a member of the admissions committee at University of California Medical Center at San Francisco, and a member of Stanford University Board of Trustees.

In 1968 Dr. Clever received the first community medicine fellowship given in the United States and worked at Hunter's Point, the Tenderloin, South of Market and Chinatown.

"I went on a 'pad' call in the Haight-Ashbury and saw things very different from the background I had had," she recalled during an interview at her hilltop home.

Presently the physician serves on the Haight-Ashbury Health Committee, finding it exciting to be at the interface between establishment and non-establishment health care people.

AFTER COMPLETING her residency at Stanford and UCSF, Dr. Clever in 1971 became director of the 36,000 patient-visits-a-year outpatient department at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco.

There she began a community medicine research project — starting two years ago with the planning of a nurse-practitioner's training.

After funding by San Francisco Foundation, she divided a large group of specially selected patients with stable chronic diseases like diabetes into two groups, one seen by physicians and the other by the nurse-practitioner backed up by a doctor.

"I firmly believe that there are many things that nurses can do as well if not better than doctors including treat some kinds of patients," she said.

It is estimated that 85 per cent of people who visit an internist of a given day do not need to see a doctor. It is likely that many could have been helped by a highly-trained nurse, according to Dr. Clever.

Believing that most problems that people have cannot be cured by pills alone, Dr. Clever and others have specially trained the nurse-practitioner to be more involved with non-medical problems than a doctor has time to be.

THE NURSE-PRACTITIONER helps with problems like, "How do I deal with my husband now that he requires a diabetic diet?"

She helps get food stamps, or with emotional troubles, understanding why some people resist seeing a social worker or a psychologist.

In diagnosis, the nurse-practitoner follows a branching system of protocol procedures according to the patient's complaint.

"If people feel sure they can see a doctor if they need or want one in this system, they will accept it," predicts Dr. Clever who believes the nurse-practitioner and physician team will ideally get a sick patient to a doctor faster.

Evaluating the two-year controlled study has been difficult because Dr. Clever and her research associate have tried to measure what effect the new system has had on the patients' health.

"OBVIOUSLY THAT is subjective, but the study suggests that the nurse-practitioner and physician team is providing care of at least as high a quality as the physicians alone are," said Dr. Clever.

Asked if she anticipated resistance against widespread use of the nurse-practitioner and physician team in community health programs, Dr. Clever said that his system, and other health care alternatives, will be accepted when patients, physicians and nurses are convinced that the care is as good as care by physicians alone and quality control is rigorous.

Another of Dr. Clever's activities is helping to review the nearly 3,500 applications for UCSF's freshman class. About 130 students will be accepted, she said.

She hates to see so many idealistic people wanting to be doctors but not understanding that medicine has its disadvantages.

She cited bureaucractic rules that preclude prescribing vitamins for a pregnant MediCal patient because they must be paid for over-the-counter.

And at social functions Dr. Clever tries to remain anonymous, "because I don't mind when people there tell me their symptoms, but I do mind when they criticize doctors endlessly," she said.

SHE WOULD advise applicants to consider allied health professions, she said listing careers as medical corpsmen, nurse-practitioners, midwives, occupational, physical and speech and hearing therapists, public health nurses, psychiatric technicians, social workers, clinical pharmacists and health educators.

Life and death decisions are made by intensive care unit nurses on their own in emergencies, she said.

"A high school graduate could learn to be an inhalation therapist. Or a high school graduate could train as an orthopedic technician who puts on casts and helps people get set in traction," Dr. Clever pointed out.

During her Stanford medical education Dr. Clever was voted president of the medical school student association.

Before she entered medical school in 1960, she married medical student James Clever, who is now an internist specializing in the treatment of cancer patients with medication.

"When I became pregnant in my third year of residency I thought I would meet prejudice. But my colleagues were enthusiastic; it was a very warm experience that I did not expect," she said.

Her daughter, Sarah, now 3, was born at University of California Medical Center, where her mother is well known.

"I WANTED to maintain my dignity as long as I could during labor, but I am not particularly brave," said Dr. Clever who studied the Lamaze method to prepare for childbirth. "I went a long way without analgesic," she said.

Because she experienced post-partum depression, she talks about it with pregnant patients and her friends because it is important to understand it's normal, the physician said.

Now she works four days a week, reserving the extra day off for things she wants to do. What gets left out in a professional woman's life is time for herself, she said.

"The reason I am working is that there are things that need to get done, and I have some unique training in community medicine," Dr. Clever said.

National P-TA Sets Convention

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — "Dimensions of Involvement" is the theme for the multimillion-member National Parent-Teacher Association at its 77th annual convention, to be held May 20-23 at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis, Mo.

"Our theme emphasizes that, in today's world, there are persuasive reasons for expanding concerns beyond the limits of one's neighborhood," said P-TA president Mrs. Elizabeth Mallory.

"As more and more decisions which influence our lives today are being made by state and national governments," Mrs. Mallory explained, "any attempt by individuals to retreat to the isolation of local action and concern becomes short-sighted and restrictive.

"Experience proves that isolating ourselves is self-defeating. This is why the National P-TA is concerned with new and broader dimensions of effective involvement," she added.

THE CONVENTION program this year has been designed to stimulate and motivate P-TA delegates to become involved in all issues affecting children and youth. Topics for ideashops range from building more effective P-TA's to education legislation in Washington, D.C. These popular sessions, featuring nationally known educators as well as P-TA leaders, will also focus on such vital subjects as the dilemma of financing education; health education; big city problems; home-school relationships; and shared decision-making in education.

One of P-TA's priority projects which has gained national recognition is PTSA (Parent-Teacher-Student Associations). A special workshop, "PTSA: Developing and Sustaining a Real Partnership" will involve the youth members of the national P-TA board of managers. Other national P-TA projects to be the subject of workshops are "Alcohol: A Family Affair"; "Children's Emotional Health"; "RISE: Reading Improvement Services Everywhere"; and "To Make a Difference - Volunteers in the Juvenile Courts."

DELEGATES WILL elect new officers for two year terms. Nominees for national office include Mrs. Lillie Herndon, Columbia, S.C., for president; Mrs. Walter G. Kimmel, Rock Island, Ill., for first vice-president; and Dudley E. Flood, Raleigh, N.C., for second vice-president. Twenty-six commission members also will be elected during the convention.

'FORGET THE STIGMAS'

An Expert's Views On The Bar Scene

By JOAN LISETOR

No one ever went into a bar just to have a drink, according to bar owner Don Bernard. Bars are a vehicle to meeting people he told a group of newly divorced persons last night.

Members of the audience were persons who have received divorce adjustment counseling from the Family Service Agency of Marin. The session was an informal meeting at the agency office.

"Forget the stigma that guys in bars are either drunks or on the make and girls there are no good," Bernard said. "The bar scene has changed dramatically over the years. You can go to a bar and go comfortably to meet people."

Take a friend and examine the bars in your area, he suggested, and find bars that cater to the type of people with whom you are comfortable.

"Be honest with yourself about the reason you are going there. You are there and the other people are there to meet. Involve yourself in the activities of the bar and get into the middle of a group. Get to know the bartender, and don't be afraid to say, 'Hi, my name is. . .' He will introduce you to individuals or to groups in which you can involve yourself," Bernard said.

MEN ARE meant to be aggressive but are often shy of rejection, he said. Often he watches a man who says, "That's a pretty girl down there," sends the woman a drink and then never gets off the bar stool to go talk to her. In this case he advises a woman to get up, go down and say thank you.

"Women worry too much what men will think of them and their reputations," Bernard said. "If he asks for your phone number and you want to give it to him, do it."

Don't be phony if a man turns you on, he warned women.

"Let him know — subtley, but if you're not interested don't play coy little games and wait until he says 'I'd like to call you' to say 'no.' "

Women going into bars should go in groups of three or more.

"Fours are easy to break but twos are impossible because if you ask one to dance she doesn't want to leave her friend alone," he said.

MEN SHOULDN'T go in bunches because they spend all of their time trying to impress one another.

"I've heard more stories from used car salesmen about making over $100,000 a year, l that's not necessarily dollars," he said.

For men approaching women in a bar, Bernard offered his own ice breaker, "Hey, do you mess around?" It is better than, "Can I buy you a drink?" he said, because that question immediately makes a woman think a man is after her.

Conversations to avoid, he said, are former spouses and children.

"If you emphasize you enjoy spending weekends at Tahoe or tell him about the new satin sheets you just bought for your king sized water bed," Bernard said, "you know what to expect. I'm not suggesting a bar is the only vehicle for meeting people, but you can't ignore the bar as a meeting place today. Don't hang out there or become a bar fly or a drunk or like some of my customers who pull longer shifts than I do," Bernard said.

Placing yourself in a good spot in a bar is important, according to the bar owner.

TO GET RID of an unwanted man Bernard suggested a woman either go to the ladies' room, move to another seat or say, "I'm tired and going home."

Don't feel an obligation to a man because he bought you drinks, he said.

He believes men are as afraid of rejection as women are afraid of being attacked.

Married men in a bar tend to be very smooth, he said, but if those men are divorced or separated they clam right up.

He advised men to ask the prettiest girl in a group to dance because she is asked the least often. A homely woman is asked often because men know she won't reject them, he said.

"Don't hang out or spend all of your time in bars," he said, "but remember nice people do go to bars."

The Question Of Overeating

NEW YORK (UPI) — What makes people overeat? Nutritionists say there is no simple, single reason. But one authority, Dr. Morton Glenn says "some dieters feel a psychological need for self-punishment." In a Food and Fitness booklet put out by Blue Cross he explains his view — "These people are annoyed with themselves and may express their anger by doing something to hurt themselves."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Blacks Never Had It So Good As When They Were Slaves

DEAR HELEN:

What's the most outlandish letter you've received recently? — CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS:

The following struck me as pretty — shall we say — distorted but, remember, "outlandish" is in the eye of the reader. There will be some who agree with this correspondent: (On the other hand he may be a satirist in disguise.)

DEAR HELEN:

Several of your correspondents have blamed our country and its people for the "plight" of the Negro. This has no basis in fact. The truth is:

Former slaves were selected from strong African tribes, by their chief, as he knew they would have better lives in the New World than he had in the jungle. The fortunate ones selected were given free food, transportation and medical care. They were valuable cargo and the British sea captains kept them in the holds of their sailing ships so they would not jump overboard and drown.

Actually, the first slaves in the U.S. were white Europeans. They wanted to get here so badly they sold themselves into years of "indenture" so they could have their way paid. They cleared the land, built the houses, planted crops, built towns and roads and had things running smoothly when the Negroes arrived.

When the fortunate black slaves arrived they had quarters ready for them. They were classified as livestock and had the best of treatment, being cleaned and fed before going to market.

While white pioneers were fighting Indians, clearing the wilderness and suffering hardships on their westward march, and the Irish and Chinese died building railroads, Negro slaves were enjoying the security of the large southern landowner's happy life.

After the slaves were freed, all who wanted to returned to Africa and were given their own country, Liberia. Those who chose to remain in the U.S. have prospered immensely, growing in population from less than 300 to over 26 million.

Until a few years ago they were happy: laughing together, or singing in groups. They were admired by white people for their carefree air and liberties that whites didn't have.

But after they took on the troubles and responsibilities of their superiors, they became uptight just like us. They have no one to blame but themselves. — MR. N.M.

DEAR MR. M.:

You're kidding us. . .aren't you? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have an X-rated gentleman friend.

He's X-asperating, X-plosive, X-pensive (spends my money on himself), X-travagant, X-hausting, X-ploitative, X-cluding (where I'm concerned), X-pansive (to other females), and also X-tra dull.

But every time I think of dumping him, someone tells me how lucky I am to get such a gorgeous-looking man.

I'm trying for a light way to say he's a dog, but such an attractive one. What do you think? — PHYSICALLY DRAWN, MENTALLY REPELLED

DEAR PDMR:

I think your gentleman friend is about to X-it from your life, now that you've finally seen him as a "beautiful" hunk of nothing. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

If people just paid attention to the little, ordinary considerations, life would be pleasanter. I'm thinking of the young man at the lunch counter today who chose the time while waiting for his lunch to comb his hair. — E.B.

DEAR E.:

Let's hope he found a hair in his OWN soup! — H.

LOS ANGELES PROGRAM

Children Helped In Motor Learning

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Something sad happens to the child who always gets chosen last in games, who falls off his bike and can't seem to catch a ball.

His self-image suffers.

By the time he outgrows his clumsiness, if he ever does, he has already absorbed a great deal of social punishment from his peers.

He may compensate in a variety of ways—by concentrating on his studies and becoming a scholar, or by spending his recesses helping the teacher clean erasers.

He may become what some experts term a dive-bomber—the kid who zooms around the playground crashing into other children and hitting. A study of juvenile arrests shows that youngsters with perceptual motor problems have a disproportionately high percentage of truancy.

And although nobody seems to understand just why, more boys than girls suffer from motor difficulties. Some of these youngsters develop sex gender identification problems—they find refuge playing with the girls instead of trying to compete with other boys.

FOR THE PAST 10 years, kinesiologists at the University of California at Los Angeles have been working with clumsy children in a special remedial program for perceptual motor learning.

Its director, Dr. Bryant Cratty, says 20 per cent of all youngsters—or about 50 children in every elementary school in the United States—suffer from a motor problem, to one degree or another.

Youngsters referred to Cratty undergo an hour-long test with their parents watching through a one-way mirror. They are also given a game-choice quiz and asked questions which reveal that most of them consider themselves unpopular and feel unhappy much of the time.

After their individual problems are analyzed, the children may be enrolled in twice-weekly after school sessions designed to improve their coordination, balance, agility and physical skills.

"We improve movement in kids who don't work well with their bodies," Cratty says. "We are interested in movement for its own sake because clumsy children are unhappy."

"THEY RANGE over the entire IQ system," he says. "They just can't work effectively with their bodies. We have one six-year-old now who moved like a two-year-old when we got him, but he could read from the dictionary."

According to Cratty, there are some 60 or 70 possible causes of motor disabilities—but the most common stem from difficult births—sometimes from birth anoxyia, a breathing problem caused by a prolapsed cord or a cord wrapped around the infant's neck, momentarily hindering the oxygen supply to the brain.

"But usually it is not too fruitful to determine the cause or to worry about whose genes are at fault. It is better to try to solve the problem," Cratty says.

He hires undergraduate students to work with the youngsters, aged four to 13, on about a one-to-three ratio. Smaller groups put too much pressure on the child, he feels.

The children practice bouncing on trampolines, tight-rope walking on wide balance beams, and somersaulting on padded mats in the gymnasium of an elementary school.

"The prognosis for these kids is pretty good, if we catch them young enough," Cratty says.

"ALTHOUGH WE do not know whether we have actually modified their neurological problem or just taught them more effective strategies for accomplishing motor tasks."

By the time he's three, Cratty says a child ought to be able to walk a two-inch wide line for 10 feet, draw a simple cross with a crayon, and jump forward three steps with both feet in the air.

At five, he should be able to draw circles and squares, touch his fingertips consecutively to the tip of his thumb, and balance frozen on one foot for four to six seconds.

A seven-year-old ought to be able to toss a ball 15 feet into a four-foot square target and skip rhythmically.

"A five or six-year-old who can't touch consecutive fingertips is also going to have trouble tying his shoes or fastening buttons," Cratty observed.

Regulations On Baby Cribs Due

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Bureau of Product Safety is drafting the final form of a proposed regulation covering baby cribs.

The regulation will be the first attempt by Uncle Sam to standardize the baby crib industry. According to bureau officials the proposal will eliminate hazardous features of baby cribs, some linked to injury or death in the past.

The regulation will establish a maximum allowable slat spacing dimension, among other things. This will help prevent baby from getting caught between slats and possibly getting strangled.

Check For Lint

In sewing many of today's fabrics, homemakers are urged to keep an eye out for lint on the sewing machine parts which could lead to skipped stitches.

Check Given For Tree Aid

The Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley presented a check for $1,000 to Mrs. Elizaeth Terwilliger Thursday to assist with the preservation of the butterfly trees of Muir Beach.

The Marin Conservation League is administering the fund, which is called the Elizabeth Terwilliger Butterfly Tree Fund.

Mrs. Terwilliger, the Marin naturalist and conservation leader, is seeking to preserve a stand of about 20 pine trees, where the Monarch butterflies stop from October to February each year during their migration.

New Regulation For Blood Banks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As of April 3, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires all blood banks to register with its Bureau of Biologics. Registration is required of any facility that collects, makes, prepares or processes human blood and blood products such as plasma.

FDA says a complete registration of blood banks is required. Surveys have shown that the blood banking system has not been able to provide consumers with sufficient high quality, safe human blood and blood products.

Swimsuits For 'Uneven' Woman

The Bali Co. has designed swim-sets for the "uneven" sized woman. She can now buy a different size top and a different size bottom.

The swimsets are sold in the foundation departments of most stores.

Marin Opera Action Has A New President

New chairman of Marin Opera Action is Mrs. Thomas E. Wynn of Belvedere.

Anna Wynn has been a member for three years, participating in the program to promote interest in opera, particularly the San Francisco Opera and its branches, Western Opera Theater and Spring Opera.

Marin members present previews of the fall season, work at the Opera House, sell tickets and entertain members of the cast and their spouses during the opera season.

Mrs. Wynn said that the group is open to anyone interested in opera.

Born in Salerno, Italy, she herself is a singer and has done concert work in Italy. She also sang with the American Opera Company in Chicago, the Musical Arts Ensemble and the Young Audience Programs and in concerts in the Bay Area.

She also enjoys playing piano, painting and writing stories and novels.

ANNA P. WYNN
New Marin leader

Anna Wynn received the bachelor of arts and master's degrees in education in Texas. She and her husband, a physician, have been Marin residents for 12 years and they have two sons, Robert, 15, and Steven, 12.

Other officers for Marin Opera Action this year are Mmes. David A. Dixon, co-chairman; J. J. Graves, secretary; Edmund C. Ward, treasurer; Donald Blinco, publicity; John C. Alexander, reservations and tickets; Rodgers C. Broomhead, membership; Howard C. Bailor, libretti, and Jo. O. Ritchie, in-school programs.

Engagement Is Announced

The couple plans to be married Aug. 25.

Do Not Overload On Matress Pads

Machine wash mattress pads in hot water for 10 to 14 minutes. Check the capacity of your machine in the use and care booklet and do not overload.

Only one large size pad should be washed at a time, distributing it around the agitator to balance the load.

Primer Out For Indoor Gardeners

A primer for indoor gardeners was written specifically for children but its direct, detailed, no nonsense approach makes it suitable for beginning indoor gardeners of all ages.

Aileen Paul, author of "Kids Gardening" (Doubleday) and the mother of three children, has taught indoor gardening classes for children as part of the community recreation program in Leonia, N. J., where she lives.

Her book includes directions for soil mixtures, planters, terrariums, rock gardens and plant propagation. A chapter on inexpensive plants tells how to grow them from fruit seeds, pineapple crowns, carrot tops and other items that usually are discarded as garbage.

Consumer Resource Center Sets Round

"Health and Health Problems" is the topic of the panel discussion which the Tamalpais High School's Consumer Resource Center will present at 1:30 p.m. April 25 at the center in Wood Hall, Tamalpais High School.

This is the third in the current series of programs on consumer subjects, sponsored by the center. Mrs. Marcelett Henry, head of the school's Home Economics department, is chairman. The program is open to the public at no fee. Reservations may be made by calling the school.

Caftans Still Big

The caftan influence, says fashion seer Leona Bowman, is still casting its shadow for fall, and sophisticated striped denim shirts with caftan embroidery are worth watching for.

The Virus Check

Researchers have discovered that virus infections can be carried from one fabric to another and live for long periods of time. But hot water washing of clothing tends to help eliminate the problem.

Denims Popular

Glazed chintzes, glazed chambray and sateen are among summer '73 sportswear signatures — with denim a favorite, particularly washed-out denim.

Special Tool Out For Bias Tubing

To turn bias tubing after stitching often maddens home-sewers. The tiny tube of fabric, too narrow to respond to unaided fingers, has been exasperatingly poked at with a steel knitting needle-only to creep, bunch and escape. But now there is a special tool, a loop turner.

The manufacturer says it makes tube-turning easy, right side out with no trouble and in a few minutes. It is a slender steel shaft with latched hook at one end and ring handle at the other. It is suited to dressmaker tubing of all kinds.

ART REVIEW

Helen Rich's Mosaics Trace To Many Sources

By ADA GARFINKEL

Mosaicist Helen Steinau Rich draws upon many sources for her inspirations. In her exhibit at Old St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon, Mrs. Rich's brilliantly glowing, unusual three-dimensional hanging mosaics affirm the artist's probing interest and research into many areas for her ideas and materials.

Mosaics are, of course, an ancient art form deriving from early Byzantine religious symbolism and important for their richly decorative and emotional significance.

But Helen Rich's sculptural reliefs are unlike the flatly embedded tesserae of either the Byzantine mosaics (for all the evocative power of the latter), or of most of the present day decorative tile works.

It is as if the artist has invented a new art form (she uses a thick compound of magnesite which she kneads into the contours she needs as a base) to titillate the senses with undulating rhythms and textural vitality which express her concerns with archaeology, mythology, the physical sciences and her own environment.

And from Cambodia, Thailand, Egypt, India, Greece, Italy, and Mexico, she has brought azurite, garnet, obsidian, smalti, petrified woods, mother of pearl and unusual pebbles and rocks. And many ideas.

"Homage to Mycenae" is one idea conceived in situ. A diagramatic elevation plan, Mrs. Rich has recreated the site of Agememnon's Tomb, the road to the Palace, the Lion's Gate and the grave plots where rare treasures were discovered by a German archaeologist late in the 19th Century.

And Akhnaten, the Egyptian Pharaoh (and husband of Nefertiti) is shown receiving the key of life from the sun — declared the only god by the Pharaoh.

The fearsome figure of "Kali," the male-female vindictive god of India and Nepal, is shown wearing a crown and necklace of skulls. But even more fierce is the real-life mosaic portrait of the "Goroka Chief" of New Guinea whom Mrs. Rich witnessed in his full war dance regalia in 1970.

In the area of natural science, Mrs. Rich has designed "Falling Stars" and "Moon, Stars, and Setting Sun." In the latter, the gold hand "represents the hand of God placing the moon in the heavens," according to the artist. Mrs. Rich notes that the stars are made of glass from Cambodia — "the same glass that decorates the temples there."

The artist's favorite mosaic, one hears, is "Molecular Fantasy." In cool blues and greens shaped into a design taken from a chemist's drawings of the molecules of tungsten, hammered copper strips contain the cellular structures in jewel-like clusters of exotic chips, glass and semi-precious metals.

While the gleaming emissions from her materials and rhythmic linear swoops and swirls create abundant energy in their own right, Mrs. Rich reaches further than that when she notes that "the blue at the bottom of 'Molecular Fantasy' denotes the turmoil created by the molecules."

Other mosaics show various insects and birds in various pursuits — most of them highly energized, for example, "Bird in Flight" which represents the swift — "a very fast flying bird that can fly from America to Europe." The artist energizes the bird with "feathers" of sharp, bristly glass points. The sculptured form of spreading wings stands out in sharp relief against the inclined diagonal zigzag to make this mosaic achieve her desired aim: "one of flight and fast movement."

And there is much more to see in this abundantly rich display of talent which was last seen in a one-artist exhibit at the Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco, in 1967.

Mrs. Rich's present exhibit, sponsored by the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society, will continue through May 20, and may be viewed on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons from 1 until 4 o'clock.

Survey Being Taken In Inverness Area

Questionnaires asking residents of the Inverness area their opinions on topics ranging from land use and promotion of tourism to water services and transportation are being taken door-to-door by volunteers from the Citizens Master Planning Group of the Inverness area.

Marjorie Stone, group member in charge of distributing the questionnaires, said they also would be mailed to non-resident property owners. All those who reside, own property, or work in the area and who are at least 18 years old, are being asked to complete the survey questionnaires.

Some 2,500 are to be distributed.

"The purpose of the Citizens Master Planning Group", according to a letter accompanying each questionnaire, "is to find out the opinions and attitudes of the people here and to use them in the development of a detailed local master plan for the Inverness area.

"This local plan will then be incorporated in whole or in part into the countywide master plan and will become crucial in the future of Inverness. This opinion survey is the initial step in the development of such a detail plan," according to the letter from the survey committee.

The communities of Seahaven, Inverness, Paradise Estates, Inverness Park and Silver Hills are included in the area. The planning effort is jointly sponsored by the Inverness Improvement Association and the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin.

The two-part survey, a product of several committee discussions and two public meetings in Inverness, contains 74 statements with which respondents are asked to indicate that they agree, disagree or are undecided.

All questionnaires are to be returned by May 21, after which a community meeting will be called.

Knox Gelatin To Halt Claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Knox Gelatine Inc., Johnstown, N.Y., today agreed to stop advertising that Knox Gelatine Drink is an important health and nutrition aid.

Under a consent order tentatively accepted by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), the firm also was forbidden from saying that gelatine protein in general is a high quality protein or a source of nutritional benefit, or that any relative food product leads to good health or is nutritious.

The FPC had contended that gelatine protein is relatively low in quality and of little nutritional good, and that Knox Gelatine Drink, contrary to the firm's ads, does not contribute in a major way to nutrition.

Board Eyes Warning On Schools

The Petaluma Board of Education — angered over rapid growth in Rohnert Park — decided last night to warn parents of crowded conditions to come.

Board members were told the district can expect an additional 690 students at Rohnert Park Junior High School and Rancho Cotate High School by the end of 1974. Upset that neither school can accommodate such rapid growth, board members agreed parents should be informed of future problems so they may have the opportunity to pressure the Rohnert Park City Council into a controlled growth plan.

School board members asked for a growth plan at a joint meeting with the council last month, but were told they must find some means to cope with the new students. Rohnert Park is expected to have 2,025 new homes by December of 1974.

"It's our responsibility to tell all the families of students at the junior high and Rancho Cotate what problems will come by the 1974-75 school year," Dr. William K. Kortum said. "Let's give them the facts about school capacities, the scheduled growth and tell them the alternatives are some form of year-round school, double sessions or an extended school day."

Board members agreed a letter of warning should be sent and asked that a draft be prepared for approval at the April 24 board meeting.

A suggestion by the city council that a special school levy of $250 be charged on each new home to support a construction program was rejected by the board. Members questioned the legality of the extra charge and said, in any event, it would be only a temporary solution.

Members grumbled that it would be impossible to hold successful district bond elections since Petalumans would not support bonds for schools in Rohnert Park, where growth has not been controlled. "We have a different attitude on growth in our two areas," Robert S. Stimson said. "It will be impossible to pass bond issues in the future."

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

CHERRY VALLEY — Rejected a request by parents from Cherry Valley School to delay the conversion to the year-round school plan as scheduled in July. Board members said a poll showed a majority of parents favor the new calendar.

BUDGET — Continued review of the preliminary 1973-74 budget and agreed to consider the request of Rohnert Park residents to add funds to continue special reading and mathematics classes at the junior high school. Federal funds have been reduced by 10 per cent.

MCDOWELL — Heard a group of parents ask the board to delay a decision on changing to a year-round calendar until May so more information sessions can be held at McDowell School.

ADVISOR — Welcomed David Pratt, a senior at Rancho Cotate High School, as student adviser.

CALENDAR — Established the 1973-74 school calendar as Sept. 4 through June 6 with the exception of Cherry Valley School which will be on the year-round plan.

Stiff Sentence On Copper Wire Theft

ACCRA (UPI) — A military tribunal Tuesday ordered two men convicted of stealing 250 pounds of copper wire jailed for 30 years each at hard labor.

Scrap dealers John Owusu, 24, and Emanuel Badasu, 25, were originally sentenced to die for the crime, but the tribunal commuted that sentence.

Comedian, Guitarist Team Up For Shows

Comedian George Carlin and singer-guitarist Kenny Rankin will appear in two shows April 21 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Performances will be at 7 and 10 p.m.

Carlin, a stand-up comedian, gave an earlier performance in Marin, playing to capacity audiences with singer J. J. Cale.

Such subjects as drugs, sex, the church, police and profanity provide much of his material. Long hair, jeans and a T-shirt are his trademarks.

Rankin will sing ballads of today and yesteryear.

Somona State To Present One-Act Puccini Opera

Performances of a renaissance opera and play will be offered in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College tomorrow through Sunday.

Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi", a one-act opera in English, and Machiavelli's comedy "Mandragola" will be presented by the college opera and drama workshops. Performances will be given each day at 8 p.m. and at 11 p.m. tomorrow and Friday.

The opera will feature Marvin Klebe of the Cinnabar Theater, Petaluma, in the title role. Greed is the basis of the plot as family members try to rewrite a man's will after his death.

Making their debuts with the opera workshop are two college professors, Martin Blaze of the English department and William O. Cord, chairman of the division of humanities.

Local students in the opera cast include Rosemary Brock of Mill Valley, Kenneth Rowland of San Rafael, Anna Secrist of Novato, Tommie Sue Anderson of Larkspur and Donald Tarpley of Rohnert Park.

The Machiavelli comedy deals with amusing looks at shortcomings of people from all walks of life. Charles Cherry of Sausalito and Glen Saukko of Cotati are in the cast.

Both productions are under the direction of Gerd Mairandres, director of the drama workshop. Dr. Peggy Donovan-Jeffry directs the opera workshop.

Reservations should be made through the office of instructional services and continuing education.

Agent Of FBI Is Suspended

DETROIT (UPI) — A high ranking official of the FBI in Detroit has been temporarily suspended on allegations he accepted bribes from area mobsters, federal sources sait Tuesday.

The suspension was revealed in a story in the Detroit Free Press Tuesday in which syndicated Washington columnist Jack Anderson said inspectors sent from Washington "uncovered enough evidence to fire the agent for association with Mafia figures."

Federal sources told UPI that an agent had been suspended, but did not reveal his name or position.

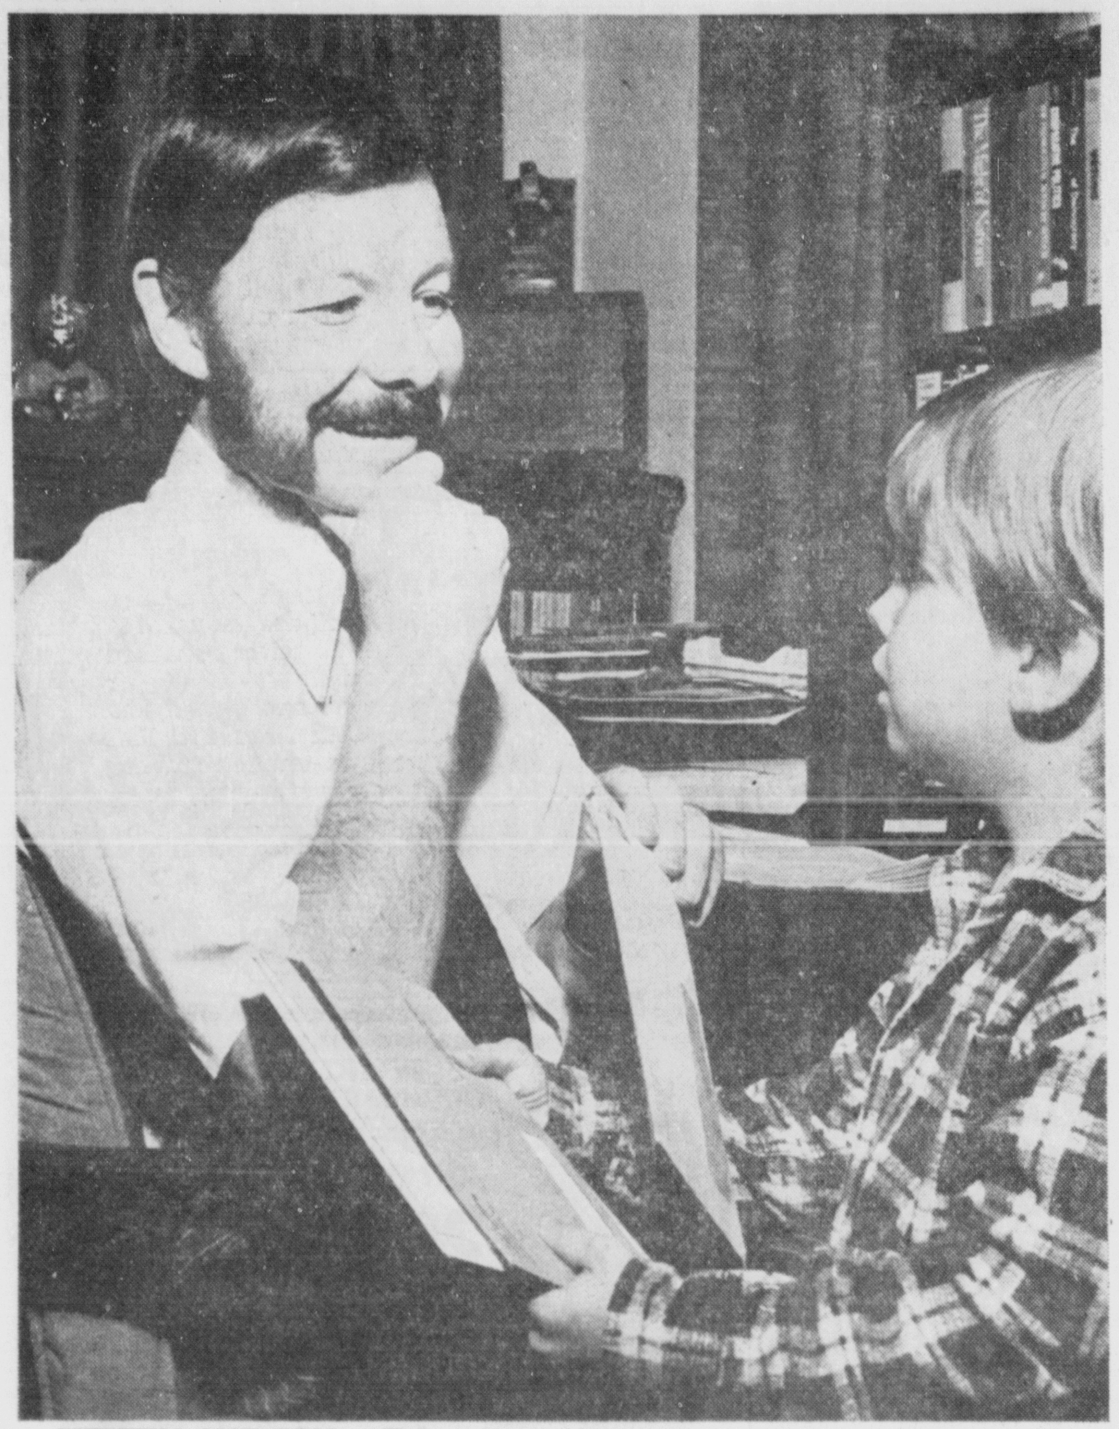
New Citizen Saw World, Chose U.S.



CITIZEN AND SON — Four-year-old Alan E. Oldall helps his father, Alan A., with the mail in their San Rafael home. Oldall, 33, became a naturalized U.S. citizen last month but not without doing considerable looking at this country and many others during an around-the-world tour from 1964 through 1967. (Independent-Journal photo)

Alan A. Oldall took a look at most of the world and decided the United States was best.

He became an American citizen last month in naturalization procedures in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Oldall saved enough from his assistant accountant job in England to finance an around-the-world tour in early 1964 and while in Japan, he met Patricia Sylvain, daughter of an Air Force master sergeant stationed there.

He had planned to come to the U.S. from Japan anyway, but it was nicer when Miss Sylvain's father was transferred to Hamilton Air Force Base.

Oldall, 33, spent most of 1965 and 1966 traveling around the U.S. He visited 36 states "trying to decide whether I wanted to spend the rest of my life here."

He returned to England in early 1967 with Miss Sylvain, then his fiance, completing the circle of his world tour. They were wed in the U.S. in 1968.

He attended the College of Marin and Sonoma State College, receiving his bachelor's degree there in political science. He now is working on his doctorate at the University of California at Berkeley and Davis and plans to be a college professor.

Oldall's decision to become a citizen was partly motivated by his interest in American politics and his intention to teach.

"It seemed strange to tell students to vote when you cannot," he said. "I feel more wanted now than I did originally. Not to be egotistical, but becoming a citizen is a two-way street, you get the country but the country also gets you."

Oldall, from London, is the first of his family to become a U.S. citizen. He and his wife live at 1859 Second Street, San Rafael, with their four-year-old son, Alan.

"I am here entirely by choice," he said. "I like the choice I made and I am happy with it."

Strep Infection Leading Disease

With 145 cases, streptococcus infection was the most prevalent communicable disease reported in Marin County last week, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

There also were 21 cases of gonorrhea.

Valley Colleges Group Forms

A new organization aimed at supporting Indian Valley Colleges, tentatively named "Friends of IVC" is being formed in Novato, according to Irving D. Chapman, group organizer.

"The fundamental reason for forming the group is to establish mutual support between the colleges and the community," Chapman said.

Indian Valley Colleges, second campus of the Marin Community College District, is holding classes in temporary quarters at Hamilton Air Force Base, San Jose Junior High School and Novato High School, with opening of its 330-acre campus at Novato scheduled for January 1975.

Novato Residents To Vote Tuesday On Flood Bonds

Novato Flood Control Zone residents will vote on a $4.5-million flood control bond measure Tuesday, another chapter in a long effort to control the ravages of winter creek overflow in the community.

The election was set after Novato and Warner Creeks and Arroyo Avicchi spilled their banks and flooded scores of homes in January.

Polling places for the 16,770 voters in the flood control zone will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. A two-thirds favorable vote is required for passage.

The zone is a 44-square-mile area from Big Rock Ridge to Gnoss Field and from the Petaluma River to within a mile of the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road.

In 1958 the voters rejected a $900,000 bond measure for flood control by a vote of 1,400 to 333.

Since 1900, it has been estimated that about 25 flood-producing storms have occurred in the Novato Creek Basin, including a storm in January 1940, which inundated about 5,570 acres, according to consultants Royston, Hanamoto, Beck and Abey of San Francisco. Major flooding also occurred in 1955.

Proponents say Novato has a very serious flooding problem that will get worse with increased population and "the bond issue raises the money now to protect and enhance our creeks at the least cost to today's taxpayer."

Passage of the bond measure would raise the district's tax rate from 14.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 27 cents, according to the Novato Flood Control Bond Committee.

To accomplish the same work on a pay-as-you-go basis would require a tax rate perhaps to the limit of $1 per assessed valuation.

Bond retirement would add about $9 a year to the property tax bill on a $35,000 home, according to the committee.

No written argument has been filed against the bond measure, but objections have been raised that it doesn't specify what type of project would be constructed.

Councilman George C. Quesada, protesting this procedure, has said the people should have the right to vote on which type of project they prefer.

The choices are: a project constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers, which would require channelization of Warner Creek and a section of Novato Creek near Highway 101, a modified corps project or improvement of creeks in their natural state.

While costs haven't been set on the projects, the $4.5 million is expected to cover the local costs, which in the case of an Army Corps of Engineers project would be combined with federal funding.

According to the ballot measure, the funds would be used for earthen and lined flood channels, pumping stations, dams and reservoirs, levees, culverts and bridges and aesthetic, recreation and environmental work.

Leroy M. Gerner, cochairman of the bond committee, said the public will have a chance to choose which project it wants after passage of the bond measure.

Gerner said a "local-federal project" would provide for amenities such as lighting and bicycle and pedestrian paths, possibly ponding near Diablo Avenue and creek coverage at the rear of Lu Sutton School.

The outlook of the corps has changed since the controversial Corte Madera Creek flood control project and creek enhancement is considered in its plans, he said.

The corps is tentatively scheduled to present its plan in Novato May 23 and residents will have a chance to make their own choice on a project, Gerner said.

According to the committee, the bond money would enlarge Novato Creek's earthen channel from Highway 101 to San Pablo Bay, provide erosion control, cleaning and beautification of Novato Creek from Diablo Avenue to Stafford Lake and cleaning and enlarging of Warner Creek and the lower portion of Arroyo Avicchi Creek.

Houseboats May Get A Sausalito Reprieve

The Sausalito City Council indicated last night it may not impose restrictions on houseboats proposed in amendments to the central waterfront plan.

On a motion by Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, the Council agreed to consider making houseboats a conditional use on the waterfront, provided they be floating structures and that a height limitation be established.

Presently proposed changes in the plan would limit houseboats to only 2 per cent of the vessels in any marina.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said he thought the city should stick with the 2 per cent limitation or eliminate houseboats altogether in the zone.

The view of the bay on the central waterfront "should not be encumbered by any obstruction, including houseboats," the city manager said.

But the council — and particularly Fraser — seemed unwilling to go along with the staff recommendation. Several members of the audience also rose to speak against it.

"You can put too many restrictions on people," said Councilman Sally Stanford. "I will not vote for this."

In the end, the council took no action on the matter, but referred Fraser's suggestion that houseboats be a conditional use back to the staff which is to present recommendations in the matter at the council's May 1 meeting.

The staff was also asked to decide on a reasonable height limitation for the floating homes.

Also referred to staff was a proposal from Councilman Earl F. Dunphy that the city permit more parking for various uses — such as professional offices — in the central waterfront.

The proposed changes in the plan severly limit parking in the area, in order to discourage use of cars on the waterfront.

Results Of Survey Expected Tonight

Results of opinion surveys distributed by the Point Reyes Planning Group will be announced at a community meeting at 8 p.m. today in West Marin School in Point Reyes Station.

Wilson Turner, chairman of the coordinating committee, responsible for the surveys, said yesterday there had been about a 66 per cent return on some 800 questionnaires given out to residents and approximately a 40 per cent reply from the 217 mailed to nonresident property owners.

While answers to questions on community opinion have been tabulated, responses to the section on demographic information have not yet been counted and will be announced at a future meeting, Turner said.

Reservations Are Being Taken At Spaying Center

The Marin County Humane Society Medical Center is taking reservations for its low-cost spaying and neutering program that will begin operation May 14, according to John Gill, executive director of the society.

"Marin County residents are being given precedence" over nonresidents on the waiting list for population control surgery on their dogs and cats, Gill said yesterday. The service will be available to all Northern California residents, according to earlier announcements.

The humane society's medical center will charge $20 to spay a female dog, including a distemper shot; $15 for a female cat including a feline enteritis shot; $12 for neutering a male dog and $10 for a male cat, Gill said.

The surgery will be performed in a newly constructed medical facility at the humane center on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, Novato.

African Fable Delights Young Audience Seeing Story Theater

By PAUL LIBERATORE

The children at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building yesterday jiggled in their seats with glee when the hunter, perched atop a tree with knife in hand, fell victim to that curious animal "that steals our sight and our minds and some people call him Sleep."

The story was "The One You Don't See Coming," a classic fable from Africa, performed by Story Theater, a 10-member troupe of student actors from California State University of San Francisco.

"What sleep steals he only steals for a few hours," rationalized the defeated hunter, concluding the first of four high-energy, improvisation-style skits presented in two performances for Marin County schoolchildren.

The show was the 17th in an 18-program series sponsored by Youth in Arts, a group made up of members of the Marin Symphony Association, Civic Ballet, Museum Association and Junior Theater of Marin.

"The idea is to bring music, theater, dance and art to Marin children," said program coordinator Helen Crotty.

The show was the kind that children adore, high-speed, frenzied, full of slapstick action and color.

"We try to incorporate athletic acting with few props or scenery," said director Geraldine Silk. "After all, that's the way theater is going."

About 48,000 children from kindergarten through eighth grade, including those at yesterday's performances, have attended the Youth in Arts series this year, said Mrs. Crotty.

In its second season, the group has sponsored daytime performances by the Marin Civic Ballet Association, Marin Shakespeare Festival, Music for Minors, San Rafael High School Jazz Ensemble, Marin Youth Orchestra and others.

About 1,500 youngsters packed the morning show and several hundred more attended in the afternoon. They squealed and cheered as the actors bounded around the stage in brightly colored jump suits acting out four folk tales.

The actors for Story Theater were picked in open auditions at the university, said Miss Silk, and are available to put on shows and acting workshops at Bay Area schools.

Sparse Crowd Hears Candidate Views On Tamalpais School Board Election

Despite a large field of nine candidates and recent turmoil in the district, an audience of only 26 persons appeared last night for the last major turnout of hopefuls in the Tamalpais High School District trustee race.

None of the candidates — seven of the nine appeared — mentioned the sparse crowd until questioned from the audience following opening remarks at Sir Francis Drake High School's Little Theater, which seats about 300.

At that point, the board hopefuls, including the holders of two of the three seats up for election, blamed various circumstances for the small crowd.

"People are largely apathetic . . . until you say, for instance, that you're going to suspend buses," said Robert W. Corlett, current board chairman. He noted also that the candidates' night, sponsored by the League of Women Voters and the Drake Parent-Teacher Association, conflicted with Public Schools Week open houses scheduled last night.

Challenger Maurine Ballard, a retired teacher, said improving community participation in school affairs "means doing something besides talking."

"One of the things we tend to do is communicate in un-understandable language," said Jerrold M. Ladar, the other incumbent seeking to return to his seat at the polls Tuesday. (The third seat being contested is that of David D. Ring, who recently resigned in the wake of the ouster of Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins and controversy over district spending practices.)

Ladar also observed that the crowd exceeded the usual attendance at board sessions.

"The turnout is of concern to the challengers," said candidate Brice Pace, a mathematics teacher. He believed it could mean that the "incumbents are virtually assured of a shoo-in."

Challenger Elaine S. Brockbank, a housewife, said she was "not terribly despairing of" the audience size because she assumed those in the audience would "spread the word" of the evening's developments.

"I think people have given up on the board . . . and I think the same thing applies to candidates' nights," said board hopefuls Lotte Schiller, long involved in Tam District and P-TA affairs.

Said candidate Fred C. Hannahs, a stockbroker: "The indecisiveness of the board has turned off a certain segment of the community."

Failing to appear last night were candidates David A. Brinkhaus, treasurer of the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women, and Sonoma State College history professor Robert A. Karlsrud.

Beyond the crowd size, most of the candidates' remarks focused on possible change in the district and the controversy over classroom emphasis on basic versus innovative subjects, with attention as well to teacher evaluation.

And, for the most part, Pace, Hannahs and Mrs. Schiller seized the opportunity to attack the present board.

Ladar believed a major change already had been made: the replacement of Hawkins with Robert D. Torrey, deputy superintendent.

"Is this the big change?" asked Pace. "I don't think so. I think its purely a continuation of the same thing." He noted Torrey had served as deputy not only to Hawkins but to his ousted predecessor, Chester Carlisle.

Mrs. Brockbank saw no reason why courses in fundamental grammar and the like couldn't be offered, but at the same time favored "more individualized instruction." She said, "Students today need the challenge."

Mrs. Schiller sensed a "climate of uneasiness" and a "certain amount of distrust" in community outlook toward the board. "Too many decision seem to be made behind the scenes," she said.

Miss Ballard thought change could come in the form of increased use of volunteers in the schools, perhaps directed by a special coordinator, and possibly through an evening program for youths and adults.

Hannahs saw a "rather weak and ineffective" board that had made "some horrendous mistakes" in control of the district, and criticized board delegation of certain functions to committees.

"I don't think we're placing the proper emphasis on the rudiments of grammar or the rudiments of mathematics," said Pace. "I think we're engaging in a vast game of gobbledegook."

And he charged that Hawkins and Carlisle had been the "scapegoats of their (the board's) ineffectiveness."

Corlett devoted much of his time to praising district achievements in the areas of communication with the community, staff betterment, cost-cutting and parent awareness of curriculum.

On the subject of teacher evaluation, the board chairman thought emphasis should be placed on review of the performances of student teachers and other new instructors to avoid difficulties later on.

Ladar was critical of the Stull Bill, state legislation requiring local evaluation of teachers. He "held out very few hopes" that it would provide "effective and meaningful evaluation."

To Miss Ballard, district efforts to meet the law's provisions show promise, while Hannahs said evaluation guidelines adopted by the board are tantamount to the "king of France marching up and down the hills . . . a maneuver which produces no results."

Murder Jury Tours San Quentin

By LARRY MOWELL

The jury in the murder case against two San Quentin inmates said to have killed a guard left the fishbowl atmosphere of Marin's high security courtroom yesterday to become the first criminal panel in at least six years to tour the prison.

The two-hour visit guided by Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson went without a hitch.

The jurors — apparently used to being watched after 56 days of trial inside the bulletproof screen at the Hall of Justice — ignored the solemn stares of inmates along their paths and busily looked through peepholes, tested window latches and otherwise showed off their knowledge of the areas they had heard about in trial.

The century-old yellow prison had its best face on. Immaculate flower beds brimmed with blooms and the bay water glistened outside the walls.

From the moment the judge failed the test of a prison metal detector on the way in, the tour was more like a lighthearted Sunday outing than a somber visit to a high security prison.

Two women jurors and a man checking the layout of a bathroom found an inmate using the facilities and retreated in embarrassment, and all the jurors peeked briefly through the window of a hospital room to the consternation of the occupant, who didn't know what was happening.

But, despite the lighter aspects of the visit, the jury was at the prison for the serious business of helping them decide whether Earl Billy Gibson and Lawrence Justice knifed inmate Herman Johnson on July 19, 1971, then killed guard Leo G. Davis two days later as he stood guard outside Johnson's locked cell in the prison hospital.

Gibson and Justice, in civilian clothes, joined the judge, jurors and attorneys as they passed the maximum security Adjustment Center. The group was escorted by five guards and two more officers shadowed the two convicts.

Key points on the itinerary were a concrete stairway where Johnson was attacked and the prison hospital in which Davis was slain.

Most of the visit was devoted to the stuffy, four-story hospital overlooking the bay. The jurors saw the cell from which Johnson allegedly saw Justice, Gibson and another man attack Davis and the spot to which the mortally wounded officer crawled before he died.

But the jury also saw changes from what had been in 1971. The door of Johnson's hospital cell had been replaced, rooms had been remodeled and the fourth-floor ward where post-murder events took place had been abandoned.

Nevertheless, Judge Wilson — who had said before the trip, "I don't like jury views even in condemnation suits," — concluded the visit was worthwhile. He scheduled the trip at the jury's request.

Prison officials didn't mind the tour either. Although cells in the hospital normally left open were locked for the occasion, information officer Lee DeBord said there were "no problems as far as we are concerned."

Wilson said no Marin jury has visited the prison since 1966 or 1967 and DeBord agreed it has been at least that long.

Closing arguments in the murder case were to begin today amid the tight security that has reigned throughout. A $30,000 glass wall separates spectators from the trial, which has failed to draw much public attention.

Spectators, who must be searched electronically and physically before entering the courtroom, usually have been outnumbered by guards.

Judge Wilson said he thinks the last time a jury visited the prison was in the case of a stabbing in 1966 or 1967 in a classroom of the prison's adjustment center.

40-Minute Talk Pays Off On Golden Gate

For 40 minutes today a California Highway Patrol officer talked to a despondent man who was standing on a girder below the sidewalk of the Golden Gate Bridge, threatening to jump.

The efforts of Officer Kenneth H. Babbitt paid off when he and two friends of the would-be leaper finally talked Gary Lee Green, 21, of San Francisco, into coming back to the bridge deck.

Babbit, told by a passerby that Green had climbed over the railing, arrived at a point on the span's west side just south of the Marin tower at 12:30 a.m. to find Green walking along the suspension rail underneath the sidewalk.

For 40 minutes, the patrol said, Babbitt and Green talked while two friends of Green's, Robert P. Simmons and David Scott, both of 2015 Bridgeway, Apt. 1, Sausalito, were summoned.

When Scott and Simmons arrived they were able to talk Green into returning to the sidewalk, officers said. He was taken to Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco for psychiatric observation, the patrol said.

Babbitt said Green, who said he is a musician, told him he was despondent over personal problems.

Bus Lane To Be Closed Next Week

Operation of the exclusive northbound bus lane over the Waldo Grade will be suspended next week while southbound lanes on Richardson Bay Bridge are repaved.

The bus lane will be reopened after the work is completed. The paving is supposed to take two days.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes A Very Simple Play Will Confuse Opponents

You can sometimes hornswoggle your opponents with very simple plays. The play that worked in today's hand, for example, is so easy that even an absolute beginner can use it without having to think twice.

South dealer
Neither side vulnerable

NORTH
♠ 9 4 3 2
♡ 7 5 3

♣ 10 9

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — ♡ 4

LOW HEART

West opened the four of hearts, and South won with the jack. Clearly, South must lose three aces. Equally clearly, South must draw trumps quickly, before an opponent manages to ruff a heart.

The average player might well lead the king of spades from the South hand. Now, it's a fine idea to lead the kind from a suit headed by king-queen — when you are one of the defenders. It's not necessary when you are declarer, for there is no need to inform your partner. The dummy will find out in good time what you have in the trump suit; in the meantime, there is no need to keep the opponents informed.

DEFEAT AT HAND

If you lead the king of spades, West will pounce on the trick with his ace. He will then lead another heart and East will ruff. This ruff will defeat the contract.

The deceptive play is to lead the queen of spades instead of the king. Simple enough, but often effective.

MAY BE AFRAID

West may be afraid to play the ace for fear that his partner has the singleton king. If West can be induced to refuse the first trump trick, there is no further danger. By the time that West wakes up and takes the second trump, East is out of trumps. The contract is then safe.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- A 5
♥- Q 8 6 4 2
♦- 7 6 4 3
♣- 7 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Despite the excellent heart support the hand is too weak for a jump to four hearts.

Schools Can Also Become Apartments

VIENNA (AP) — To cope with the problem of changing school enrollments, Vienna is building three schools that can be converted into apartments.

The three schools, planned for a housing development, will have 80 classrooms. Should demand for classrooms decline, the rooms can be converted easily into household units.

Replica Built Of Viking Boat

LONDON (UPI) — The National Maritime Museum is building a replica of a 9th century Viking boat, a museum spokesman said.

Work has been going on in a Thames River boat shop since June, 1972, to construct a replica of a faeringen, a four-oared boat, excavated from a burial mound on the Oslo Fjord in Norway in 1880.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON . GREB

Says who? The question about today's birthday celebrities concerns what they said or did not say. Answer "Yes" or "No."

1. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES (1862-1948) was a law professor, governor, prosecutor, presidential candidate, secretary of state, and Chief Justice of the United States. He defeated William Randolph Hearst for the New York governship but lost his bid for the presidency by 23 electoral votes to Woodrow Wilson. Did he once say, "There will always be a multitude who are congenitally unable to think straight." Yes or No?

2. EDWARD EVERETT (1794-1865) was the orator whose two-hour speech at Gettysburg was overshadowed by the short, moving speech of Abraham Lincoln. As president of Harvard, did he stop protests against admitting a Negro student by saying, "If this boy passes the examination he will be admitted; and if the white students choose to withdraw, all the income of the college will be devoted to his education." Yes or No?

3. DEAN ACHESON (1893-1971) rose from a law clerk to Justice Brandeis to United States Secretary of State under President Truman. He helped guide the Marshall plan development for Europe but was accused of being soft on communis. Did he say, "We have learned. . . that the control of Europe by a single aggressive, unfriendly power would constitute an intolerable threat to the national security of the United States." Yes or No?

4. PAUL DOUGLAS (1907-1959), Hollywood actor, was born in Philadelphia and educated at Yale University. His screen credits include "Letters to Three Wives," "The Big Lift," and "Executive Suite." Did he say, "Why does everyone confuse me with the senator from Illinois? I don't look, talk or vote like him. I'm just plain me." Yes or No?

ANSWERS: 1 - Yes; 2 - Yes; 3 - Yes; 4 - No.

A YOUTH SETS AN EXAMPLE

Students of Allen Roy Weatherhead at San Rafael High School could use him as an example of honesty.

Weatherhead of San Quentin, an 18-year-old teacher's aide, found $50 in cash — two $20 bills and a $10 bill — lying on the ground at about 4 p.m. at the corner of Mission Avenue and Union Street in San Rafael yesterday, police said.

He took the money to the police station. It will be returned to him if no one claims it within a year.

Supervisor Pay Plan Protested

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Protests by taxpayer organizations have forced Sonoma County supervisors to delay plans to grant themselves a salary increase.

Representatives of the Sonoma County Taxpayers Association and Irate Taxpayers Committee criticized the board Monday for considering large increases for itself, as well as eight department heads, at the same time that the county unemployment rate exceeds 10 per cent.

Board members postponed the issue until April 30 and asked interested groups to suggest an alternative proposal.

The board, which says it works full time, last week suggested salaries be geared to that paid to superior court judges. Plans call for the board to receive 50 per cent of the judges' pay this year with gradual increases to bring the ratio to 60 per cent in the next five years. The current annual supervisors' salary of $17,900 would be raised by $280 the first year.

"It is inconceivable to us how any elected official or appointed county employee could be so crass as to ask for a salary raise at this time, with the unemployment rate being what it is in this county," William W. Pisenti, president of the Irate Taxpayers Committee, said. He countered that supervisors should receive only a cost-of-living increase.

Supervisor Charles Hinkle of Santa Rosa balked at the salary plan, saying it should go into effect with the next term of office. "I personally believe no elected officials should get a raise other than the cost-of-living while in office," he said.

Warren's Son's Marriage Comes To End

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The marriage of Sacramento Municipal Court Judge Earl Warren Jr., son of former U.S. Chief Justice and former California Gov. Earl Warren, was ended Tuesday after more than two years of litigation.

Superior Court Judge William M. Gallagher signed a final judgment of dissolution ending Warren's 17-year marriage to the former Cleo Patricia Kent.

The proceedings began Feb. 18, 1971 when Warren filed a dissolution petition with the court. There was a lengthy fight over custody of the couple's four children and division of property.

Last April, Gallagher awarded custody of the four children to Warren with visitation rights granted to Mrs. Warren. But last fall Mrs. Warren was awarded custody of one of the children. Warren is required to make $400--month support payments to his wife until she dies or remarries.

Speakers Set Pollution Talks

William Fairbanks, an agricultural engineer from the University of California, and Jay Gould of the Milk Producers League of California will talk about pollution at a meeting of Marin dairymen at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Point Reyes Station Community Center.

The meeting is sponsored by the dairy waste committee of Marin County Farm Bureau and the farm adviser's office.

Farm bureau directors yesterday changed their meeting date from the second Tuesday to the second Wednesday of each month because Tuesdays conflict with meetings of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, according to Ulla McLean, secretary. The farm bureau board meets at 10 a.m. at the farm bureau office, Shoreline Highway and Mesa Road, Point Reyes Station.

Probation In A Fatal Crash

NEW CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — A New York City fireman was sentenced to five years probation Tuesday in the death of five high school students in a bus-train accident one year ago.

Joseph Larkin, a part-time school bus driver, was convicted of negligent homicide in the case, in which he allegedly failed to stop the bus at a railroad crossing despite warning cries from students on the bus.

Rockland County Court Judge John Galluci said he was in full agreement with the conviction, but said no one would benefit by sending Larkin to jail. Larkin said he had suffered terribly since the crash and that it would remain on his conscience for the rest of his life.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Food Is Source of Security As Well As Hunger Satisfier

Food not only satisfies hunger, but brings security. People have been known to steal, beg, or kill for it. Explorers sent out to find new sources of food have made history when new worlds were discovered. Fortunes have been made and lost on different edibles. A full larder is power. Starving nations have surrendered unconditionally to their enemies. Food is a bargaining tool used to reward good behavior and withheld as a punishment for bad behavior.

PRIMITIVE MAN gorged himself when game was plentiful and starved when it was scarce. He knew nothing about proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals, and vitamins and cared less. Nevertheless, many races developed taboos and customs as to what could and could not be eaten. Many of these customs persist to this day and are filled with different meanings and symbols. Diets are varied because of the many cultures that exist in the United States.

Deeply rooted feelings about certain foods do not yield easily to reasoning. Nor do believers knuckle down to scientific facts about nutrition. What one group may consider choice foods, others find nauseating and vice versa. The thought of eating dogs, grasshoppers, or horsemeat, blubber, insects, and certain other animals is revolting to us. In general, people have learned to eat what was available in their geographical area.

The discovery of America introduced many new foods including corn, potatoes, squash, tomatoes, and a variety of beans, berries, and nuts. A century or more passed before some of these items were accepted by Europeans.

Advances in nutritional sciences also helped to sell us on a greater variety of foods. The popularization of the basic seven foods, and more recently, the four food groups, made us more conscious of the need for variety. New methods of processing and preservation also are better accepted. In the past 50 years, the number of items in a food store has increased from a few hundred to more than 8,000.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request, to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o The Independent-Journal.

KEEP P UP

T. writes: Is it harmful for a woman of 57 to touch her toes by bending 50 times a day?

REPLY

No — and more power to her.

SUGAR TEST

K. R. writes: According to a magazine article I read, anyone can diagnose diabetes by dropping a pill into a urine sample. The change of color determines whether diabetes is present. Is it this simple?

REPLY

The test is simple in that it determines whether sugar is present in the urine. A more simple test is to dip a small strip of specially prepared paper into urine; changes in the color of the paper indicate the presence of sugar. But not everyone with sugar in the urine has diabetes, as it is found in many normal persons, especially after they eat a meal rich in carbohydrates.

GAGS AT DENTIST

J. C. writes: I'm scheduled for extensive dental work. Since I gag easily, I'd like to know if anything can be done to prevent this uncomfortable sensation.

REPLY

The dentist can anesthetize the throat, if need be. In some instances, a tranquilizer solves the problem.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, April 11, the 101st day of 1973 with 264 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

American statesman and orator Edward Everett was born April 11, 1794.

On this day in history:

In 1947, Jackie Robinson became the first Negro in major league basebal when he played for the Brooklyn Dodgers against the New York Yankees in an exhibition game.

In 1966, Guam-based B52's bombed Vietnam for the first time.

In 1968, President Lyndon Johnson ordered 24,500 military reservists called up, half of them for duty in Vietnam.

In 1970, the Apollo 13 spacecraft headed for the third U.S. landing on the moon. The attempt was aborted when a faulty oxygen tank exploded. The astronauts returned to earth safely.

A thought for the day: General of the Army Douglas MacArthur said, "There is no substitute for victory."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, light air pollution.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Fair Queen Eligible For State Title

The Sonoma-Marin Fair queen, to be crowned June 20, will be eligible for the title of Miss California, according to pageant director Carolyn Beach.

In the past the winner has competed in the Maid of California contest at the California State Fair in Sacramento.

Mrs. Beach said this year's contest will feature only one winner with the title of Miss Sonoma-Marin Fair. In the past two girls have been crowned with a separate title for each county.

Applications forms for the contest are available at the fairgrounds in Petaluma or may be received by writing Post Office Box 182, Petaluma.

Contestants must be between the ages of 17 and 25 and never have been married. They are judged on beauty, poise and personality. Girls will be judged in evening gowns and modest bathing suits.

The winner will reign over the five-day fair. She will also serve as "Miss Fair Share" in the United Crusade campaign and will make many appearances in both counties during the year.

The winner will receive prizes from local merchants, including a wardrobe for the week-long Miss California pageant at Los Angeles in August.

Graduates are S/Sgt. Royal J. Latham, Sgt. Eugene E. Sabins and Sgt. Roger L. Taylor, all of the 4661st Material Squadron, the Air Force reported.

Auditions Slated For 'Rainmaker'

Open auditions for seven roles in the play "The Rainmaker" will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday at the Center for the Performing Arts in Mill Valley, the center has announced.

The play, with six male roles and one female part, will be presented June 1.

Reagan Claims Jet Use Critics Are Nit-Picking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today denounced as "nit-picking harrassment" efforts of a Republican legislator to clamp restrictions on the use of the governor's new jet plane.

He vowed not to "give in."

At a news conference, the GOP chief executive also defended use of the airplane in his statewide travels to recruit support for his controversial state spending and tax limitation ballot initiative.

"I don't see anything wrong with that," Reagan said. "I think that a part of my job and my responsibility has been the taxes of the people of California and the efforts of the last six years to try to reduce them and make them easier to bear."

The governor saved his harshest criticism for Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, who last week moved to write into the state budget bill controls on the use of the governor's newly leased private jet plane.

Way said the jet shouldn't used for out-of-state travel and expressed irritation that Reagan's office declined to disclose publicly where the governor went and who were included as passengers.

"I consider very frankly the proposal nit-picking harrassment and very frankly my own feeling is I'm not going to just give into it simply because of this kind of thing," Reagan said of Way's proposed restrictions.

"If the senator wants to call me and ask me, I'll tell him, including what time I expect to get home and change my clothes," an irritated Reagan declared.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — State Sen. Clarence M. Mitchell III was charged Tuesday with four counts of income tax evastion.

Mitchell, 33, a veteran of six years in the State Senate who has said he will run for mayor of Baltimore in 1975, was accused of failing to file federal income tax forms from 1967 through 1970.

It was later reported that Mitchell failed to file state income tax returns during the same four year period, but the state has not indicated if it will prosecute him on the charges.

There are homeless Children in Marin County.

They're called foster children; but don't think they're any different from those on your own block.

For instance, one parent might have become suddenly ill. Or one parent might be an alcoholic. There might be a family emotional crisis. Or it might be a case of sheer parental neglect. Whatever the circumstances are, the result is the same: the family is too disrupted to properly care for the children.

So they become foster children, depending on the county for food and shelter. But, unfortunately Marin County can't give a child the full-time love and warmth he needs.

This is where citizens of Marin County, like you, come in.

You can sympathize with these children. You might take a child for a day or weekend. Or, better still, you can offer your home to a homeless child.

Whether you're married or single, wealthy or not-so-wealthy, whether you're white or black or yellow, your home can give a homeless child the comfort and human understanding he wants and needs to make it through his painful separation from his real family.

Lee and Sharon DeBord , foster parents, are shown in a family sewing session with three of their children, Billy, Dominique and John.

Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Massie, foster parents of Mill Valley, are shown in a family card game with two of their children, Charles and John.

Want more information?

Call or drop a note to the Volunteer Bureau of Marin County at 725 A Street in San Rafael, or phone 454-1630 and request the attractive booklet, "Help Me". This booklet tells you more about what you need to know about becoming a foster parent. Call or write today. There's a child somewhere who will be glad you did.

Come to Foster Children Day in San Anselmo

If you'd like some first-hand information, come over to the Yolandsdale School in San Anselmo on Saturday, April 14, from 10 a.m. 'til 2. There'll be movies, games, panel discussions and lunch where you'll have a chance to discuss the joys and problems of Foster Parenting.

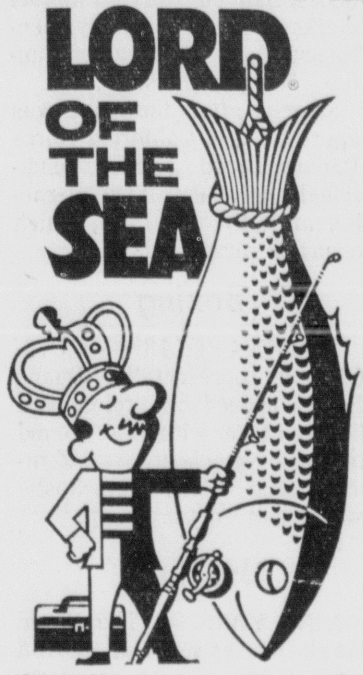
A Gag Turns Into Serious Business

The Lord of the Sea started out as a gag with Keith Fraser but now it's a serious thing, registered with a trade mark and the whole works.

Fraser, a San Rafael man who is head baseball coach at Terra Linda High and co-owner of Loch Lomond Live Bait and Tackle shop, is no longer the Lord. It is now a fictitious fisherman with the ability to catch his limit in bath tubs and rain puddles.



The name originated along the docks of Loch Lomond when Fraser repeatedly limited out on striped bass when other anglers were coming back empty-handed. The fishermen dubbed Fraser, Lord of the Sea, and everybody got a laugh. It was quite a nickname.

But then Fraser thought up an idea of giving birth to a "real" Lord of the Sea and had San Francisco commercial artist Ben Sumrall draw up an emblem depicting the Lord and his catch, and then went through the legality of having it registered.

What about Lord of the Sea T-shirts? thought Fraser. He had a bunch of T-shirts emblazoned with blue Lord of the Sea emblems on the front and started selling them At last count he had sold more than 400 and he hasn't even started advertising yet.

Fraser, a tall, slender fellow who does a lot of softball playing, is now thinking of using the emblem on sweat shirts, dress shirts and tackle and marine supplies. Some of the products Fraser and his partner, Art Donati, sell, such as drifting rigs, leaders and lures, will bear the name of the Lord of the Sea. And they are putting on a Lord of the Sea spring bass derby next month.

Fraser is currently selling his shirts at the Loch Lomond dock and at Taveggia-Brusati sports shop in San Rafael, and he said he might try to sell them throughout Marin and in San Francisco. "I think I'll try selling them at Fisherman's Wharf during Easter vacation week," he said. Oh, Lord!

THIS AND THAT: A note sent to the I-J from the Big Green D of Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., had kind words for freshman Paul Cane of Greenbrae, former Redwood star swimmer and star prep reporter for the I-J. Cane was Dartmouth's top breaststroker and set a school varsity record in the 200-yard breaststroke, 2:13.70. He was an individual winner in six different races during the school's dual meet season. Said Dartmouth swim coach Ron Keenhold:

"Paul was a consistent point getter for us all winter. I am certainly looking forward to having him swimming for the next three years."

FOR THE RADIO baseball fans in the audience, if you are having trouble getting the A's games on KEEN in San Jose, you can try one of the other 15 stations on the Golden Pacific Sports network, such as Santa Rosa's KSRO (1350 on the dial), much closer to home for Marinites. The Giants games continue to be aired over KSFO. And I won't say, "That's right, Lon."

JOE ORENGO of the Giants' speakers' bureau was guest talker at the Kentfield Little League's grand opening last Saturday and had quite a time. "It was one of the best Little League openings I have ever seen," said Joe, a man I remember way back in the days of the Sacramento Solons when he was managing in the late 40s.

Golfer Leach Wins On 2nd Extra Hole

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (UPI) — Ray Leach of Novato, birdied the second extra hole of a sudden-death playoff with Sandy Galbraith of Huntington Beach, Calif., Tuesday to win the 13th weekly $25,000 Western Golf Association event.

Leach, who carded a seven-under-par 65 on his final round, hit a five-foot putt for his bird on the par five, 520-yard second hole at the Via Verde Country Club.

Leach and Galbraith, with a second-round 69, deadlocked at 137, seven under par, for 36 holes. Leach's second-day round included nine birdies and was one shot off the course record.

Leach won $5,000 and Gailbraith earned $3,000.

There was a two-day tie at 139 between Jim Lynch, Pittsburgh, and Gary McCord, Riverside. Each had 69s Tuesday.

Knotted for fifth at 141 were seven players; Rafe Botts, Beverly Hills, Calif.; Greg Trompas, San Diego; Dave Newquist, Kansas City; Denny Meyer, San Bernardino, Calif.; Kent Brown, Corona Del Mar, Calif.; Greg Pitzer, Los Angeles, and Ray Arinno, Sacramento, Calif.

Marin Tar Baseballers Defeated By Skyline, 6-4

Skyline College of San Bruno scored four runs in the top half of the ninth inning — three of them with two men out — to defeat College of Marin yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game in Kentfield, 6-4.

The Tars entered the frame with a 3-2 lead, but yielded the tying run on a walk, error and (following a pop-up) a run-scoring single. After an infield out, however, an intentional walk was followed by a bases-loaded double for two runs and a single for the final tally.

Tom Olson went three for four, Steve Sherry two for three and Don Bianchini two for four for the Tars. Marin scored in the first inning on Dom Pomi-

Jubilant Warriors Return To Oakland

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — It didn't show up in the box score but the leader in assists for the Golden State Warriors Tuesday night was a player by the name of old man winter.

Actually winter did his thing Monday and the Warriors took the ball Tuesday night and ran with it well enough to post a 100-97 win over the Milwaukee Bucks. The Warriors now lead the best of seven series three games to two and can move into the Western Conference finals with a win over Milwaukee Friday night in Oakland.

The Bucks' troubles started the day before the game and continued unabated until the final buzzer. An angry winter snowstorm dumped a foot of snow on southern Wisconsin Monday and the Bucks were stranded in Milwaukee while they wanted to be in Madison warming up for the game.

They finally got out Tuesday morning and made it to Madison in a harrowing 90- minute bus ride over snowpacked roads.

The cold and the inconvenience might have caused a slip in the Bucks and they had a hard time getting the ball in the basket early in the game. The Warriors roared to an 18 points, 51-33 lead midway through the second period and held on for the win.

"That weather didn't have any effect on the game," Bucks Coach Larry Costello said. "It's not an excuse for the way we played. The snow didn't make us commit all those fouls that killed us."

Fouls definitely played a big part in the Bucks' downfall. Golden State, the best shooting free throw team in the league, enhanced its reputation by canning 30 of 35 foul shots for an 86 per cent mark. The Bucks, who had six more baskets than the Warriors, made only 15-of-24 free throws.

When the game ended, with the Warriors barely on top, guard Jim Barnett spiked the basketball — volleyball style — into the press table in jubilation. His move accurately depicted the euphoria i the Warriors' locker room.

"I'm not predicting anything," Warrior Coach Al Attles said. "But we've got a lot of confidence now. We know we can play with these guys. If you prove you can play with someone the wins and losses take care of themselves."

The winning sure took care of itself Tuesday night and the Bucks were a disheartened lot on the bus ride home. Oscar Robertson rode much of the way with his head in his hands, not talking. Coach Larry Costello huddled with his assistant,

2nd Shutout For Ruggles

Mark Ruggles pitched his second consecutive shutout and Ross Secor hit a home run to left field yesterday as Redwood High School trounced Tamalpais, 5-0, in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Tam.

Ruggles struck out 13, walked one and allowed only four hits as the league-leading Giants improved their MCAL record to 5-0. Tam is 2-3.

Secor led off the second inning with his solo homer about 310 feet to straightaway left field. Redwood also scored a run in the first on Mark LaTorre's RBI single, two runs in the fifth on back-to-back doubles by Bob Vogel and Mike Connor and an error, and one in the sixth as Steve Spellman drew a bases-loaded walk. Secor and Vogel each had three hits.

San Rafael Nine Edges Novato, 3-2

Pitcher Mike Farris claimed his fourth consecutive victory yesterday as surprising San Rafael High School scored an unearned run in the top of the seventh inning to defeat host Novato, 3-2.

The triumph kept San Rafael (4-1) in second place in the Marin County Athletic League behind Redwood (5-0). Novato is 2-3.

In the seventh, John Sims walked, took second on a sacrifice and third on a passed ball, was caught in a rundown following Kevin Loughlin's grounder, but scored as one of the relay throws hit him in the back.

RON SNIDOW ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Defensive end Ron Snidow, a 10-year National Football League veteran and former star at San Rafael High School, yesterday announced he was retiring.

The former Oregon star, who was selected by the Washington Redskins in the third round of the 1963 player draft, said he will pursue a career in business.

Snidow made the decision to retire once before, just after the 1971 season, but the Browns convinced him to come back.

2 INJURIES, 1 WIN

Rough Night For Giant Pitchers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ordinarily, when a team wins by an 11-2 score there is room only for laughs, stories and a lot of kidding.

Not so today for the San Francisco Giants, even though they routed the San Diego Padres by that big score Tuesday night.

That's because they lost one pitcher for sure and another came very close to ending his career just like that, and the tough Houston Astros are in town today to be followed on the weekend by the Cincinnati Reds.

Left-hander reliever John Morris, who had battled injuries and a flock of youngsters to win a spot on the Giants staff, is finished for at least eight weeks, the victim of a freak accident in a "harmless" pepper drill.

Juan Marichal, who pitched so well in the season opener a week ago, is the pitcher who came this close to packing it all in after taking a smash on the knee by Padres leadoff batter Enzo Hernandez.

Morris broke the thumb on his left hand, the one he pitches with, and was placed on the 21-day disabled list, although the preliminary announcement said he will be on the shelf for two months.

Marichal's knee is sore but fortunately the damage is not that serious and the Giants are hopeful he'll take his regular turn Saturday. If he needs additional rest then Ron Bryant will take his turn Saturday and Juan will pitch one of Sunday's two games against the Reds.

Despite taking the blow, Marichal hung around for five innings and the Giants got him enough runs by then—seven—so that he could gain credit for his second victory. Jim Barr held the Padres to one hit over the last four innings and picked up his first save.

A bases-loaded triple by Ed Goodson and Marichal's tworun double featured a six-run first inning against starter Mike Corkins and reliever Gary Ross. And as things turned out, that was the ball game.

Bobby Bonds' two-run double helped the Giants to four unearned runs off Bob Miller in the seventh.

"The knee is sore," Marichal said. "It hurts now but I don't think anything is seriously wrong. I hope there isn't. Maybe I'll feel better in a couple of days. I don't want to sit down while the club is going so good."

Tuesday night's victory was the fourth of the young season in five starts for the Giants, who are tied for first in the National League West with the Astros.

Jim Willoughby (1-0) pitches tonight's game while Ken Forsch (1-0) will start for the Astros. On Thursday, it will be

West Stars As Lakers Edge Bulls

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Jerry West had it when it counted, but Kareem AbdulJabbar didn't.

That was the story of Tuesday night's National Basketball Association quarterfinal playoff round as the Los Angeles Lakers downed the Chicago Bulls 123-102 and the Golden State Warriors upset the Milwaukee Bucks 100-97.

The victories gave both clubs a 3-2 edge in their respective series.

West was the sparkplug for Los Angeles, scoring 36 points and adding 11 assists as the Lakers beat the Bulls for the ninth straight time at the Forum in Los Angeles. West got lots of help from Wilt Chamberlain, who had 29 rebounds and 21 points, and from Jim McMillian, who tallied 20 points.

The Lakers, who squandered an 18-point lead, led by six at the end of three quarters then broke the game open early in the fourth quarter with eight straight points to take a commanding 99-86 lead.

Bob Love led Chicago with 27 points and Chet Walker added 25.

The series continues Friday night in Chicago.

Golden State upset of Milwaukee came about when Abdul-Jabbar missed a hook shot with seven seconds left and the Warriors leading by only one point. The Warriors rebounded the missed shot and, in a last-ditch effort to steal the ball, Oscar Robertson fouled Rick Barry at the final horn. Barry made two free throws to account for the final margin of victory.

Doug Henderson shot a 36 and Terry Leach a 39 to help the Hornets to their historic victory. Ed Matthews had a 38 for the Pirates.

In the other league encounter yesterday, San Marin edged Tamalpais, 209-205. Three medalists led undefeated Terra Linda (11-0-1) to a 189-201 non-league win over Alameda. Medalists at 36 even par at the Alameda Country Club were Doug Tally, Larry Cartmill and Rich Purdle.

ONTARIO, Calif. — Former race driver Parnelli Jones and Tony Hulman, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, don't know whether it will be successful but they now have a one-year operating contract for Ontario Motor Speedway.

The elaborate race plant, once the home of the Miller 500, has been shut down since December when the former operators were unable to pay the interest on the $25.5 million bond issue that financed the track.

Tuesday, a group headed by Jones and Hulman was granted a one-year contract to operate the speedway with options for a long term lease.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Slugging Pitchers In National League

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was a cold night that warmed the hearts of the traditionalists.'

A spring storm wiped out six games on Tuesday's major league schedule but in the three National League games in Philadelphia, San Francisco and the Houston Astrodome, veterans Steve Carlton and Juan Marichal and rookie Jim Crawford proved they can do without designated hitters.

Carlton singled in a run and scored another to lift the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-5 victory over the Montreal Expos, Marichal doubled in two runs in San Francisco's 11-2 victroy over San Diego and Crawford doubled in a 12th inning run to give the Houston Astros a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

If they had been in the American League, the three pitchers wouldn't have batted but the National League is still playing nine men to a side.

Carlton, who is shooting for 30 wins, helped his own cause in the third inning when he faked a bunt and then punched a single up the middle to drive in a run. He later scored on an error as the Phils jumped to a 4-0 margin and he needed that cushion as he was touched for five runs although he gave up only seven hits.

Crawford came up with two out in the 12th inning and slow-footed John Edwards on first base. He was supposed to be a routine out before the 13th inning started. But Crawford, who pitched two innings of scoreless relief, won his own game with a booming double off the left centerfield wall. George Culver was the victim.

Marichal only pitched five innings because he was hit on the knee by a line drive in the first inning but he helped his cause with his two-run double in the six-run first inning against San Diego. Ed Goodson's bases-loaded triple was the other key blow of the inning.

Regardless of how the game was played, it wasn't baseball weather east of California. The Phils played in 30-degree weather with gusting winds and things were about the same in Kansas City as 39,464 fans shivered as the Royals opened their new stadium in the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex by blasting the Texas Rangers 12-1. The California Angels beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2 in the other game played in California besides the Giant-Padre clash.

Three American League games—Oakland at Chicago, Baltimore at Detroit, Boston at Milwaukee—and three National League games—New York at St. Louis, Cubs at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Atlanta—were postponed because of the bad weather. Milwaukee even postponed all action until Friday.

HOCKEY

Rangers Eliminate Bruins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Coach Bep Guidolin of the Boston Bruins thinks the New York Rangers can go all the way in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Rangers, who haven't won a Stanley Cup since 1940, took a giant stride in that direction Tuesday night when they beat the Bruins 6-3 and won their first-round series four games to one. Their next opponents are the Chicago Black Hawks, who advanced to the semifinals of the series Tuesday night with a 6-1 triumph over the St. Louis Blues.

Out ahead may lie the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens, who lead the surprising Buffalo Sabres 3-2 following a Tuesday night 3 2 loss in sudden death overtime.

More Cold In Store For A's In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Forecasters are predicting near-freezing temperatures in the Windy City today but Vida Blue hopes to keep things warm.

The one-time ace left-hander of the world champions is making his season debut against 24-game winner Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox. Last year at this time Blue was in the midst of his lengthy holdout which lasted into May.

Due in part to his late 1972 start and disenchantment with A's owner Charles O. Finley, Blue finished the season with a 6-10 record. In 1971, Blue won 24 games and was the American League's Cy Young Award winner and Most Valuable Player.

Now Blue is hopeful of getting the A's their first victory of the season after Oakland lost three straight to the Minnesota Twins.

However, the elements may defeat the A's and White Sox before they take the field.

Their series opener was set for Tuesday but a major snowstorm forced the White Sox to postpone the opening one day to today, which was originally scheduled to be an open date.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Check Out Your Motor

One would reasonably expect that the outboard motor enthusiast, with his semi-portable equipment, would have the jump on the inboard boatman when it comes to spring work.

I find it's the other way around. The owner of a big inboard craft — and a big investment — normally takes much greater care of his hull and power plant.

It's a sad fact of life that a lot of outboard owners take the motor off their boat, stand it up in the corner of a garage, storeroom or basement, and forget it entirely until the moment they need to use it again.

Even during short lay-up periods in the South, I find outboards are abused by neglect. In the frigid North, it's often sheer disaster.

It shows in some of the questions we get asked about preparing outboards and their boats for the summer fun ahead:

Q. The remote controls on my boat are very stiff. Any advice?

A. Yes, next fall do a better job of winterizing before you put your boat under wraps. For the present, you'll have to lubricate. Take the cover off the control box or "station," and pack it with grease.

Q. There's a puddle of oil under my outboard motor that leaked from around the prop. Is it serious?

A. Serious enough that you should take it to a good outboard mechanic and have the grease seal replaced. Watch how he does it. You can do it next time, but I wouldn't recommend doing it the first time.

Q. There's a half turn of 'play' in my outboard's propeller. Is this normal?

A. There's some lost motion in the gears of all outboards. You can turn the prop back an inch or two by hand. Don't worry about it as long as you have good lubricant in the lower unit.

Q. My 65 horsepower outboard has been on our boat, well supported, since last October. However, I must confess it's been outdoors the entire time. When I tried to turn the motor over, it was seized up. What can I do?

A. An item as expensive as a 65 hp outboard should have been stored with a marine dealer during the winter. But, to answer your question, remove the sparkplugs and squirt a couple of ounces of light or penetrating oil into each cylinder. If that doesn't free it, take it to the dealer you should have patronized last fall.

Q. I bought a boat with an inboard engine last fall. Until now I didn't realize the drain plug in the crankcase is inaccessible. How do I change the oil?

A. A marine dealer will have a pump designed to drain the old oil. This is not an uncommon situation.

Q. There's a nick in one of the blades of my prop. How should I file it out?

A. Very carefully. First, file off as little metal as possible. Then remove the same amount from the other blade. An imbalanced prop will, in time, do great damage to the lower unit of the motor.

Q. I've got 10 gallons of gas-and-oil outboard fuel mix left from early December. How can I determine if the proportion of oil is still adequate?

A. Don't bother. Ask your favorite gas station to get rid of it for you. By now, the old mix could have formed gums or varnish that could plug your carburetor. It sounds like throwing money away, but it's safer.

The Bucks lost only once to the Warriors during the regular season and they won two playoff games by 20 points. But they have lost three close playoff games to the Warriors and Costello was at a loss to explain why.

One man, however, who seemed pretty certain about what was wrong with the Bucks was General Manager Wayne Embry.

"Some of our guys just don't want to win" he said. "It's obvious. there doesn't seem to be any heart on this club."

The Tars also tallied in the ninth when Sherry tripled and pinch-hitter Bob Lawrence singled with two out, but the rally died when the next man popped up.

The loss left Marin with a 7-3 conference record, good for second place behind West Valley (10-3) of Campbell, which lost yesterday to Contra Costa of San Pablo, 7-3.

Giants skipper Charlie Fox said he doesn't plan to bring up a pitcher from the minors to replace Morris. Instead, he'll send Sam McDowell, his only other lefthander besides Bryant, to the bullpen for both short and long relief.

"I started out as a reliever," said McDowell," so I shouldn't have any problems if that's where they need me. Look, all I want to do is help."

Profit Taking Wave Cuts Market Advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices advanced narrowly today on the New York Stock Exchange as a wave of profit-taking began to undercut gains of the past three sessions.

Two-hour volume came to about 7,000,000 shares, compared with 8,410,000 shares Tuesday.

Analysts said some buying was inspired by higher first quarter earnings reports, but much of the market's strength was being sapped by selling into the recent market advance.

Kennecott Copper Co. led the actives with a gain of ⅜ to 29 ⅛ on 126,200 shares.

Prices were mixed in quiet trading on the American Stock Exchange. Prentice Hall led the actives with a loss of ½ to 21 ½ on 193,200 shares.

Oil stocks were mixed. Ohio Standard lost 2 and Halliburton 1 ¼. Getty added 1 ⅛.

Glamor stocks also declined. Walt Disney was off 2 ⅛ and Schlumberger 1 ⅝.

Steels, motors, chemicals, rails, aircrafts and electronics and computers were mixed in fractions.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Be Sure Your Tax Return Has Sufficient Amount Of Postage

The new Form 1040, together with the many schedules and attachments that must be included to make up your federal income tax return, will probably weigh more than one ounce and will not go through the mails with only one stamp attached.

If your return is mailed close to April 15, it is possible that it could be returned to you for insufficient postage.

We have weighed a standard envelope with the Form 1040 and with more than three schedules, one postage stamp would not be enough.

In order to avoid any possible penalties, you should be sure that the tax return carries sufficient postage.

Californians will mail their 1972 federal income tax returns to the new Internal Revenue Service Center at Fresno: Internal Revenue Service Center; 5045 East Butler Avenue; Fresno, Ca. 93730.

This situation exists with the State of California return also and here again you should be sure that the envelope carries sufficient postage.

State of California individual tax returns with a refund due should be mailed to: Personal Income Tax - Refund Due; Post Office Box 13-540; Sacramento, Ca. 95813

All other State of California individual returns should be mailed to: Personal Income Tax; Franchise Tax Board; Sacramento, Ca. 95867.

PG&E SETS REFUND TO CUSTOMERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. will make $6.3 million in refunds to gas customers during the May billing period, the state Public Utilities Commission said yesterday.

This action stems from refunds made by El Paso Natural Gas Company to PG&E in connection with earlier gas settlements.

The average refund for residential customers will be $1.20 and includes 7 per cent interest. It will be credited to the customer's account.

THE GROWTH STOCKS

Big Gap Price Causes Concern

By MARTIN SKALA

NEW YORK — The wide price gap between leading growth stocks and the average industrial equity listed on the New York Stock Exchange is making institutional investors increasingly uncomfortable.

With the market decline since early January, many money managers are wondering how much longer growth stock favorites such as International Business Machines, McDonald's, and Johnson & Johnson will continue to buck the downtrend.

Selling at price-earnings multiples more than three times that of the Dow Jones industrial average, some two dozen big-name "superstocks" currently represent more than 10 per cent of the value of all shares traded on the Big Board.

Their ownership is highly concentrated in portfolios of banks, insurance companies, and pension funds. Although the growth favorites have been lively performers during the see-saw market of the past three years, some money managers now think they are highly vulnerable to a sizable setback.

Three weeks ago many of the leading growth stocks were clipped for big losses as the market sustained its worst setback in three years.

In a jittery market, it is "awfully difficult" to justify purchases of growth stocks selling at multiples of 40 times estimated 1973 earnings, says Paul F. Miller Jr., partner of Miller Anderson & Sherrerd, a Philadelphia investment management firm.

Speaking at an institutional investors conference here, Mr. Miller chided money managers for ignoring hundreds of solid investment values in their single-minded pursuit of "assured, predictable earnings growth."

The annual conference, sponsored by Institutional Investor magazine, affords money managers of commerical banks, mutual funds, and insurance companies an opportunity to exchange views on the investment outlook and discuss portfolio strategies. A major conference theme centered around the provocative question "Is growth real?"

Judging by the views expressed during the three-day session, a majority of money managers would dispute the charge that IBM, Avon, Walt Disney, and similar growth vehicles are "highly overpriced."

Although many of the 1,500 money managers and analysts were bearish about the intermediate-term market outlook, there was wide agreement that any price decline in quality growth stocks will be relatively moderate.

Growth stocks may slip a bit in a poor market, said a trust official of a Philadelphia bank, "but the banks and pension funds will step in and snap up big blocks of Disney and Xerox long before they look cheap."

Money managers are screening their growth favorites much more carefully than in the late 1960's, when "fad" groups such as franchising, modular housing, and computer peripheral companies caught the fancy of many mutual funds. More than ever before, big investors bestow lofty price earnings multiples only on stocks that show consistently rising earnings and can absorb multimillion-dollar transactions without sharp gyrations.

Consistent growth in the past, money managers say, is what lends credibility to future earnings projections.

In the current Wall Street jargon, predictability of earnings growth allegedly makes a stock like IBM a highly desirable "one-decision" stock. A pattern of irregular growth, even if fitted to a long-term uptrend, is seen as putting a stock into the "two-decision" category, requiring judgments as to when to buy it and when to get out.

If they are picked right, growth stocks don't have to be traded as often as cyclicals, and have a greater upside potential over a three-to-five-year period.

American Home Products, which has achieved 11 per cent growth in earnings per share over the last five years, is put by many analysts into the select "one-decision" category. The firm's steady growth has impressed the market enough to have its shares bid up to a price-earnings ratio of 40.

By comparison, Weyerhaeuser, which has also shown an 11 per cent average annual earnings improvement over the same span, isn't considered to be in the same league.

Since the forest-products company's per share results have moved up in zig-zag fashion, the stock carries a price-earnings ratio only half as high as American Home Products.

In picking out "one-decision" growth stocks, money managers say they look for a company with a clear-cut technological or proprietary product advantage, a high return on invested capital, freedom from government controls, and a high degree of pricing flexibility.

Such firms usually dominate their industry (IBM, or Proctor & Gamble) or sell a unique product (Polaroid with its "instant" cameras). "In screening these stocks, it's important to keep the mesh very tight," advises John Clarens, a director of Lepercq, de Neuflize, a New York money management firm.

The risks of making a mistake are too great, he says, to play around with second-rate growth stocks. Any adverse surprises, such as an unexpected decline in quarterly earnings, can send a high-multiple stock into a tailspin.

Clarens reckons the current market decline may be a fairly steep one, and has moved his accounts heavily into cash. But when the market rebounds, he says, most of his buying will continue to be concentrated in growth issues such as IBM, Johnson & Johnson, and Walt Disney.

Unlike 12 months ago when the economy was in a recovery stage, money managers are leery of committing new funds to cyclical issues, such as steel or autos. If the economy peaks out this year, as many believe, cyclical companies may face an earnings slowdown. The resurgence of inflationary forces, moreover, is believed to enhance the appeal of solid growth stocks. During inflationary periods, says Robert Doty, Philadelphia investment counselor, "the strong gets stronger and the weak becomes weaker."

Sears Garden Sale Proves Big Success

Northgate Sears special garden sale last Saturday morning, which was advertised in the Independent-Journal the previous day, drew such a mob that many customers stood in line for almost an hour to make purchases.

George Hale, merchandise manager for Sears, said there were about 200 people in line when the garden shop opened its doors at 8:30 a.m., and a couple thousand or more went through the shop during the four-hour sale.

"We prepared for the rush and put in four cash registers whereas we have only one during a normal day," said Hale. Even then, there was a crush of people, especially at the start of the sale, but customers seemed to accept the fact that there would be some waiting at a sale like this, Hale added.

The rush of customers was not entirely unexpected. Hale said he has had similar garden sale advertisements placed in the Independent-Journal about six times, and the turnout has been excellent each time. He said last Saturday's turnout was one of the most successful.

Even Crime Covered By Privilege

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified Tuesday that the President could invoke executive privilege even to prevent Congress from calling a presidential aide with knowledge of a crime.

"I think it is a frightening concept," said Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine. He said no administration had ever before defined executive privilege in such sweeping terms.

Nixon has used the doctrine to prevent White House Counsel John W. Dean III from testifying in the Senate investigation of the bugging of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate during the last campaign.

Kleindienst testified before a joint session of three Senate subcommittees. He said that especially in criminal cases aides to the President should be denied to congressional committees because, "to safeguard the rights of individuals we have a judicial system."

Kleindienst said that "if the President of the United States directs me not to appear I am not going to appear."

Muskie asked whether presidential use of executive privilege would bar Congress from calling a presidential aide with knowledge of a crime.

"That is my opinion," replied Kliendienst.

"You can conceive of no circumstances?" Muskie asked.

"No I can't," said Kleindienst.

President Nixon said in a statement on executive privilege March 12 that the doctrine would be invoked for employes of federal agencies and departments only in cases of "compelling need" and only with his approval. He said it would be used in cases of cabinet members only with respect to their White House roles. He said it would normally apply in cases involving the presidential staff.

BART Service To City Banned

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) was barred from extending its service Tuesday until the safety procedures—including the automatic train system—begins working smoothly.

The State Public Utilities Commission order applies to any extension of the transit service "involving merging, diverging or crossing" of trains.

BART's extension of service to include the Concord line would not be affected by the ruling and will occur as scheduled May 21.

'Little Cigar' Advertising Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed by a voice vote and sent to the House legislation that would prohibit broadcast advertising of "little cigars."

The bill amends the 1969 Public Health Cigarette Smoking Act, which prohibits the radio or television advertising of cigarettes by adding a provision bringing "little cigars" under the ban.

The R. J. Reynolds and P. Lorillard firms announced in February they would voluntarily discontinue broadcast advertising of the cigarette-sized cigars.

However, Consolidated Cigar Corp. said April 2 it intended to go ahead with broadcast advertisements, and the Senate Commerce Committee pushed through the new legislation.

Financier Indicted On Tax Violations

BOSTON (UPI) — Edward Krock of Worcester, Mass., an internationally known financier, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on seven counts of income tax violations totaling more than $6 million.

Fred Ugast, acting assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's Tax Division in Washington, said it was one of the largest criminal income tax cases on record.

U.S. Attorney James N. Gabriel said Krock was indicted on three counts of income tax evasion totaling $1,443,231. He also was charged with wilfully filing false and fraudulent income tax returns from 1966 to 1969.

Gabriel said Krock is listed as an official of the world's largest surface transportation company, The Fifth Avenue Coach Lines in New York; Defiance Industries of Ohio; Baltimore Paint and Chemical Co., Baltimore; Guaranty Bank of Chicago; B.S.F. Co. of California; American Steel and Pump of New York; Wright Machine Corp. of Worcester; and the Mercantile National Bank of Chicago.

Krock was accused in the indictments of reporting losses on his income tax returns of $32,000 in 1966, $125,000 in 1967, $158,000 in 1968 and $842,000 in 1969.

However, the government charged that Krock should have reported taxable income of $839,000 in 1966, $1.2 million in 1967, and $81,000 in 1968 —or taxes of $558,000 in 1966, $847,000 in 1967 and $36,000 in 1968.

The indictments against Krock, who lives in a 38-room house on his 500-acre Rockinghorse Farm, listed five groups of evaded items. They included:

Unreported interest income of $280,000 in 1966 through 1968.

Income from exercise of stock options of taxable income of $737,000 in 1966 and 1967.

Income from loan commitment fees of $572,000 in 1966-68.

Other income, including consulting fees, of $257,000 in 1966-67.

Alleged fictitious net operating loss deductions of $642,000 in 1967-68.

Included in the four counts of filing false and fraudulent income tax returns were government accusations that Krock omitted more than $3 million in sales of securities from 1966 through 1968; an alleged fictitous judgment fee of $750,000 in 1969; and the omission of interest income of nearly $10,000 in 1969.

All told, the seven counts add up to $6,271,569.

Two Bond Issues That Merit Support

Bond issues for flood control and a new firehouse-police headquarters will be on ballots next Tuesday in Novato and Fairfax, respectively.

The question before Novatans probably boils down to this: How much flood control is enough?

This year's disastrous flooding in the Nave Gardens area proved that correction of flood conditions in Novato definitely is needed, and without delay.

This spurred the Marin County Board of Supervisors to put on the ballot a $4.5 million bond issue, which would pay the local share of a control project proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers. An average tax rate of 20.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation over the next 25 years would be assessed against property in the Novato Flood Control Zone to retire the bonds.

The entire project, as planned by the Corps of Engineers, would run to about $14 million.

THE CORPS of Engineers believes in no half-measures. The project it envisions would eliminate flooding. The question Novato voters must decide is whether a smaller project would suffice.

A smaller project, directing most of the floodwaters into the bay, has been worked out by the flood control zone's staff and would cost about $1 million — all of which would have to be raised locally.

This might be ample — except in the exceptional year. And, of course, we had just such an exceptional year this time.

When it comes to flood control, we tend to go along with the old adage of "better safe than sorry." The million-dollar "mini-project" might do the job — until more creekside property upstream on Novato, Warner and Arroyo Avichi Creeks is built up. But then it might have to be all done over — and a million dollars would be, indeed, "washed down the drain." So we think Novatans would be wise to authorize the $4.5 million bond issue for the complete project. (Measure M on ballots within the flood control district).

IN FAIRFAX, the need for a new fire station, police station and city hall has long been recognized. The quarrel has been over where to put them.

The current proposal is for a $300,000 bond issue for firehouse and police quarters adjoining the present firehouse and extending into the city park.

It also would finance purchase of property adjacent to the park on which are an old house and a duplex. It is planned to use the duplex for recreation headquarters and tear down the old house. This, according to proponents, would mean no reduction in the size of the park.

However, the proposal includes needed widening of Park Street, of which part of the right-of-way is now park land. Opponents object to this as reducing the size of the park.

WE DON'T think the plan is ideal, especially as it would leave Fairfax still without a real city hall. But it is questionable whether the city's taxpayers can finance a complete new civic center on other property.

We therefore go along with the proposed Fairfax bond issue (Measure A on the Fairfax ballot) as a workable compromise.

Regents, College Board Should Represent Public

By RUS WALTON

The way it is now, the governor appoints the members of the UC board of regents and the California state colleges board of trustees. An appointment to the regents is good for 16 years; to the trustees, eight years.

Every now and then legislators chew on the idea of shortening those terms and changing the way in which those appointments are made.

THE NEXT TIME they get around to the subject, there is one thing they should consider:

The voters — the taxpayers — should have more of a say in the way things are done in those two systems of higher learning, and more of a say in the selection of the governing boards. As the state constitution says, those schools are a public trust.

Altogether we shell out $429 million a year for the nine UC campuses and $442 million for the 19 state colleges and universities. That's just from the general fund; there are extra monies, too.

It all adds up to $1 billion a year, and for that we should be permitted a few words and a couple of wishes.

In addition to the 16 "public" members appointed by the governor to the board of regents, there are eight ex officio members: governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the assembly, state superintendent of public instruction, president of the state board of agriculture, president of Mechanics Institute in San Francisco, president of the UC Alumni Association, and president of the university.

There are five ex officio members on the board of trustees, in addition to the 16 public members: governor, lieutenant governor, speaker, superintendent of public instruction, and chancellor of the state college system.

IN GENERAL, the two boards function with a minimum of friction or fuss. And, in general, the two boards do not really represent the voters.

The old school ties grow stronger than the public's purse strings.

There is a better way to handle these affairs; a better way to give the taxpayer some control over the funds: let the people elect the public members of the boards of regents and trustees.

THERE ARE TWO ways to do it. First, the easy way:

Divide the state into 16 districts and let the voters in each elect one member to each board. Make the seats non-partisan, with six-year terms. No salaries, just a reasonable per diem or expense allowance.

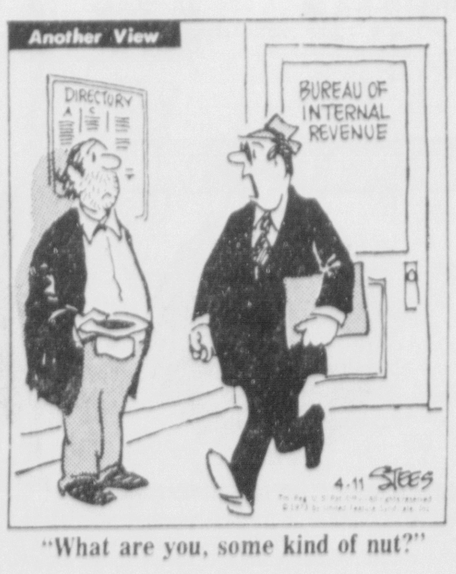
And, cut the number of ex officios back to five: governor, speaker, Senate president pro tempore, state superintendent of public instruction, and the president (or chancellor) of the system.

THE SECOND METHOD would be a bit more cumbersome. But, it would offer greater voter participation:

Define geographic areas for the various campuses and let the voters in those areas elect a governing board for the university or college campus with its boundaries. (For example, the folks in San Diego, San Bernardino and Imperial counties would elect boards for both UC San Diego and San Diego State.) This would be along the same lines as the election of the board members for community colleges.

The chairman of each district would be selected by the district board and would automatically become a member of the state board.

Each board could make sure that the taxpayers are getting the best return on the dollar at its campus.



"What are you, some kind of nut?"

What Griffin Says In Seeking Election

In your water district editorial last week you claimed that Dr. (Martin) Griffin "seeks election so that the water district can be used as an agency to stop growth."

You are doubly mistaken because:

(1.) Dr. Griffin clearly favors limited growth rather than no growth. An annual quota of new housing (a system now in practice in Petaluma) would be in the best interests of all Marin residents. . .

(2.) Dr. Griffin has frequently stated that the planning agencies should do the planning, not the water board. He has repeatedly called upon the City-County Planning Council to approve a fail-safe method of annual growth limits to be adopted by each city and the county. . .

Foster Grandparents Benefited By Story

The members of the Foster Grandparent Program at Sonoma State Hospital wish to express their deepest appreciation for the wonderful article, written by reporter Karen Peterson, which appeared in last Thursday's paper.

This article furnished an excellent image of what it means to be a foster grandparent and some of the various emotional assets to be derived from the "service." You presented our story in a most emphatic way and we feel it will be of great benefit to the future of our program; possibly in terms of recruiting, as well as public interest.

May we also state that we were particularly pleased with the accuracy of all statements made in the article.

Rabbi Disavows 'Jews For Jesus'

It has been brought to my attention that the organization known as "Jews for Jesus" in a letter sent throughout Marin County has recommended that Congregation Rodef Sholom be visited as a place of worship. It was further stated that the rabbi of the congregation is a dynamic personality and one who is socially conscious.

May I state that at no time was this endorsement sought from Congregation Rodef Sholom or was the rabbi aware or contacted regarding the statement by the "Jews for Jesus." Congregation Rodef Sholom is a dynamic viable Jewish synagogue, with a rabbi who serves as a leader of the Jewish community in Marin. He teaches and preaches Jewish values and concerns, as well as a more universal approach and philosophies. In either case he is passionately Jewish in his commitment, and deplores this kind of sensationalism and misleading statement.

The rabbi does not endorse the "Jews for Jesus" nor does he consider them to be Jews. . .

Few Hours On Floor, But Plenty Of Work

I've just read my good friend Earl Waters' column in your paper about the Legislature's work schedule. His article estimated that we spent an average of only 1½ hours per day, four days a week, in session. Mr. Waters mentioned that we also spent some time at committee meetings.

He's right. Considering dead time, recesses, quorum calls, etc., it's even less. I'd say I spent about five hours a week on the floor of the Assembly and maybe another five hours a week at meetings of the committees I serve on. According to Earl, I should be credited with a 10-hour work week.

You know, it only took minutes for Mark Spitz to prove he's the world's greatest swimmer. But it took years to prepare for those few minutes in Munich.

A legislator may well receive as many as 100 pieces of mail a day. Perhaps he replies to 15 letters, while staff handles the rest. How long does it take to read and prepare a reply to an average letter? How about 10 minutes? That means 2½ hours on the mail alone.

A legislator gets and makes dozens of phone calls daily. Constituents with problems call; in my case, school superintendents, administrators, teachers, board members want to know where I stand on bills before the Education Committee. We phone agencies of government — Welfare, Corrections, Department of Finance, Department of Education, committee consultants seeking answers to constituent complaints, supplying answers to others, exchanging information on legislative proposals.

Each day there are appointments with individuals and groups promoting or opposing legislative action. The background and research effort that must be undertaken before legislation is ready to be heard is a little more time consuming than preparing a cup of instant coffee. On weekends, I read and make notes on all bills scheduled to be heard by my Education Committee. Other members leave Sacramento Thursday evening to work in their home districts and visit their families . . .

Mr. Waters was absolutely correct; we spend very few hours on the floor of the Assembly or at committee meetings.

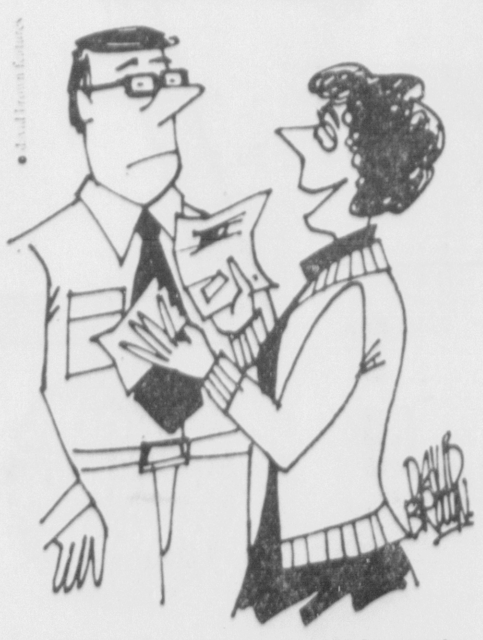
TODAY'S WORLD



"Thank goodness we won't be getting any more tax bills. This one is marked 'final notice.'"

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Everybody talks about the weather, but the Cupertino City Council did something about it. Passed a resolution banning rainfall.

The elements defied the edict, and the city got three days of bad weather in one 24-hour period.

This proves the elemental nature of lawlessness.

Now the city fathers are threatening to sue nearby communities for damage from windblown rain.

Stormy weather is like the price of meat. It's hard to control through legislation.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Senate Probers Of Watergate Damaging Own Credibility

WASHINGTON — The monkey is now on the back of the Senate's Watergate investigation committee. The White House didn't put it there. The committee itself put it there.

The committee did it when it started to leak witnesses' unproved allegations. It did it when it began to make unsupported accusations against White House staff members. It did it when it began to practice guilty by supposition and then had to make a public apology.

Let me illustrate how far the Senate's Watergate investigators have strayed in violating their own avowed standards of judicial fairness.

AT A BREAKFAST interview with this and other reporters, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., a member of the committee, said that H. R. Haldeman (1) "cleared the policies and personnel of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President" in whose behalf the Watergate offense was undertaken, (2) "inevitably knew what was going on because of his position as Nixon's chief of staff," and (3) "ought to resign because he was involved."

The next day, in an attempt to retrieve the credibility of the committee, Chairman Sam J. Ervin and Vice-Chairman Howard H. Baker were forced to repudiate all of these allegations by a fellow committeeman. They stated that the committee "had no evidence of any nature linking Haldeman with any illegal activities in connection with the presidential campaign of 1972."

Note that this disclaimer goes beyond the Watergate itself and reaches to other alleged sabotage and espionage activities of a political nature.

But Senator Ervin makes his disclaimers only after the damage has been done. His sense of candor apparently does not compel him to explain that it was the Senate investigators themselves who were responsible for "unfairness and injustice." Senator Weicker was not inaccurately quoted and leaks from closed sessions could only come from violation of confidence by those privy to them.

THIS IS "guilt by supposition," which is direct lineage from Sen. Joseph McCarthy's shabby, shoddy, evil practice of "guilt by association" which ruined many careers.

At stake is the credibility of the Senate investigation itself. If Senator Ervin can't shut off the flow of neo-McCarthyism, this needed effort to clear up the Watergate crime, whomever it touches, will be grievously, perhaps fatally, impaired.

Thus far, neither the court nor the grand juries are succeeding. The President isn't helping. I suspect that many people would rather see no Senate investigation than a return to McCarthyism.

OBVIOUSLY the offenses of the Senate committee do not extenuate the Watergate offenses nor President Nixon's use of executive privilege as a means of making it difficult to check up on possible misdeeds by present or former presidential aides.

It seems to me that executive privilege is a protection to a President in his transaction of presidential business, just as immunity from libel or slander is a protection to congressmen speaking on the floor of Congress. But there have to be limits to these protections.

A congressman does not get immunity when he speaks off the floor of Congress, and executive privilege ought not to shield presidential aides in transacting nonpresidential business. Surely no one in the White House wants to assert that the Watergate break-in was presidential business.

There is a further oddity — the oddity of G. Gordon Liddy, one of the convicted seven, who has accepted an eight-month addition to his jail sentence rather than answer questions before the grand jury. James W. McCord testified that Liddy had told him that others were involved in the burglary and bugging. Liddy was granted immunity if he would answer pertinent questions. Why he refused is murky. If he could conscientiously say there were no others, why not say so? If he can't conscientiously say there were no others, this refusal to answer tends to confirm there were others.

Environment Becomes Political Issue That None Can Shun

WASHINGTON — Just after the Nixon team arrived in town, a few of us had dinner one evening with Robert Finch, then HEW secretary. Two or three times I dropped in questions about the chance of a ban on use of DDT, and others on the then unfamiliar subject of the environment. When Finch left, my political-writing colleagues braced me about wasting the man's valuable time with such foolishness. What the hell did the environment have to do with politics?

That was a long time ago.

In those days, anybody who worried out loud about pollution and destruction of the earth was scoffed at as an eccentric birdwatcher, Boy Scout, garden club chairwoman or biology professor. But gradually the smog got thicker, the rivers smellier, the beaches oilier, the mountains barer. The people at large got madder. The environment was no longer an esoteric cause.

ONE OF THOSE who helped bring us from where we were then to where we are now was a politician ahead of his time, Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

In the spring of 1970, when the American underground was blowing things up to end the war, he lent his name to what might have turned out just another case of mass student misbehavior. I for one thought he was taking a silly political risk. Not so.

His idea made so much sense that it is commemorated on the Sierra Club calendar for this month, below a photograph of grass and flowers on the shore of Alaska's Beaufort Lagoon, along with the birthday anniversaries of John Muir, Frederick Law Olmsted and John James Audubon.

That year, it was Earth Day. This year —this week —it is Earth Week. Nelson is still its promoter, but what began as a fairly haphazard nationwide rash of teach-ins, car burials and rock demonstrations in defense of the environment is much too big now to be identified with any one man. Every politician in the country would like to have a piece of it.

Some of them were in the environment-ecology protection-conservation-preservation movement early, for example Sen. Edmund Muskie, whose concern about air and water pollution was one of his recommendations for the vice-presidential nomination in 1968. But many others are recent converts. And many more are not genuine converts at all, but have learned to salute anyhow when the green-and-white ecology flag goes by.

Thus we have Mr. Nixon himself respectfully issuing a proclamation four full weeks ahead of time, designating this Earth Week. In it, he praised "individual initiative, voluntary action, and a deep sense of responsibility for the gifts of nature and the welfare of our community. . .I ask that special attention be given to personal voluntary activities and educational efforts directed towards protecting and enhancing our lifegiving environment."

OF COURSE, there were a few springs of green spring prose praising the environment for just being there and for bringing out the best in the American spirit and all that. But his message was plain: Do it yourself.

Here is an instance where his words and actions match. While urging self-improvement by states, communities and individuals, he has been vetoing and impounding right and left when confronted by programs to clean up the country by federal effort.

The President's call for voluntary action is commendable. We could and should organize school classes to clean up roadsides and parks and assign scout troops to collect bottles, cans and paper for recycling.

We most affirmatively should, as Senator Nelson suggests, hold down our consumption of electricity and other energy to mark this Earth Week. Cities and states must push ahead with sewage treatment plants and other projects, on their own if necessary.

But schoolchildren and scouts and we individually can make only a small dent in the problem. Localities are exerting themselves, but they have learned to rely on — in fact have been promised in law — important federal matching funds for antipollution programs.

AIR AND WATER do not halt at political boundaries. Their pollution is a national plague, as clearly as interstate concern as ever envisioned in the Constitution. The federal government cannot opt out of this situation, no matter how tight its budget.

By this Earth Week, even as millions of volunteers are sprucing up their hometowns, the astute Mr. Nixon must have learned that the environment has one hell of a lot to do with politics.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Candidate Views Differ From What Happens

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Nearly 3,000 school trustees will be elected in California on Tuesday, April 17, either two or three in each of more than 1,000 districts.

Many, of course, will be incumbents re-elected to new four-year terms. But many others will be new to the job.

What kind of candidates are asking to be entrusted with running the schools? What do they know about the schools and their problems, and what are their attitudes toward those problems?

In an attempt to get some answers, the author mailed a questionnaire to all school board candidates in Marin County's 20 school districts for the Independent-Journal. Most of them responded.

The questions would apply in Sonoma or any other California county. The answers may be typical of candidates throughout the state.

WITHOUT EXCEPTION the candidates — both incumbents and first-timers — said they are opposed to automatic promotion of pupils. Yet automatic promotion is almost universal.

With a single exception, all incumbent candidates expressed dissatsifaction with existing teacher tenure laws, holding that they are too restrictive and prevent districts from keeping the best teachers while weeding out the worst ones. Some whose districts are experiencing enrollment declines were especially critical of the legislatively mandated lottery system, which requires that staff reduction be accomplished by holding a lottery among the teachers most recently hired, with dismissals by lot rather than on the basis of performance.

Candidates who have not had school board experience were less nearly unanimous in opposition to the tenure laws. Some of them showed by their answers that they do not know how restrictive the laws are, suggesting more careful evaluation of teachers "before they are granted tenure" — which is impossible when the newly hired "probationary" teacher actually already is tenured.

But, despite the overwhelming support for changing the laws to give school boards a chance to keep the best and eliminate the worst teachers, the most recent tenure law revision — the Stull-Rodda Act of 1971 — actually tightened job protection for both tenured and "probationary" teachers. The answers indicated that many candidates, including some incumbents, have never read the act.

ALMOST WITHOUT exception, the candidates — both incumbents and first-timers — said that educational decisions, particularly those on curriculum changes, should be made by the school board. The answers varied widely as to how much participation in these decisions should be accorded administrators, teachers and students.

Yet, in most districts, such decisions are made by the staff, then submitted to the board for approval in what often is merely a rubber-stamping process.

The candidates, including incumbents, showed considerable confusion over the effects of last year's Senate Bill 90 on their school districts' finances — hardly surprising since even those who have studied it most closely are not sure yet just what the effects will be. But most indicated agreement with the principle of limiting school spending on a per-pupil basis.

Yet not one mentioned that many headaches accompanying the new financing system result from its elimination of all but 10 of 43 purposes for which school boards formerly could impose "override" taxes without voter approval. Nor did one mention that many of these over-ride taxes were imposed to pay fringe benefits to teachers which had been negotiated behind closed doors and never publicly debated.

The survey did not include a question regarding union exclusive bargaining agent representation of teachers, as advocated in the California Teachers Association-sponsred Senate Bill 400. But in replying to the tenure question, one incumbent expressed belief that such exclusive bargaining is inevitable, and two non-incumbents advocated its adoption.

Microwave Oven Check Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barely one month after a major report urged consumers to avoid buying microwave ovens, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has proposed new controls to prevent dangerous radiation leakage in the appliances.

The FDA proposal would require the quick-cooking ovens to be equipped with a backup device to prevent them from working when the door is opened.

The ovens are supposed to be equipped with one such device right now, but if it fails, the FDA said, the radiation can flow out when the door is opened. As a result the agency is proposing that a second such device be required which would shut the oven down when the first fails, and keep it shut off until the primary device is repaired.

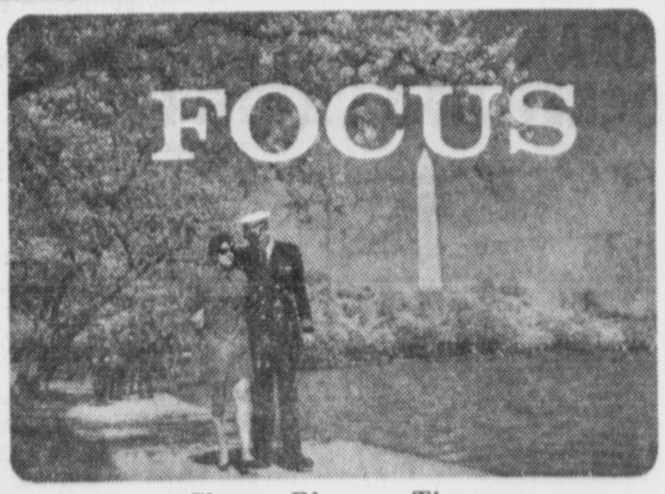
Problems with radiation emerging from oven doors were cited by Consumers Union, publisher of the magazine Consumer Reports. It urged March 7 that the public not buy such ovens and said all 15 models of microwave ovens on the U.S. market leak radiation.

Consumers Union said, among other things, that the ovens may leak radiation if a piece of paper towel accidentally gets caught in the door. Other rays can escape through glass viewing panels built into the doors, it added.

Novato Prepares For Trash Bash

Novato will conduct its annual spring cleanup, named Trash Bash VI, April 28 and May 5 with a free dump site at Rowland and Redwood Boulevards, according to administrative assistant Rodney B. Brown.

The cleanup originally was scheduled to be held next Saturday and April 21 but was switched because of the Easter holidays, Brown said.



Cherry Blossom Time

This week's annual Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington is being accompanied by the sound of whirring wheels as thousands of sightseers are encouraged to view the trees on bicycles. The National Park Service's 4th annual bike-in is being held in conjunction with the festival for the first time. First planted in 1912, the cherry trees were a gift of the city of Tokyo. Although a shipment of cherry trees were sent from Tokyo in 1909, they were found to be infected and had to be burned. Amidst delicate diplomatic handling, new trees were sent and planted 3 years later.

Democrats Sound Call For Unity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic party is trying to retain its hard-won reforms but at the same time make room for its alienated "Old Guard."

Top Democrats, including titular leader George S. McGovern, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and National Chairman Robert Strauss stressed unity at the opening session of the Democratic charter commission Tuesday.

Similar pleas were expected today from Hubert H. Humphrey, the 1968 presidential candidate, and Jean Westwood, hand-picked by McGovern as the national chairwoman after last year's turbulent Miami Beach convention.

McGovern, whose presidential nomination deeply divided the party, said "that in many respects, the reform rules worked better than our best expectations. The reforms did not fail."

But the South Dakota senator conceded "the reform rules were not without some defects or errors of interpretation even as they are properly judged a general success."

He said "no one really wants to return the party to secret caucuses, fraudulent proxies and backroom deals," and added "no one wants to betray those who have relied on the sincerity of the reforms.

"Still, the reforms were an innovation, a voyage on an uncharted sea—and they can be improved," he said.

But McGovern said improvement should be "based, not on less reform, but on more reform of the right kind."

Strauss reminded the charter commission that "reform is a continuing effort."

Nixon's Labor Chieftain Finding Road Is Rough

By DONALD FINLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Someone once said it gets lonely at the top, but Peter Brennan may find it even lonlier caught in the middle— where he seems to be as President Nixon's new labor secretary.

Brennan, the "Mr. Hardhat" New York construction union leader who joined Nixon's cabinet this year, appears to be caught in the middle between organized labor and Nixon, who apparently selected Brennan to help woo union members into his "new Republican majority."

What many observers predicted would happen became evident Tuesday: Brennan is having difficulty reconciling his views, grounded in the trade union movement, with those of the White House. He will have to compromise while at the same time trying to get a better deal for labor from the administration.

The first signal of this was on minimum wage legislation.

In his Senate confirmation hearings in January, Brennan voiced strong opposition to a special lower minimum wage for teen-agers proposed by the White House last year. But Tuesday he presented the administration's revised proposal for a sub-minimum wage for teen-agers—a measure bitterly opposed by labor leaders.

The reaction from his former union colleagues was quick and sharp. In short, they accused him of doublecrossing labor.

"We are aghast," said AFLCIO President George Meany, "that Brennan has so completely abandoned the trade union principles he espoused for all of his life before coming to Washington."

Meany's language and tone raised the question of whether he had given up completely on Brennan being a good influence for labor in the administration, or whether Meany was just stating his own position for public consumption.

Meany, after refusing to back Democrat George S. McGovern against Nixon in last year's presidential election, has grown increasingly critical of Nixon's economic policies in recent weeks.

In defense, Brennan said he had had to compromise on the minimum wage bill to keep from getting a measure even more unpalatable to labor. For instance, he said some White House officials wanted to apply the youth minimum all the way through age 20.

And Brennan said he had been able to limit the subminimum wage to a maximum of 20 weeks for any one teenage worker.

But Brennan, discussing the bill before a union audience Tuesday, was clearly on the defensive and in an apologetic mood, showing clearly that he was having to compromise his own labor views while fighting against harsher terms from the White House.

Caught in the middle, he already has alienated Meany and other colleagues in labor. And if he fights too hard for labor's position, he might find himself isolated within the administration.

The last union official who was secretary of labor, Martin Durkin of the Plumbers, lasted only nine months in President Dwight D. Eisenhower's cabinet of "nine millionaires and a plumber." He quit in frustration when he couldn't get his views implemented.

It is too early yet to tell if Brennan will go the way of Durkin.

Former Nixon Physician Hit

NEW YORK (UPI) — An osteopath who once treated President Nixon was charged Tuesday with evading federal income taxes.

Dr. W. Kenneth Riland, 61, who also was a physician for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, was charged in a five-count indictment with failing to pay $39,000 in taxes on $82,000 in unreported medical fees between 1966 and 1970.

Riland is employed as chief physician to the U.S. Steel Corp. If convicted, he could face up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count.

Life Sentences In Man's Death

LONDON (UPI) — A judge sentenced two teen-agers to life imprisonment Tuesday for beating a 79-year-old church verger to death in a mugging attack.

William Challis, 18, and Thomas Nolan, 19, pleaded guilty to killing William Goldsworthy for his money in an unlit alley last October.

Their crime netted them $22.50, four cigars and a pocket knife.

Chanel's Secret Is Cat's Sweat

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the 100 secret ingredients of Chanel No. 5 perfume is "the sweat of the whipped Abyssinian civet cat," according to its makers.

Colin Platt, a veterianarian for the Society for Animal Rights, said Tuesday that the whipping part of the claim is not true. Nonetheless, the way the sweat is collected cuts the cat's life in half, he said.

Platt, who visited one of the largest civet cat farms in southern Ethiopia on behalf of the international society, said the cats are confined in tiny cages. The civet cat is wild and has a long body and short legs. Its "civet" is a thick, yellowish musk-smelling substance and is removed from a pouch near its sex organ.

China Frees A West German

HONG KONG (UPI) — Trutz Ritter von Xylander, a West German convicted of charges he was spying for the United States, walked to freedom today after more than five years imprisonment in China.

Von Xylander, 38, the last known West German held by the Chinese, was sentenced in 1969 to 10 years in prison.

Border officials said he walked across the Lowu border bridge between Hong Kong and China "apparently in good health though he looked pale."

Von Xylander told the officials he "felt fit and well." He said he had been able to keep up-to-date with world news through German and English newspapers supplied by the Chinese authorities, the officials said.
